Lines On Death $5,000, Not $15,000 And $2,500 A Year Long Delayed Idea

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1935, by King Features Syndicate Inc., International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

WHEN IT COMES your turn to die, and somebody asks, "What was his favorite hymn," or "What was his favorite poem" what would the answer be?

Would you like them to sing, "Lead Kindly Light," after the light has left your moral eyes forever? Would you have somebody read Tennyson's poem about "Crossing the Bar," the "Twilight and Evening Star," and the "One Clear Call for Me", etc.?

Would you prefer, heroically, something about "My Head is Bloody But Unbowed," letting people know you "died game?"

Or would you, with better judgment, suggest "Nearer My God to Thee," expressing the one hope, and the only hope of those that have hope?

THESE QUESTIONS are suggested by the funeral, Friday, on his 94th birthday, of the great supreme court justice, Oliver Wendell Holmes, buried with military honors in Arlington cemetery because he was a soldier and wounded in the Civil war. Justice Holmes wished to have read at his funeral, a poem that he admired, "Mysterious Night." The poem, which seems to be a mixture of Hazlitt's "familiar style" and Milton's very unfamiliar style, follows. If you read it once, you will read it again, to understand it, and a third time, asking yourself what it was that appealed so strongly to Oliver Wendell Holmes in the fact, when the sun disappears, our eyes perceive "countless orbs," to which the light of the sun had made us blind:

TONIGHT

Mysterious night. When our first parent knew
Thee from report divine, and heard thy name,
Did he not tremble for this lovely frame,
This glorious canopy of light and blue?
Yet 'neath the curtain of translucent dew,
Bathed in the rays of the great setting flame,
Hesperus with the host of heaven came,
And Lo! Creation widened in man's view.
Who could have thought such darkness lay concealed Within thy beams, O sun! Or who could find,
While fly, and leaf, and insect stood revealed,
That to such countless orbs thou mad'st us blind!—
Why do we, then shun death with anxious strife?—
If light can thus deceive, wherefore not life?

—Joseph Blanco White.

SENATOR HUEY LONG, of Louisiana, broadcasting some time ago, was understood by this writer to suggest that he would give every family in the United States $15,000 with which to build a comfortable home, equipped with an automobile, furniture, all necessary things.

In broadcasting night before last, the senator, grieved by that statement, wished a correction to the effect that he was going to give only five thousand dollars to each family, not fifteen thousand dollars.

RELUCTANTLY, the correction is made, but it seems rather a pity to raise the hopes of each family to a fifteen thousand dollar pitch and then dash them down to five thousand dollars.

To destroy hope is always sad, especially when hope is all that anybody is going to get in connection with that particular proposition. It would be so much more generous to give fifteen thousand fairy dollars. To buy a good car, build a good garage, put in copper piping and copper flashing throughout, avoiding steel that rusts so easily, good bath tubs, gas and electric stove, not fewer than

BLANCHARD LOSES 'BLACKMAIL' SUIT

SHREVEPORT, La., March 9.—(AP)—A. G. Blanchard, a law student, today handled his own case in a federal court suit here and was told by Judge Ben C. Dawkins that he had made out "no sort of case."

Blanchard filed a suit against Philip H. Mecom, United States attorney and L. Percy Garrot, a local attorney, alleging that they had "plotted to blackmail" him in his exchange of $2,500 of gold for currency.

Judge Dawkins heard the evidence and then instructed the jury to bring in a verdict in favor of the defendants. Judge Dawkins told Blanchard from the bench that the young lawyer had made the mistake of coming into court "with only a smattering knowledge of law."

Blanchard's suit claimed that he received $2,500 in currency in exchange for the gold and paid Garrot as his attorney a fee of $100. He then claimed a difference in revaluation of $1,338.66.

Judge Dawkins ruled that the plaintiff had no right of action against the two defendants on his claim and had made out "no case" on the "plot to blackmail" allegation.

TERRIFIC FIRING BREAKS OUT IN STRIKE IN CUBA

TWO REPORTED KILLED

HAVANA, March 9.—(AP)—Terrific firing broke out tonight in the center of Havana, harassed for days by a nation wide revolutionary general strike.

The shooting was concentrated between Cabana and La Punta fortresses. High-powered searchlights swept the rooftops, seeking snipers.

Firing from all directions swept the Malecon section from the National hotel to the bay entrance. Automobiles were driven away from the vicinity of all police stations.

At 10 p.m., a general call to arms was sounded at Camp Columbia, army headquarters on the outskirts of the city.

Hottest spots in the firing were the famous Prado promenade and the equally well known Malecon drive.

A steady stream of bullets flattened against the walls of the old stone homes along the waterfront. Most of the firing in that zone was from Cabana fortress and naval headquarters at La Punta fortress.

If there was an attempt to take Cabana or La Punta, the attackers kept themselves well hidden. They were not discernible during the heaviest firing.

Four bombs exploded in front of the American owned Parkview hotel, half a block from the presidential palace.

Police at 10:30 p.m. said they had reports two men were killed in the shooting that continued to sweep the center of Havana.

A first aid station in midtown reported it had picked up one man gravely wounded.

The noise of the rifles and machine guns was almost deafening on the Malecon drive.

Shots from rooftops indicated snipers were at work. It may have been that the navy and army decided to rout them out in a terrific bombardment.

NEW BOY SCOUT CHIEF IS NAMED

Olan H. Black Of Pennsylvania Chosen As Local Executive

Olan H. Black, for the past six years engaged as field scout executive and assistant scout executive of the Berks county, Pennsylvania, council of the Boy Scouts of America, will be the new scout executive of Ouachita Valley council, it was announced Saturday by Judge W. M. Harper, the president.

The new scout executive will assume his duties April 1. In the meantime he is taking a post-graduate course at the national training school for scout executives at Schiff camp in northern New Jersey.

Appointment of the new scout executive was made after an exhaustive search conducted by a special committee of the executive board for a leader having the qualifications needed to undertake the task of serving the extensive territory served by the Ouachita Valley council, Judge Harper said. The Ouachita Valley council embraces 15 parishes of northeast Louisiana, with over 1,100 scouts within the jurisdiction.

In announcing the appointment, Judge Harper issued a statement, in which he said: "The committee has had the advice and assistance of Harold Lewman, of Memphis, regional director, of the Boy Scouts of America, in its efforts to find the right man, and we believe we now have the kind of executive, with the background of experience, training and

BUSINESS PRAISES SOLONS' SLOWNESS

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—Despite hints at the capitol today that the White House had cut a switch for rebellious Democrats, signs were plentiful on Capitol Hill that congress would continue to give administration proposals critical and often prolonged scrutiny.

Praise for the comparatively slow procedure by the house and senate was voiced today by business as represented by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Many observers held that this session, for the first time since Mr. Roosevelt took office, congress had begun to take its customary hand in shaping legislation.

They ventured, too, the opinion that any pressure Mr. Roosevelt brought would be in behalf of specific measures and that he had acquiesced to the new order.

Guard Reports Ouida Slapped Him After He Said She Talked

LAUREL, Miss., March 9.—(AP)—Tom Lott, court attendant who guards Ouida Keeton, the "mute" defendant in her wheel chair, reported today to County Attorney Jack Deavours that Ouida slapped him with her open palm during a court recess.

Lott had testified in her murder trial that Miss Keeton had broken her "mute spell" about three weeks ago when he told her he was going to remove her from the hospital to the jail.

He testified that Ouida told him, "you can take me back to jail and do whatever you please with me."

SENATOR DEMANDS JUNKING OF SOME NRA PROVISIONS

Borah's Stand Emphasizes Problem Facing The Administration

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—A demand from Senator Borah for the junking of NRA except for its child labor, minimum wages and maximum hours provisions emphasized today the difficult problem facing the administration in its effort to extend the recovery act.

Borah, who is leading a drive for full restoration and enforcement of the anti-trust laws, said in an interview that legislation along the lines he outlined would be "the greatest contribution toward recovery we could make at this time."

His proposal added one more to the heap of suggestions already before the senate finance committee for revising NRA. Chairman Harrison, realizing his task, announced he would seek to expedite hearings to insure that some continuing legislation is passed before the recovery law expires June 16.

Harrison made public plans for the future conduct of the NRA investigation by his committee, disclosing the possibility of a debate before that forum between Hugh S. Johnson and the man who led the attack on his administration of the recovery unit, Clarence Darrow.

Harrison said Darrow would be invited to testify in the inquiry, and that Johnson undoubtedly would appear. The committee was not certain, however because of his health. In Chicago the celebrated criminal lawyer said he would await receipt of a formal invitation before deciding.

Johnson in New York said if he was called before the committee he would go, but he had not been asked to testify. He reiterated his former declaration that the NRA was "as dead as a dodo."

Johnson minimized the effect of the revisions put forward by the administration. He said "as far as I can understand Mr. Richberg's 17 points, the NRA will be left practically as it is."

He was referring to the administration's recommendations submitted by Donald Richberg, director of the national emergency council.

MONEY MODERATION URGED BY SENATOR

WASHINGTON, March 9. — (AP) — Moderation in making monetary changes was urged upon the administration today by Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, long a leader of the senate's aggressive inflationary bloc.

All that is needed at the moment, he advised officials concerned with such questions, is an active furtherance of the treasury's silver program. The resulting expansion of the currency, he said, need not be great and would certainly be far from dangerous.

Further emphasizing a split in the ranks of the inflationists, he asserted that cash payment of the bonus, the Wheeler treasury note issue proposal and the Frazier-Lemke bill to refinance a maximum of $3,000,000,000 in farm mortgages with newly issued currency, "might go too far."

MISSISSIPPI STREAMS SEND FLOOD WAVES

HATTIESBURG, Miss., March 9.—(AP)—Fed into overflow stage by rains of the past few days, south Mississippi streams today sent flood waves down their basins, inundating bottom lands and flat stretches, washing out highways and invading the cities of Hattiesburg and Jackson.

In Hattiesburg twenty-five to thirty residential blocks, occupied mostly by negroes and located on the outskirts of the city, were in the water which coursed through from the junction of Leaf river and Bowie creek, northwest of the city.

A similar number of low blocks in east and south Jackson were under water from the flood of Pearl river on the east side and Town creek which runs through south Jackson.

Red Cross officials at Hattiesburg estimated that there were between 200 and 250 families driven from their homes in Hattiesburg and the surrounding flood section while scores were forced to flee the inundation in Jackson.

MISSING CORPSE OF MRS. KEETON MAY BE LOCATED

IS ENCASED IN LIME

Fate Of Ouida Is Expected To Be In Jury's Hands Tomorrow

BROWNSVILLE, Tenn., March 9.—(AP)—A human body, presumably that of a woman, was found encased in lime on the banks of the Forked Deer river, 13 miles east of here, late today.

Sheriff R. C. Hawkins of Haywood county, said the head, arms and legs were missing and that because of this he planned to notify officers at Laurel, Miss., that the body might possibly be that of Mrs. Daisy Keeton.

Ouida Keeton is on trial at Laurel now in connection with the death of her mother, whose body has not been found.

Sheriff Hawkins said the body was discovered by Otis Cowan, 15. Covered with lime, it was about 60 feet from the river, the sheriff said.

"I seriously doubt if the body can even be identified," Sheriff Hawkins said. "Most of the flesh was eaten away by the chemical."

The sheriff said a physician at Bells, Tenn., identified the bones as those of a woman.

Neither Sheriff Hawkins nor Deputy Sheriff Dan Wade of Bells (Crockett county) have had reports of the disappearance of any person in the vicinity, they said.

Wade said that he was of the opinion that the body had been there "two or three months."

The Haywood sheriff expressed the opinion that it had been placed there since the January flood of the Forked Deer river.

"There was no indication that the body had been in water," Hawkins

FILM STAR MOVES TO DIVORCE MATE

Jean Harlow Says Hal Rosson Persisted In Reading In Bed

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—(AP)—Hal Rosson, the man who read in bed and thus allegedly prevented his glamorous bride from getting enough sleep, is about to become the ex-husband of Jean Harlow.

The willowy film actress whose beauty made screen history overnight, will ask a divorce court here Monday, attorneys said tonight, for a decree on grounds of cruelty. One item noted in her complaint was that her film cameraman spouse persisted in reading in bed.

The way for an early divorce was made ready when service was completed upon Rosson by publication. He will not contest it.

Two questions arose to intrigue the film colony.

1. Where does William Powell, suave, best-dressed actor, lately Miss Harlow's constant companion, fit into this picture?

2. Why did Miss Harlow file her complaint in Los Angeles? The interlocutory decree lasts a year in California. In nearby Nevada a final divorce can be obtained in six weeks.

The answer given by the actress and Powell to the first is the conventional one, "we're just good friends."

Her reply to the second was, "I live here. Why not get a decree here?" She said she was in no hurry to marry again.

Rosson was still in London, recovering from an attack of infantile paralysis, and it was necessary for her to obtain service by publication.

POLICE PUSH HUNT FOR FIEND SLAYER

YPSILANTI, Mich., March 9.—(AP)—Police considered twin theories of revenge and degeneracy today as they intensified their search for the slayer of 7-year-old Richard Streicher, Jr.

The officers said they were without definite clues to the identity of the man who stabbed the schoolboy a dozen times with a two-edged knife and hid his body beneath a footbridge crossing the Huron river.

A youth was questioned by police, but they later announced he established an alibi.

State police investigators who hold to the theory that Richard's slayer was venting a bitter hatred against the family disclosed they were seeking for questioning a man said by Mrs. Streicher to have demanded money from her father on numerous occasions.

Prosecutor Albert J. Rapp said he believed the boy was slain by a degenerate.

Dr. Stacey C. Howard, Ann Arbor pathologist who examined the body, said the boy probably was killed by a vicious knife thrust through the heart.

Then, he said, the slayer apparently marked out a "Y" on the chest and struck three more blows in the outline of the letter. The other wounds were on the head and throat.

'BABY DOE' DEAD

The last chapter in the tragic tale of the Tabors, once masters of millions, was written at Leadville, Colo., with the finding of the body of Mrs. Elizabeth "Baby Doe" Tabor in a shack at the "Matchless mine." "Baby Doe," shown above when she was a beauty in the '80's, had kept a pledge to her dying husband to hold on to the "Matchless mine" that had made him millions which he later lost. VOTE ON PASSAGE OF HOLC MEASURE IS AGAIN DELAYED

House Becomes Suddenly Unruly And Forces Postponement

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—A house, suddenly unruly, late today forced postponement a second time of a vote on passage of the administration bill to provide more millions for distressed home owners.

The house had been restless for two days. But late this afternoon it seemed well along toward final approval of the measure carrying an authorization for a $1,750,000,000 increase in the capital of the Home Owners Loan corporation.

Then unexpectedly it hung up on a section that would have allowed the federal housing administration to insure 20 per cent of loans up to $25,000 by private agencies for repair and modernization of industrial plants and commercial structures.

Speaker Byrns said the delay meant the bill would be shunted aside for a time. Monday will be given over to consideration of a measure to repeal legislation requiring income tax publicity and to District of Columbia bills.

Chairman Buchanan, Democrat, Texas, has been promised he could bring up a deficiency appropriation bill Tuesday. There was some sentiment, however, for laying this aside to permit disposition of the HOLC expansion measure.

Unable to agree on the portion of the bill dealing with the loans for industrial plant improvements, the banking committee in charge of the measure was also unable to spur the house past the controverted section.

The administration wanted a $50,000 limit originally on such loans. The banking committee had compromised on $25,000.

But once on the floor, Representative Hancock, Democrat, North Carolina, proposed to abolish the section altogether while Representative Wolcott, Republican, Michigan, wanted to

SIMON WILL VISIT HITLER AFTER ALL

LONDON, March 9.—(AP)—Sir John Simon apparently will go to Berlin to see Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler after all.

Allotting two weeks for Hitler to get well of his now historic cold, the German government today officially renewed the invitation for the British foreign secretary to visit Berlin and discuss Anglo-French proposals for an inclusive European security agreement.

Eden also was informally assured of a warm welcome at Warsaw, the other eastern capital included in his itinerary.

BIG SUIT LOST BY ALUMINUM CONCERN

HARTFORD, Conn., March 9.—(AP)—The Baush Machine Tool company of Springfield, Mass., was awarded damages of $2,868,000 tonight in the United States district court in its restraint of trade suit against the Aluminum Company of America.

A jury, which was given the case yesterday after a nine-week trial, returned a verdict awarding the Massachusetts concern damages of $956,000. Since the suit was based on the Sherman anti-trust act, Judge Harland B. Howe trebled the amount awarded by the jury, automatic under the act.

The Baush company had asked for $3,000,000 damages.

The Aluminum company, which took 96 exceptions to Judge Howe's charge to the jury yesterday, filed a notice of appeal.

HUEY DECLARES HE WILL FORCE VOTE ON FARLEY

Rumors Spring Up That Postal Chief Will Resign His Office

REPORTS ARE DENIED

Leaders Feel Ballot Will Vindicate Postmaster General

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—Huey Long climaxed one of the most tempestuous weeks of his turbulent career with a promise today he would talk next week until the senate was forced to vote on his proposed investigation of Postmaster General Farley.

While rumors sprang up that Farley would leave the cabinet after the attacks on his official conduct subsided, administration leaders expressed a willingness to decide the issue as quickly as possible. They said they felt the postoffice committee would be overwhelmingly sustained in its opposition to an inquiry.

"I haven't the slightest doubt about the outcome," said Chairman McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, of the committee today. "Long doesn't have to talk to force a vote. I would agree to vote immediately."

The reports that Farley might quit, denied last week by Democratic leaders after consulting the White House, were revived by senators who did not wish to have their names used. The few responsible officials available at the White House and postoffice department today stuck by the previous denial, saying they had not information of such a move.

Nevertheless, highly authoritative senatorial sources said a certain member who had planned to make a speech against Farley holding public and political offices simultaneously (cabinet and national Democratic chairman) had been informed if he held off a while it would not be necessary to make it.

The man who informed the senator that Farley would resign, but not until after "pressure" on him had subsided, was described as "one who knows or ought to know what he's talking about."

Farley was not in the city today, but planned to return Monday from New York.

Republicans generally were expected to side with the four Republicans and one Progressive (LaFollette

STEEL WORK MAY START THIS WEEK

Metal For New Bridge Is Expected To Arrive At Any Time

With the arrival of the first shipments of steel for the state highway bridge across the Ouachita river here expected at any time, it was learned Saturday that officials of Vincennes Bridge company of Vincennes, Ind., contractor for the steel work, expect that this work will get under way by Wednesday. If the steel arrives today or tomorrow it is possible that the work will be started even sooner.

Steel to be used in the bridge was fabricated at the factory and was shipped a number of days ago and officials of the organization estimated that the boats had had sufficient time to arrive.

H. W. Batchellor, field superintendent for the company, has opened an office near the end of the bridge in West Monroe and is ready to begin immediate supervision of the work.

It became known that Mr. Batchellor had entered into a working agreement with officials of the Louisiana employment service here, with a view to obtaining most of the labor needed for the bridge from that source. The bridge is not an NRA project and it was stated that it is not com-

ROGERS HAS HIS SAY

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 9.—(Special) — That Englishman Malcolm Campbell sure deserves a lot of credit, 276 miles an hour in an automobile, very few airplanes have beat that. About all the credit we get out of it is, we furnished the beach. It seems strange that we don't hold the automobile speed record, for we have millions trying to break it every day.

Huey is setting fine now. The Republican papers have all adopted him, they took him in as their White hope.

Whatever become of the four billion relief bill?

Yours,

Will Rogers.

PURSE SNATCHER IS ARRESTED BY MONROE OFFICERS

Paroled Convict Confesses Robbing Parish School Teacher

Arrested by police a few minutes after he snatched a purse from Miss Edna Mae Mullen, teacher of the parish school system, early last night in the 700 block of Oak street, Curtis Dean, 21, paroled convict of the federal reformatory at Washington, D. C., signed a written confession of the robbery when carried to police headquarters. He was identified by Miss Mullen.

Miss Mullen was struck and robbed of $22.63 contained in the purse, she reported to police. The money and a letter taken from her purse were found in Dean's possession when he was arrested on Depot street, about four blocks north of the place where the robbery took place.

According to Dean's confession, he followed Miss Mullen as she was walking eastward on Oak street and overtook her and caught her arm and snatched at the purse. The young woman slipped and fell, and Dean also fell to the ground, gaining possession of the purse.

Fleeing from the scene, Dean walked northward to the Illinois Central freight station on Depot street, and, having removed the contents of the purse, he threw it under the depot building, his confession said.

He continued walking up Depot street, towards Five Points, but had proceeded only a short distance up that street before police, who had been notified of the robbery, placed him under arrest.

Police had been notified by telephone of the robbery by Frank Mullen, brother of Miss Mullen. The call to police headquarters was made a minute or two after the robbery, as it was staged only a few yards from the Mullen residence, 709 Oak street.

Leaving headquarters in a patrol car immediately after receiving the robbery report, Officers D. J. Bedsole and H. H. Douglas went to the Oak street vicinity. Police Officer H. H. Burns, at Five Points, was notified of the robbery by telephone.

At the time of Dean's arrest, he was trapped on Depot street by the pat-

APPROVAL OF BONUS THIS WEEK DOUBTFUL

WASHINGTON, March 9. — (AP) — House passage of the bonus next week became doubtful today when leaders agreed upon highly unusual procedure designed to assure a clear test on inflation.

The understanding was that at least 10 and perhaps 12 hours of debate—enough to consume three normal days—would be allowed before voting.

The schedule set offered ample opportunities for separate votes on the Vinson American Legion bill, which makes no provision as to how the money would be raised, and the Patman bill which would direct the printing of $2,000,000,000 in new currency.

The Vinson bill will be formally presented to the house Monday by the ways and means committee. Tuesday the rules committee will approve a special resolution necessary to permit a choice between the Patman and Vinson bills.

ANOTHER MAN IS GANGLAND VICTIM

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Another "ride" victim was left sprawled at the end of the line in Queens and the police commissioner's two daughters were under constant guard today as authorities drew back for another blow against the underworld.

As detectives [illegible] out to determine what connection [illegible] the latest of half a dozen [illegible]gs had with the current campaign against vice, lottery and bail bond racketeering, Police Commissioner Lewis J. SUCCESSES OVER REBELS CLAIMED BY GREEK FORCES

Revolutionists Bombarded As Beginning Of Decisive Battle

PLANES BOMB CRETE

Hint Of Foreign Intervention By Unnamed Power Is Heard

SOFIA, Bulgaria, March 9.—(AP)—Reports which were unofficial and unconfirmable tonight said the Greek government's fleet had been forced to capitulate to the rebels.

These reports said large sums of money were confiscated by the rebels and that a combined air, land and sea attack is in preparation by them against Salonika.

LONDON, March 9. — (AP) — A Vienna dispatch to the Sunday Express says the island of Crete, where the rebel forces of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos are in control, proclaimed itself an independent republic tonight.

(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)

ATHENS, March 9.—The government claimed successes tonight after bombing and shelling rebel positions in Macedonia in the beginning of what was expected to be a decisive battle of the eight-day-old revolt.

Airplanes rained bombs upon enemy concentrations in the department of Seres, Drama and Kavalla, center of the tobacco growing industry, loyal officers reported.

They said seaplanes flew to the rebel island of Crete and bombed Canea, home of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, 70-year-old leader of the insurrection.

A hint of foreign intervention was heard for the first time in Athens when the newspaper Hestia intimated the likelihood an unspecified power would step in in the interests of Balkan peace.

A general attack is planned tomorrow upon rebels in the Struma river valley of Macedonia. Premier Panayoti Tsaldaris said "it is very possible" that the enemy would lay down their arms. He claimed that there have already been many desertions in rebel ranks.

Artillery and airplanes today unleashed a heavy bombardment against Macedonian rebels in the flooded Struma valley to lay the ground for a long-delayed general offensive tomorrow.

Premier Panayoti Tsaldaris "declared the troops headed by Gen. George Kondylis would take the offensive "no matter what the weather is."

The premier's belief that opposition would vanish in the face of an intensive drive was seized upon in some quarters as lending color to an unconfirmed rumor that surrender of the land rebels was imminent.

Mystery surrounded the activities of the rebel fleet of five ships. Four government planes were said to have taken off for the island of Crete, home of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos and seat of the revolt, to bombard three towns with explosives and leaflets.

After being checkmated by rain and snow throughout the week of the rebellion, Gen. Kondylis, who gave up his war portfolio to take active charge of Macedonian operations, left Saloniki with his general staff for the front to superintend preparations for the offensive.

Reports to Athens said his airplanes, which have been harassing rebel positions intermittently, dropped 30 bombs on an artillery detachment served by 50 men. The effect of the bombardment was not reported.

The Italian destroyer Trenton arrived at Piraeus, port of Athens, to join French and British warships already there.

Strains of regimental bands filled the streets of Athens upon the dispatch of additional troops to the Macedonian front.

Reports published abroad that Athens had been bombarded by the rebel fleet and that the Tsaldaris government had resigned were unfounded.

An unconfirmed rumor that Venizelos, called in government communiques the "mad" leader of the uprising, was en route to Alexandria wounded were succeeded by reports in today's newspapers that the veteran politician was acting as ruler of Crete and imposing taxes upon the inhabitants.

The extent of the paralysis of Greek commercial and economic life caused by the civil war is indicated by the fact that 18 ships, totalling 100,000 tons, are in Piraeus harbor awaiting permission to sail.

All building activities have been halted. President Alexander Zaimis has decreed an emergency moratorium of 15 days on all acceptances falling due.

With half the city's taxis elbowed on the streets between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m., the population is finding it easier to get around. Streets are closely patrolled, however, and curfew for pedestrians at 10:45 p.m. is strictly enforced. Until that time knots of persons gather around news vendors.

With General Kondylis reported determined to minimize any great loss of loyal lives, artillery thundered out over the Saloniki plain, lay-down their barrage to prepare for tomorrow's advance.

(A dispatch from Kulata said the Macedonian insurgents were mobilizing all men between 18 and 30, then

ERA TEACHERS TO MEET IN MONROE

Joint Meeting Of Caldwell And Ouachita Instructors Slated

A joint meeting of teachers in the emergency education schools of Ouachita and Caldwell parishes will be held at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at the district courtroom in the courthouse here, it was announced Saturday at the office of T. O. Brown, superintendent of Ouachita parish schools. A program that is expected to be of interest to the teachers and others who will attend has been arranged.

Monk Gregory, principal teacher in the emergency schools of Caldwell parish, will preside as chairman.

Several orchestra selections will be rendered, with Lowery Jefferson, teacher of an adult school of music in Ouachita parish, as leader.

Miss Rebecca Cassell, district director of the emergency relief administration, will deliver an address on "Benefits Derived From Adult Schools by ERA Clients."

This will be followed by an address by Dr. M. S. Robertson, state director of emergency education, on "The General View of Adult Education in Louisiana."

Miss Dorothy Rinehart, social service supervisor for Ouachita parish, will speak on "How the Field Worker Can Assist in the Emergency Educational Program."

At this time a recess will be taken for lunch and those in attendance will re-assemble at 1:30 p. m. At that time there will be a roundtable discussion, led by Miss Dorothy Freeman, district supervisor of emergency education.

There are now approximately 75 teachers of adult classes in Ouachita parish, including principal teachers and the success of these schools has been even better than had been anticipated. In some instances classes organized by some of the teachers have become so large that it has been necessary to divide them and assign another teacher. Leaders in this work state that most of the adult students show great earnestness in their studies and give every indication that they are attending the classes with the sole purpose of increasing their education.

Fairbanks Man, Winnfield Minister And Two Negroes Injured

A. L. Carpenter, negro of Sterlington, suffered a fractured skull, and his daughter, Arline Carpenter, suffered a dislocated shoulder late yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was in a collision with an automobile driven by W. L. Holbrook, of Fairbanks, at DeSiard and South Twentieth streets. Holbrook received a cut on the forehead.

The accident happened, police said, when the automobile driven by Holbrook collided with the car driven by Carpenter as the latter machine entered DeSiard from South Twentieth street. The Holbrook car was being driven westward on DeSiard.

Holbrook was carried in an ambulance to the St. Francis sanitarium, and was released from the institution after receiving treatment. The negroes were carried in an ambulance to the Riverside sanitarium and both remained patients there last night.

In another traffic accident here yesterday, Rev. J. McMurray, elderly Baptist minister of Winnfield, was reported to have been knocked down by an automobile at the intersection of South Grand and Grammont streets. Rev. McMurray's injuries were not serious and he was released from St. Francis sanitarium after receiving treatment.

Noel Roddey, 3111 South Grand street, driver of the car which struck the minister, said that at the time of the accident the latter walked out into South Grand street from behind a southbound automobile into the path of the Roddey automobile, which was being driven northward.

NOW AT THE PARAMOUNT

Basil Rathmore, Freddie Bartholomew, Elizabeth Allan in 1935's most beloved motion picture, "David Copperfield," the attraction at the Paramount theater for today and Monday. The big cast of 65 includes W. C. Fields, Lionel Barrymore, Madge Evans, Edna Mae Oliver, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Lawton, Roland Young, Lewis Stone and many others.

AT LOCAL THEATERS

AT THE PARAMOUNT—Taking its place among the truly great pictures of all time, "David Copperfield" opened yesterday at the Paramount theater. To say that it is at once one of the most pretentious and one of the most intimate photoplays ever made is to say too little; it is a picture that has more than bigness and more than intimacy; it has a soul.

As it develops its absorbing story it runs the full gamut of entertainment qualities. There is a wealth of romance, a wealth of pathos, a wealth of comedy. There are spectacle and thrills and tragedy and beauty. But when you leave the theater "David Copperfield" remains with you. For it "does something" to the heart that baffles description.

More than a year, we hear, was spent in preparation and filming. If it had taken ten years it would have been worth the effort. It is a picture no man or woman, no boy or girl should miss seeing. It sets a new high in entertainment quality.

Of the actors, and there are no less than sixty-five stars and featured players, perhaps the most spectacular achievement of "David Copperfield" is the development of the sensational new child star. Freddie Bartholomew. Playing the juvenile David, he gives a performance never surpassed on the screen. He is hailed as the greatest "find" since Jackie Coogan rocketed to fame with Chaplin in "The Kid." and there is something reminiscent about that Jackie of long ago. But little Freddie Bartholomew can be compared to no child star the screen has ever developed; he is himself, and that is enough.

Another star development is Frank Lawton, playing the adult David. Seen previously in "Cavalcade," he is destined to be remembered always as "David Copperfield." For he is David, come to life.

W. C. Fields, as Micawber, gives another unforgettable performance. He is everything one imagined Micaber to be—vain, pompous, boasting, optimistic—and always stone broke. The others, and each of them deserves special mention, include such favorites as Lionel Barrymore, Maureen O'Sullivan, Madge Evans, Edna May Oliver, Lewis Stone, Elizabeth Allan, Roland Young, Basil Rathbone, Elsa Lancaster, Jean Cadell, Jessie Ralph, Lennox Pawle, Violet Kemble-Cooper, Una O'Connor, John Buckler, Hugh Williams, Ivan Simpson, Herbert Mundin, Florine McKinney, Harry Beresford, Mabel Colcord, the novelist Hugh Walpole, the children, Fay Chaldecott and Marilyn Knowlden, and many more.

AT THE CAPITOL — The latest screen appearance of that cagacious oriental, Charlie Chan, takes place today at the Capitol theater when Fox Film's newest vehicle for the inimitable Warner Oland, "Charlie Chan in Paris," plays today only there.

This time Chan journeys to France on a secret mission for a British banking house. Before he leaves Paris he has not only tracked down a gang of forgers, but has plunged into the dangerous shadows of his most baffling mystery. A phantom killer has terrorized the gayest city in the world—and it is Charlie Chan who captures him red-handed, following two of the most hideous killings in Parisian annals.

In this, the seventh of the famed Chan series, Fox has turned out an ingenious and thrill-packed picture. Moving swiftly from episode to episode, "Charlie Chan in Paris" builds to an astonishing climax which even the most hardened mystery fans will have failed to foresee. For sheer-suspense and ingenuity, the newest of the Charlie Chan screen stories tops all its predecessors; and Oland once more registers heavily in his most celebrated role.

There is no part which suits this remarkable actor quite so well as does that of Charlie Chan. Wily, subtle, yet kindly and enormously human, the charaterization belongs among the notable screen portraits of all time.

In "Charlie Chan in Paris," Oland has distinguished support. Mary Brian is the heroine of the story, with Thomas Beck appearing opposite her. Other well-known players who have important assignments are Erik Rhodes, John Miljan, Minor Watson, Henry Kolker, Dorothy Appleby, Ruth Peterson and Murray Kinnell.

The picture was produced by John Stone and directed by Lewis Seiler.

Philip MacDonald wrote the story, while the screen adaptation was made by Edward T. Lowe and Stuart Anthony.

RIALTO, West Monroe — Grace Moore, new, vibrant screen personality who sang for the Metropolitan opera for three years and scored successive triumphs on the concert stages of every important city in the world, will be seen in the starring role of Columbia's film sensation, "One Night of Love," which opens its local engagement at the Rialto theater, West Monroe, starting today.

Tullio Carminati, international star last seen with Constance Bennett in "Moulin Rouge," has the main male lead with a strong supporting cast including Lyle Talbot, Mona Barrie, Jessie Ralph, Andres De Segurola and Luis Alberni. Victor Schertzinger directed.

Wisner

On Wednesday evening, Mrs. Tom Gilbert entertained complimentary to the Misses Frances Helen and Mary Elizabeth Morris, who will make their home with her until the end of the school term.

The setting was delightfully colorful with spring flowers of a variety and the eighteen youngsters in lovely spring attire.

Guests arrived at six for the five-course dinner, before which music was enjoyed.

As each filed into the dining room to find her place and throughout the dinner the occasion was recorded in motion pictures.

The long table was spread with a banquet cloth of Italian cut work and centered with a three-tier cake bearing thirteen candles and topped by dainty spring flowers in white and yellow. Plates were marked by china dolls dressed in spring shades, each bearing name of the guest.

Those who enjoyed this delightful evening and the pleasure of knowing better the Misses Morris were:

Misses Dorothy Mae Sherrouse, Corinth Sherrouse, Nina Mae Lee, Cecile Townsend and Mildred Turner of Gilbert. Misses Beryl Stark and Mildred McConnell of Mangham; Misses Lottie Lucille Risher, Ruby Mae Arnold, Eva Mae Kroll, Lucy Roach, Dorothy Roach, Erline Cannon, Anne Knotts, Addie Gilbert and Jess Gilbert of Wisner.

On March 30, 1847, Niagara Falls nearly ceased to flow. The flow on that day was hardly more than that of a mill-dam. It was thought that an accumulation of ice between Fort Erie and Buffalo was the cause of the unusual occurrence.

NOTED ORGANIST TO APPEAR HERE

Music lovers of Monroe are to be given an opportunity to hear Anna Rehkopf Elliott, noted pianist and organist, who will appear in an orphan recital at the First Presbyterian church Tuesday night at 8:15 o'clock. Mrs. Elliott will give her recital under the auspices of the Ladies auxiliary and will be assisted by Leon Hammonds, well known pianist and organist of Monroe, and Charles Borum, dramatic baritone, formerly of Baton Rouge. There will be no admission charge, but a free will offering will be taken for the benefit of the auxiliary.

Mrs. Elliott, who has only recently been introduced to Monroe audiences, has had a colorful and interesting musical career. She first played for the First Lutheran church at Joplin, Mo., when at the age of 11 she was appointed organist and choir director. Later she devoted herself to a stage career, studying at the some time under Lew White and Ernest Kraeger. She served as theater organist in numbers of Fox and Paramount theaters until talking pictures were introduced. She has had a large experience in radio and concert work in Chicago and other cities of the north, and has served as accompanist to many famous singers and violinists. She has consistently continued her studies under Henri Powell, noted English organist and composer. She has recently completed an extensive concert tour, giving recitals in both organ and piano.

From A Physician To A Trust Officer

My Dear Sir:

The question you asked as to who would invest the $74,000 insurance I carry on my life started me thinking.

My wife would not wish to, I know. Nor would my son, who, like myself, is to be a doctor, not a business man.

However, your later suggestion that I set up a Life Insurance Trust is a remedy I never thought of. It is my understanding that under this Trust you will collect the insurance, invest it, and turn over the income to my wife at regular intervals—I would suggest monthly. I also understand that you will advance parts of the principal if my wife should ever be in serious need.

Eventually I would want the principal to be divided between my son and our married daughter.

I have looked over my policies and within the next few days shall come in to complete arrangements for this Life Insurance Trust.

Yours truly,
——— ——— M. D.

...AY CHURCH ...E DEDICATED

Catholic Officials Be Present At Services Today

FERRIDAY, La., March 9.—(Special)—Most Reverend Daniel F. Desmond, bishop of the diocese of Alexandria, of which Ferriday is a part, will be the principal speaker at the formal dedication ceremonies to be held here Sunday morning at 10 o'clock when initial services are held in the recently completed St. Patrick's Catholic church.

Another high-ranking church dignitary, the Most Reverend Richard O. Gerow, bishop of the diocese of Natchez, Miss., has accepted an invitation extended by Reverend Father F. X. Kronemeyer, pastor of the new church, and will also speak on the dedication program Sunday.

Mass will be celebrated at the new church Sunday morning by Bishop Desmond assisted by Father Kronemeyer and other clergymen, and a banquet at the American Legion hall will follow. A turkey dinner will be served by the members of the church here and the proceeds will be used to complete furnishings for the church.

Work was started on the new edifice several months ago. It was built by the A. E. Torres Lumber company, contractors, with Ambrose Lavin as the superintendent of construction.

The new church replaces the structure which was demolished completely last summer during a terrific rainstorm and hurricane. Donations for the erection of the church were received from members of this and neighboring congregations and from members of other denominations and Father Kronemeyer, Bishop Desmond and the members of the church are extending thanks to all who made the new church a possibility and are extending to them a cordial invitation to attend the dedication Sunday.

With favorable weather promised, the church is expected to be packed Sunday for the ceremonies. In addition to local churchgoers, a delegation from Natchez and neighboring cities is expected to attend the exercises.

SAYS STUDENTS REPAYING HUEY

L. S. U. Business Manager Reports Football Loans Coming In

BATON ROUGE, La., March 9.—(AP)—When Senator Huey P. Long last October was shelling out cash on the Louisiana State university campus for students' expenses to the Vanderbilt football game at Nashville he said he would get most of it back and now the money is rolling in at $7 a head.

The senator was nearly mobbed as he passed out sheafs of crisp bills in a practical demonstration of his "share-our-wealth" plan with only the borrower's name on the back of a laundry slip as security.

Asked then whether he was giving away the money or whether he expected it to be repaid in loans, Long said he was "lending the money" and calmly added, "Oh, we never lose much."

Now, nearly five months later, E. N. Jackson, business manager of the college, reports that the senator was "mostly right" and that the majority of the students have repaid their loans.

Jackson said that $3,500 was distributed by Long in $7 loans to about 500 students, and that of the number 60 to 75 per cent have refunded the loans and that many of the balance had made personal arrangements with Long to pay him from wages from jobs next summer.

A swarm of persons besieged Long's hotel suite last October 24 when he announced he would provide enough money for students to make the Nashville trip "if they didn't have it." All he asked was that the recipients write their names as "L. O. U.'s" on the backs of a pile of laundry slips.

He later said he never knew there were so many "John Smiths" in Baton Rouge.

LEVEE MEET POSTPONED

TALLULAH, La., March 9.—(Special.)—According to an announcement of A. E. Kell, president of the fifth Louisiana levee board, the meeting of the flood control division of the rivers and harbors congress, which was scheduled to take place in New Orleans next week, has been postponed until March 20 pending the action of the committee appointed to make adjustments in the plan of the proposed Bayou Macon Spillway.

Contrary to the popular opinion that elephants never forget, it has been found that they do.

Pittsburgh Mayor's Antics May Cost Him His Job

(By NEA Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 9.—The bill to "rip" Mayor William N. McNair of Pittsburgh from office, offered to the state legislature at Harrisburg, marks the climax of one of the most fantastic regimes in the history of major American cities.

From the day after his election, when he scaled a ladder in the huge rotunda of the city hall to see where the draughts were coming from that "give employes so many colds," McNair's antics were spread over the front pages of newspapers throughout Pennsylvania.

He went into office with a majority of 25,000 in a city where no Democrat in two decades had been able to garner more than a handful of votes. He had the complete support of the Roosevelt-Democrat state organization, of labor and of thousands of revolting Republicans.

Within a few months, he had split with practically every politician who had backed him, including his financial supporter; fired his closest friends from the offices he gave them; had made his office a rendezvous for the strangest crowd of hangers-on any politician ever gathered, and literally had turned Pittsburgh's government upside down.

Time and again he fired important figures, even cabinet officers, without notifying them, or through telephone calls to their wives. He sent the names of both political friends and enemies, even of newspaper reporters, into city council for the job of chairman of the traction board, refusing first to oust the incumbent, because he "didn't want to recognize him."

Exercising a right under the city charter, he took a magistrate's bench day after day, discharged drunks because he said they weren't to blame for drinking "Pinchot poison" (his method of blaming former Governor Gifford Pinchot for cheap liquor sold at state stores); gave lectures on the single tax in court and let crowds of various small offenders go free if they would promise to study that theory.

McNair's antics started the day after his election. They culminated the day he was inaugurated in the most bizarre scenes ever staged at city hall. Somebody gave the mayor a brown derby; somebody else an apple. He put the derby on his head, started eating the apple, and led shouting crowds through the building.

He insisted on taking the oath of office in public before he went through the official ceremony before city council. He invited the crowds into his huge new office, told them to sit at his desk and "see what it feels like," gave them the run of the whole building as the other newly sworn officials—and the men who had backed him during the campaign—were relegated to the fringes of the throng.

In the campaign, he was backed financially by Michael L. Benedum, the oil magnate who spent $100,000 on Hoover in 1928, then turned to Roosevelt in 1932. The campaign was directed by David L. Lawrence, now state Democratic chairman, and secretary of the commonwealth, and Joseph F. Guffey, now United States senator—the two recognized Roosevelt leaders in Pennsylvania. He consulted with them on the first appointments, then broke violently with them. They finally sponsored the "ripper" bill put into the legislature.

As files of men sought jobs, McNair established a desk in the lobby of city hall. One man he told to start a "hot-dog" stand in the building. Others would be given single tax pamphlets and informed that only good single taxers were to have a part in the new regime.

"Hunky Joe" Lewandowski, formerly identified with the "numbers" game, attracted the mayor's attention at a magistrate's hearing. He became a constant companion of McNair, together with Joseph "Bozo" Lavery, a former policeman with a criminal court record.

The mayor appointed and fired three safety directors and half a dozen magistrates, some of them formerly his closest friends—some because he figured they were "playing" with the Democratic leaders with whom he had broken, others for no announced reason at all. He fired the fire chief, appointed another, then fired him and reappointed the original official. He also hired (and later fired) Harrison McCready, a young socialite whom he had met casually, as "director of home finding"—a new department.

Early in his regime, he decided on the use of scrip, only to be balked by the city controller; he blocked the enforcement of sanitation laws when one beer parlor owner told him he was being "persecuted" because "I voted for you"; he furloughed or attempted to furlough entire minor departments.

Organized labor, which had a part in McNair's elections, sought aid from him. The ensuing conference was a stormy one, from which union leaders emerged hot with wrath, to charge that they had been subjected to the "most assinine" grilling of their experience. Republican politicians who bolted their party because of the terrific attack made upon its record during the past few years and because they saw hope of a non-partisan reform regime, were refused recognition.

The mayor, however, distributed his favors evenly. While he ignored the Republicans who helped elect him, he ousted the regular Democrats, too. With but few exceptions, his real advisers finally were picked from weirdly conflicting groups, ranging from a radical agitator for the unemployed to a Greek orthodox priest.

In the interim between McNair's election and his inauguration, Democratic leaders, alarmed over the publicity his antics already were begetting, whisked him out of the city and took him to see President Roosevelt. McNair came away expressing himself as being well pleased with the new chief executive. As the "ripper" agitation got under way, McNair made another hurried visit to the president, this time to ask him to halt the "ripper" bill. He returned to Pittsburgh to charge that "the president is back of all this" and to make bitter attacks on him.

He addressed "anti-ripper" meetings throughout the state.

"If this nefarious thing is successful," he told his hearers, "I can walk across the street to my law office and make an honest living—but you go back a hundred years in representative government."

The law office to which he referred is a single little room in the Bakewell building, poorly furnished. From there, McNair had run for office a score of times—always to be hopelessly defeated. He was known to a comparatively small public as an advocate of last causes, as a constant writer to newspaper columns headed "Letters From the People." He was picked as a docile candidate by a party which was making its chief effort to win representation in city council and only had a forlorn hope of winning the mayoralty.

But the politicians who backed him and had not given full credit to the repeated exposes of the long-dominant Republican machine and the strength of the Roosevelt following in what always had been a traditional Republican stronghold.

Surprised Democratic leaders spent a jubilant night celebrating their first victory since fusion support won the mayoralty for a candidate a quarter of a century ago. They mapped their plans for an organization which no longer would be a joke, content to take the crumbs from a Republican table.

By the time the inauguration took place, they were walking around in a daze. And within a few months, they weren't even to be found in the vicinity of the mayor's office.

The "ripper" bill at Harrisburg was the result.

Minister Gives Talk On Temperance Union

A short talk on the importance of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was made by Rev. C. H. Wiman of Kansas City, Mo., at a meeting of the W. C. T. U. at the Nazarene church on Thomas and Richmond streets Thursday night. Rev. Wiman is conducting a revival meeting at the church. Mrs. G. M. Akin presided.

Following the talk, a business meeting was held and the report of the secretary was received.

Miss Grace Evans presented a beautiful water color poster, embodying a bundle of rice, the W. C. T. U.'s symbol in Louisiana. A blue star for each member was placed on the heads of rice and silver stars will be added for new members. Green stars are placed for men, who are eligible only for honorary membership. Various symbols have been adopted by the W. C. T. U. in different states, Louisiana having adopted the bundle of rice.

Posters on prayer life were received and will be distributed to the different churches.

YOU DO NOT SEE WITH YOUR EYES

You see with your brains. If a fatigue sets a wall of failure to comprehend between the eyes and the mind, there is no sight. The matter of fatigue is what causes all eye discomfort. To merely "test sight" at a far point, when the great effort is at near point, is absurd.

Observing Lent

What place should the ancient church custom of Lent have in modern life? It is remarked that this custom originated in an age when there was a much greater tendency for people to retire to lives of severe asceticism. People of that type would feel that a period of withdrawal from ordinary worldly activities would bring human nature into a closer touch with spiritual realities.

Today we have gone on to a very practical age, when people demand that any religious custom justify itself by results achieved for humanity. But the same old faults that debased human life centuries ago still afflict us. There is the same selfish attitude, the same eager grasping for material things, the same disposition to ignore the true meaning of life.

As we hurry through this world, it is well to ask from time to time, what are we here for, and what are we expected to do, and what power placed us here? Lent offers answers to these questions. Not so many people now observe Lent by strenuous exercises of physical self-denial. But there are plenty of them who do feel it beneficial to make some personal sacrifice, who go slow on frivolous pursuits, who listen to spiritual voices. There is no doubt that such ones gain a benefit.

The present age overdoes the pursuit of pleasure and material satisfaction. It drives so hard that the mind and body are worn out before their time. A benefit is gained merely by slowing up on these pursuits, even if there were no spiritual stimulation. If, in addition, people seek help from sources of spiritual inspiration, there will be a double gain.

Lent offers an opportunity to take stock of life's privileges and responsibilities. It may well be an occasion for meditation and reflection, which today most human beings honor in the breach rather than the observance. Man's whole outlook would become more wholesome and satisfying if he would permit himself a season of quiet contemplation and introspection, coupled with spiritual communion, out of which he would emerge stronger and more vitally equipped to meet the problems which are his portion in the every-day working world.

WORK VERSUS MONEY

Eugene Grace, who drew down $3,669,000 in bonuses from the Bethlehem Steel company during the war years, tells the senators who are investigating the munitions business that to pay an industrialist an army officer's pay in wartime would just naturally disrupt everything.

"Greatest efficiency comes from having the individual interested in the results of the work he performs," he said, adding that nothing had ever been invented that would make men work as hard as the lure of money.

One wonders if Mr. Grace has not done himself and other industrialists an injustice. The army used some of our greatest industrialists in France during the war, giving them the pay and emoluments of colonels and brigadier generals, and got a tremendous amount of highly efficient work out of them.

It is a fairly safe bet that it would have got the same kind of service out of Mr. Grace himself. The challenge of the job itself can be a more potent incentive than the fattest of bonuses.

BRAKES ON HORN-TOOTER

Several months ago English authorities made the experiment of outlawing the use of automobile horns in the night time. The stunt has worked so well that they are now considering the advisability of prohibiting the use of such horns altogether, 24 hours a day.

The original idea was to permit tired citizens to get some sleep, undisturbed by the racket of ill-advised horn-tooters. Now the authorities believe that the disuse of horns promotes more careful driving, on the theory that the man who knows he can't toot at all will use his brakes a whole lot sooner than he would otherwise.

The idea has possibilities, and it is well worth a trial. It wouldn't be a bad stunt to get reckless motorists to rely on their brakes rather than on their horns, to keep from hitting people.

And what such a law would do to the half-wit who leans on his horn-button as soon as a driver two blocks ahead stalls his engine—well, it's just too lovely for words.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

THE SNOW MAN

There's a menacing man in the garden,
A man of great size
With two shining black eyes
And a fist like a battering ram.
He poises a cudgel above him
And I fear very much what he'd do
If he happened to see
A small person like me
Or even a big one, like you.

Whenever I open the window
For a breath of the keen winter air
I hope he'll be gone
From the shadowy lawn
But in vain, for he always is there.
He seems to hold something against me,
And I quickly return to my bed,
And often I find
That it eases my mind
To pull the clothes over my head.

But as soon as the dogwood trees blossom
And the lilacs burst forth one by one
And forget-me-nots gleam
By the side of the stream
As they search for their place in the sun,
The children, agog with excitement,
Will rush to their mother and cry:
"The robin and wren
Have come back home again,
And the snow man's gone back to the sky!"

Boosts Soldiers' Bonus!

By BRUCE CATTON

If the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars decide that enactment by congress of a bill for a cash bonus for war veterans is in the bag, now, as a result of the activities of the senate munitions committee, one can hardly blame them.

First of all, Eugene Grace testified. Mr. Grace drew down something like $3,000,000 in bonuses during the war period; but he thinks that workers in munitions plants in future wars should get a soldier's pay, he feels that it would be very unforutnate if the same rule were applied to executives, and he believes that the demand for the soldier's bonus now is "very unforunate."

Then the investigators began to get curious about the doings of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation, which operated during the war as a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel. During the war Charles Schwab, who held 37 per cent of all voting stock in Bethlehem Steel, was director general of the Emergency Fleet corporation, which was letting government shipbuilding contracts.

First they examined a war-time letter written by an admiral in the navy, charging that Bethlehem demanded high prices for its ships and refused to stand behind delivery dates.

Then they looked at a report from a special examiner for the Fleet corporation which asserted that the "enormous profits" made by Bethlehem showed that Bethlehem's contracts "were unconscionable and against public interest."

Next they dug into Fleet corporation records showing that while other ship-builders were averaging a profit of $10 a ton on ships built for the government, Bethlehem was making $49.50 for a profit of better than 20 per cent. Furthermore, the examiner pointed out that this 20 per cent profit was not profit on Bethlehem's invested funds, but on a cost that had to be financed by the Fleet corporation itself.

Now when you add all of this up you get a fairly ugly picture. It is the sort of picture which probably is unavoidable in war-time, unless some new and drastic method of controlling the munitions industry and its profits be adopted; but it does put the soldiers' bonus bill in a different light.

Meditating on Mr. Grace and his bonuses, and Mr. Schwab and his ships, it is a little hard to get very indignant over the question of a bonus for fighting men.

New Deal In Washington

Lobbyists Moan In Anguish At Belgian Tariff Treaty . . . Wallace Decides To Let Us Know The Worst . . . NRA Defeats Are Discounted.

By Rodney Dutcher
(World Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—When an administration bites a lobbyist, that's news.

This one sank its teeth into several lobbyists when it signed the new tariff treaty with Belgium. Their yelps of dismay coincide with astonished gasps from many cynics who had been saying that pressure had stymied Secretary of State Cordell Hull's dearly beloved program of reciprocal tariff treaties.

Tariff lobbyists who used to get their log-rolling done by congress must now vary their technique.

They begin, when suspecting that duties on certain foreign products are likely to be reduced by treaty with another nation in return for similar concessions, by spreading propaganda indicating that the entire duty will be removed—though law limits Roosevelt to a 50 per cent change.

Then they attempt to contact individuals in the state and commerce departments who are preparing the treaty. If they can establish social relations, so much the better.

If they haven't any channel into the White House, as some have, they try to get congressmen to take them there—as a California congressman recently took lobbyists for the wine industry who were worried over possible treaties with Italy and Spain.

Heavy Pressure Used

Heavy pressure came from the cement and glass industries prior to the Belgian treaty. They were represented by J. B. Colborn, former tariff commission lawyer, who is associated with a New York firm, one of whose partners was once a government lawyer handling customs cases.

Each country cut duties on about 50 of the other's commodities, including an American reduction of 33 1-3 per cent on plate glass, 25 per cent on cement, and 15 to 25 on certain steel products.

Thus the administration took a nibble at building materials industries accused of monopolistic prices. More than 90 per cent of domestic glass is controlled by two companies which export, but have always demanded a high duty.

You can expect to hear more frequent outcries in congress, inspired by lobbyists, which will be directed at the whole tariff treaty program, designed to stimulate American exports.

Wallace Tells The Worst

Last fall the AAA adopted a policy of suppressing forecasts by its economists as to forthcoming boosts in food prices as a result of drouth and AAA programs.

The idea was that such publicity would lead to price increases by middlemen and retailers before those increases would otherwise occur.

The policy was dropped when Secretary Wallace suddenly told correspondents that Louis Bean, his chief economist, had figured out that food prices would be 11 per cent higher in the first half of this year than the last half of last year, and 12 per cent in the following six months, with a 32 per cent boost for meat.

Abandonment of the old policy was haphazard. Bean's figures happened to be on Wallace's desk when the secretary didn't have much to tell a press conference. They had been prepared only for departmental circulation. It was as if Wallace had suddenly said to himself: "Oh, what the heck. Let 'em know the worst."

Somebody asked if he could suggest a cheap menu and Wallace suggested: "Every Wednesday, eat whatever you like."

But if you write the bureau of home economics in Wallace's department, it will send you some low-cost diets.

NRA Defeats Discounted

New Deal lawyers aren't especially worried by decisions of judges in Delaware and Kentucky that NIRA is unconstitutional because production is intrastate, rather than interstate, and hence can't be regulated by congress.

Is it fair to report now that department of justice attorneys had little hope of winning the Weirton case involving Section 7-a before Federal Judge Nields at Wilmington or the coal code case before Judge Dawson at Louisville.

They whispered all along that they were only building cases which would stand up on appeal, with the supreme court's ultimate attitude most in mind.

Federal lawyers by now have most federal judges classified as "pro-New Deal" and "anti-New Deal." In most cases they know who the politicians were who obtained their appointments and something about the forces behind these politicians.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

A SACK OF FLOUR COST $275,000.—In 1863, R. C. Gridley of Upper Austin, Nevada, wagered with Dr. Herrick, country official of Clifton, that the Democratic nominee for mayor would be elected. If Gridley lost he was to carry a sack of flour from Austin to Clifton to the tune of "John Brown." If he won, Dr. Herrick was to carry the sack from Clifton to Austin to the tune of "Dixie." The wager was won by Dr. Herrick and the loser carried the bag of flour as agreed. When he arrived, the winner decided to sell the flour at auction for the benefit of the sanitary commission, caring for wounded soldiers. The auction continued all over the Union and lasted many months until a total of $275,000 was realized and turned over to the sanitary commission.

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

By Alley

Lights Of New York

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—Miss Katharine Cornell has rung down the curtain on her production of "Romeo and Juliet" to the tune of paeans and bravos from the critics and practically everybody else—with only George Jean Nathan dissenting.

One of the things I like about Mr. Nathan, besides his taste in blondes, clothes and restaurants, is that he is so predictable. After reading what all the other critics have to say about something, one can be pretty sure to know where Mr. Nathan stands. On the other side of the fence.

I was hoping Mr. Nathan would pan William Shakespeare, but he contented himself with being dissatisfied with Katharine Cornell. As a matter of fact, I believe he likes Shakespeare, and in that opinion, consistently enough, he differs widely with the earliest critics of the drama.

Thomas Rymer, the first British reviewer, said Shakespeare's verse "corrupts our tastes and fills our heads with vanity, confusion, clatter and nonsense." Voltaire declared the bard had ruined the English theater, and that his plays were "monstrous farces called tragedies." Dr. Johnson said "Julius Caesar" was a cold tragedy, lacking the power to move the public. Dryden opined that the sonnets were "unintelligible and out of date"—in the seventeenth century. Lord Shaftesbury called Shakespeare "a wit out of fashion, with a rude and savage mind."

At Swords' Points

Mr. Nathan would have had fun if he'd lived 200 years ago, when Paris had a woman critic named Mlle. Maupin. Right in the middle of one play she borrowed a sword from a man sitting next to her, scrambled over the footlights, stabbed two actors who were particularly terrible, and chased the others off the stage while the audience cheered.

There's some point—as the actors discovered—in criticism as vigorous as that. These days we have such sorry spectacles as the retirement of Elmer Rice from the producing business just because the reviewers penned sour notices about his shows.

Putting On A Play

A man who owns a moving picture theater in an Ohio town has written in to ask how a producer goes about producing a play on Broadway. He doesn't say whether he has managerial aspirations, but if he has, I hope the following may help to deter him.

First one has to find a play. There are plenty of agents and eager authors with manuscripts, but the search for a likely one may go on for months. The next, and hardest, task, is to find a backer or backers. One successful revue appeared on Broadway last season only by the grace of 27 investors, including Mary Pickford. There are not many genuine "angels" left these days—men who'll finance a show just for the thrill of being in the business and for the privilege of loafing backstage.

Given the play and the money, a producer next must enlist his performers. If he's choosey, he can call up the casting agencies and state his requirements. If he isn't so particular, and wants to keep down the payroll, he can whisper to the first person he meets on Broadway that he's thinking of putting on a play. That will bring about 300 jobless actors into his office within the next 24 hours.

Paying The Pipers

After selecting the cast, a manager must post a bond with Actors' Equity covering two weeks' salary for every performer. The rules provide that any player can be dismissed without pay during the first week of rehearsals. After that he gets at least two weeks' pay. A director and a scenic designer have to be hired, and they're pretty expensive. Then a theater must be leased.

Stage hands are engaged, and the producer has nothing, to say about the number required. Even if the same set is used throughout the show, with nothing for the scene-shifters to do, a full crew must be hired to play pinochle in the wings. A press agent then is called in to send out notices to the drama editors.

Experienced producers also set aside a modest sum of emergency post mortem expenses. When a show closes, the scenery must be loaded by union stage hands and carted to a warehouse at a cost of $30 per truckload. After that there are fees to be paid to Mr. Patsy Cain, sexton of Broadway's most famous repository of dead dreams.

...Medica Taken To ...itarium; Condition Is Satisfactory

Despondent since the death of his wife about four months ago, John Medica, about 52 years of age, owner and operator of a general merchandise store at 3208 Jackson street, was found Saturday morning seated in his automobile near his wife's grave in the Catholic cemetery here, with an empty one-ounce bottle that had contained poison on the seat beside him, police said.

He was taken to St. Francis sanitarium, where his condition Saturday night was reported satisfactory. His physician said that if his condition continues favorable he will be removed to his home in four or five days.

Police who arrived at the cemetery before Medica was removed from the car reported that he was not slumped in the seat, but was sitting erect. In addition to the ounce poison bottle, a pint bottle of liquor with less than half of its contents gone, and a .32 caliber revolver were found on the seat, it was reported.

It was stated by one member of Medica's family that despondency arising from the death of his wife was the only motive that could be advanced for an attempt at suicide. His finances were said to be in a satisfactory state.

EVANGELIST

Methodists of West Monroe are planning for one of the biggest revivals in years when Dr. D. L. Coale, Los Angeles, Calif., evangelist (above) arrives here to begin a two weeks' revival at the First Methodist church of West Monroe, beginning next Sunday, Rev. Martin Hebert, pastor of the church, has announced.

Dr. Coale is one of the most noted evangelists on the Pacific coast, Rev. Hebert said, and the church is considered fortunate in being able to secure him for this revival. Dr. Coale is said to have met with unusual success in his evangelistic work throughout the country and the services here are expected to meet with equal enthusiasm.

Preparations for the revival have been under way for some time.

Business Men's Club Will Meet On Monday

The regular meeting of the Ouachita Business Men's club will be held Monday night at 7:30 o'clock at the parish courthouse, with the president, Albin P. Lassiter, presiding.

At the last regular meeting of the organization the following new members were inducted: George Trousdale, Warren Taylor, A. V. Breard, G. L. Dennis and Fred Hightower. It was said that many new members from among the leading young business and professional men will be welcomed at the meeting.

An interesting program has been arranged and the president is urging that all members be present.

FHA MEETING IS SCHEDULED HERE

Seven Parishes Will Be Represented At Conference March 21

A meeting of representatives from seven northeast Louisiana parishes in connection with the program of the federal housing administration will be held here Thursday, March 21, at 10 a. m. at the courthouse, it was learned Saturday from E. R. Strahan, Ouachita parish agricultural agent.

The meeting will be conducted by I. R. Bradshaw, of New Orleans, farm representative of the federal housing administration, who will begin Monday a series of similar meetings over the state.

Persons expected to attend the meeting here are parish agricultural and home demonstration agents, representatives of the ERA and possibly other representatives.

Parishes to be represented are Ouachita, Caldwell, Jackson, Lincoln, Morehouse, Richland and Union.

One of the important features of the meeting, it was announced, will be a discussion of how rural housing improvements may be made under the program of the federal housing administration. Mr. Bradshaw will make the discussion.

It was stated that under the program of the federal housing administration, it is possible for any responsible farm owner to apply to any bank or building and loan association or other institution approved by the federal housing administration for the purpose of borrowing up to $2,000 for improvements on any one piece of property.

Government information on the program said "If for any good reason a responsible farm owner would prefer to use his credit rather than his cash, the United States government will, in effect, endorse his paper, and thus make his loan application doubly welcome to the lender."

Following the meeting here, it is expected that detailed information will be made available to farmers in their respective parishes in this area.

Committee Is Chosen To Change Spillway Plans

TALLULAH, La., March 9.—(Special)—As the result of a meeting of representatives from the parishes of East Carroll, Madison, Tensas and Concordia called for discussion of the proposed Bayou Macon spillway, the fifth Louisiana levee board Thursday appointed a committee of three representatives from each of the parishes of this levee district to make changes in the plan of the spillway in order to adjust prevailing inequalities. The committee, which will meet March 15, is composed of J. Martin Hamley, Robert Nicholson and Dr Marie Long of East Carroll; J. B. Snyder, J. H. Baughman and J. H. Gilfoil, of Madison; Elliot Coleman, W. W. Burnside and Phillip Watson, of Tensas, and Dick Wilds, G. P. Bullis and Judge John Dale of Concordia.

A STAMPING CORNER

By W. J. KIRBY

"We hold a vaster Empire than has been."

So reads the inscription on one of Canada's stamps issued in 1897, which shows Great Britain and its possessions in red upon a map of the world. And some one has made the remark that "the sun never sets on the British Empire." Daniel Webster, in speaking of the valor of the American patriots during the Revolution, said, "They raised their flag against a power, to which, for purposes of foreign conquest and subjugation, Rome, in the height of her glory, is not to be compared; a power which has dotted over the surface of the globe with her possessions and military posts * * * "

Be that as it may, the more than 150 colonies, protectorates and dominions of the British Empire have issued stamps that can be made to form one of the most interesting collections imaginable. More collectors specialize in British Colonies than in any other country or group of countries, while British Colonies remain within the reach of the beginning collector who can only spend a few cents each week in building his collection.

In this column, during the past few weeks, we have discussed a few of the new issues of various colonies, and shall mention a few others at this time.

One of the newest and most extensive sets issued by a British colony, is a series of thirteen stamps recently issued for British Guiana, a colony in South America. The one cent this issue pictures an agricultural scene, "Plowing a Rice Field." The two cent pictures an Indian shooting fish with a bow and arrow. The three cent bears a scene from the mining country.

The four cent, as well as the fifty cent, shows Kaieteur Falls. The six cent shows a log rafting scene on a river. Georgetown, the capital, is shown on the twelve cent. The twenty-four cent pictures a string of barges loaded with sugar cane, while the forty-eight cent shows a road in a forest. The sixty cent pictures lilies afloat on a lake, and Mr. Roraima appears on the seventy-two cent. Sir Walter Raleigh, familiar to every student of American history, is pictured with his little son on the ninety-six cent; Raleigh explored British Guiana for his king. The highest value of the set, the $1.00, pictures a portion of the Botanical Gardens at Georgetown. A portrait of King George appears on a small medallion on eight of the thirteen varieties.

The three colonies of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika have been combined for a unified issue of stamps, and a set of fourteen denominations has been ordered. There are to be seven designs, but which design on what denomination has not been announced. The designs comprise a portrait of the king, on a medallion, together with naive scentss, et.,—Kavirondo birds, and how on Lake Victoria, silhoutte of a lion, view off Mt. Kilimanjaro, the Jinga bridge by the Ripon Falls, Mt. Kenya and Lake Naviasha. The design will bear the name of the three colonies—"Uganda" at the top, "Kenya" vertically at the right, and "Tanganyika" at the bottom.

Designs for the new mandated territory of Western Samoa have been approved, and the stamps will probably have made their appearance before this is printed. The designs, typical of the territory, are: 1 p., a portion of the water front at Apia, the capital; 2 1-2 p., a native couple in native dress before their home; 4p., a native canoe and house; 6p., a view of Vailima; 1 shilling, a view of Stevenson's tomb, situated at the top of Vaca Hill.

Another attractive set of British colonial stamps is the New Delhi commemmorative set from India, issued about four years ago. This was India's first commemmorative series of stamps, and one of the most beautiful. The designs are as follows: 1-4 anna, olive green with a picture of the War Memorial, inset in purple; 1 anna, chocolate brown with a picture of the council house, inset in pink; 2 annas, blue with a picture of green; 3 annas, claret in color, with the Viceroy's House, inset in olive-a picture of the Secretariat building, inset in light chocolate; 1 rupee, light purple, with picture of the Dominion columns, inset in green. The "inset" is a small medallion, bearing a picture of King George.

Lack of space forbids our describing in detail more of the many beautiful British Colonial stamps issued during the past few yearss. However practically any stamp dealer will be a selection of these on approval. Once you view a beautiful collection of these it will be hard—if possible—for you to resist their charm.

OFFICERS TO MEET

Reserve officers of this area, at a meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Monroe city court room, will continue their study of "Aerial Photography Reading." First Lieutenant Henry W. Page will be in charge of the study.

In recent years, more than 12,000,000 acres of forest land in the United States has reverted to public ownership through tax delinquency.

policemen. First reports said they escaped injury.

Ten minutes before the heavy shooting at Cabana and La Punta, two American passenger ships left the harbor. They were the Grace liner Santa Rosa and the Ward liner Oriente. Had they passed Cabana a little later they would have been in direct line of the fire.

Except for the soldiers and sailors in the two fortresses and a few persons caught by the sudden outburst, there was no sign of life for blocks around the danger zone.

Street lights were extinguished by soldiers and sailors in order to give the searchlights a better chance to pick out snipers.

A few blocks away, in the area darkened by the earlier breaking of power lines, excitement ran high.

In the main shopping area, still with lights, traffic was jammed as police and soldiers searched automobiles. Motorists, anxious to get to their homes, cursed and pleaded for an opening.

HAVANA, March 9.—(AP)—Cuba, her constitution suspended, was under military rule if not martial law tonight as the government and the army fought to terminate nation-wide revolutionary strikes.

An emergency session of the cabinet and council of state early today suspended the constitution and substituted an "eight-point program of government," startling Cubans into realization of the administration's determination to combat strikers menacing its authority.

The question as to whether President Carlos Mendieta had really instituted dictatorship in mild form was the absorbing topic of discussion, but the discussion perforce was confined to small groups.

Jose Pedrana, appointed military governor of Havana province, where the strikes center, acted immediately to put an end to "street corner politics," prohibiting the "public assembly of more than two persons."

The 31-year-old military governor's order was directed at the clusters of Cubans usually found talking politics in cafes and bars and at street corners, and it was more drastic by one person than the famous "public assembly" law issued in the closing months of President Gerardo Machado's regime, overthrown by revolution in 1933. Machado's law limited groups to three.

A few employes of the interior department joined the strike movement sweeping the island, which has affected all but two government departments and threatens to spread through street car workers to the island's two biggest labor unions.

Employes of the British-owned United railroads announced plans to strike at midnight, tying up the main lines between the capital and Cuba's second city, Santiago, at the other end of the island. Otherwise the strike situation was unchanged with nearly 400,000 teachers and students still out of classrooms.

The early hours saw renewal of terrorism that has marked the latter phases of the strike. Ten bombs exploded in Havana, three in omnibuses, wounding four passengers, and three at water mains. Fire bombs were thrown into six street cars operated by strike-breakers. A policeman was wounded in one of several shooting affrays.

Among 50 persons arrested for alleged incitation to an illicit strike was Dr. Joaquin del Rio Balmaseda, secretary of justice under former President Ramon Grau San Martin.

Evidence of the government's intention to fight the spreading strike with every weapon at its command was the statement of Col. Fulgencio Batista, army commonder-in-chief that "the armed forces will back the government" in that purpose. He declared all striking government workers would be barred from further employ regardless of the outcome of the strike.

Later in the day military supervisors were named for all other provinces and designated military governors.

STARVED CATTLE WIN $500,000 PLEA

The pitiful spectacle of a starving horse and a dying cow at the door of Minnesota's statehouse spurred action by the legislature after pleas of 50,000 desperate farmers had failed to bring relief. The senate voted $500,000 to feed the state's starving livestock. This picture shows the scene that met the eyes of legislators on the statehouse steps.

of Wisconsin) on the committee, who held Long had not made a prima facie case but nevertheless an investigation should be made in view of the grave charges and the suspicion aroused in the public mind.

McKellar and others thought a majority could easily be found in favor of dropping the matter for good and all.

But Long said there would be "a lot of discussion of it" nevertheless in the next few days, indicating that he was still ready for action despite his strenuous week.

He started the verbal wars with an attack on General Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA head, after the latter had dubbed him and Father Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, the "mad Pied Pipers."

This brought stinging rebuke from Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, who said the time had arrived when Long should be "put in his place" in a senate composed "for the most part of gentlemen."

Long struck back, threatening again to campaign against Robinson who is up for reelection next year. He also extended the same threat to Senator Bailey of North Carolina who had asserted he would "not believe anything the senator from Louisiana said."

The "Kingfish" supplemented his charges against Farley and five days of debate behind closed doors the postoffice committee brought in a majority report against an investigation.

Long then took the air to broadcast a 45-minute reply to Johnson.

Whether the break between Long and the Roosevelt administration will lead to a third party is one of the questions that the Democrats, the Republicans and everybody else concerned is wondering about.

2 Peruvian Submarines Reported In Distress

MOBILE, Ala., March 9.—(AP)—Two submarines of the Peruvian navy were reported in distress late today in a storm 330 miles south of Cape Hatteras, the United States coast guard headquarters here learned. The submarines, the R-1 and R-2, in condition of disrepair, were en route to New London, Conn., where they were built, for repairs, it was understood.

Two coast guard cutters, the Yamacraw, Savannah, and the Agassiz, Fernandina, are speeding to the scene.

rol officers driving up the street towards Five Points and Officer Burns approaching on foot from the opposite direction. He made no attempt to escape.

Taken to the Mullen home, Dean was identified as the man who committed the robbery.

Dean has a criminal record which dates back to his juvenile years, it was stated. He was sentenced to serve a term in the federal reformatory at Washington, D. C., for a violation of the Dyer act, which covers the transportation of stolen automobiles from one state to another. He was paroled and the period of his parole was scheduled to end next November, police reported.

In West Monroe, last December 1, West Monroe police arrested Dean for entering and ransacking the home of R. P. Lee at Third and Mill streets. He had in his possession articles said to have been stolen in robberies of Monroe homes. He was given a preliminary hearing in district court, but was released.

LADIES ONLY

No Men To Have Offices In Big Danish Community Building

COPENHAGEN, March 9.—(AP)—A building in which the feminine mind is to rule completely, and where men may do well to tread softly and say little, is planned for construction here during the coming year.

The project is to include store and office space, restaurants, apartments and a hotel—but only women doctors, women dentists, women lawyers, women shopkeepers, and the like, are to occupy the building.

There will be no rule, however, against men being customers and patients.

The idea of this "House of Women" dates back 40 years to one Mrs. Emma Gad, a well known Copenhagen clubwoman. Plans for its construction fell through several times, but the lots now have been purchased. Building costs will be approximately 1,000,000 kronor (about $250,000).

To start things off right a woman architect will design the building.

The superintendent for Sullivan, Long and Haggerty of Bessemer, Ala., contractor for extending and widening Louisville avenue to connect with the Dixie-Overland highway near the intersection with the Sterlington highway, has also arrived in Monroe and expects to be ready to start work as soon as a work order has been received. This is an extensive job and probably as many as 200 days will be required to complete it, it was said. This firm also contacted the employment service office here.

A work order has been received for the overpass at Sicard, contract for which was let to Robinson and Young of Baton Rouge, and preliminary work has been started. This includes such tasks as erecting small buildings for offices and tool houses. Actual construction work has been delayed somewhat by the necessity of laying out new lines.

Concrete work on the bridge, which is being done by the Central Construction company of Monroe, has been delayed somewhat during the last week by frequent rains, but some progress was made, including the pouring of concrete for the abutment on the west side.

...Art-Warner Line Has ...table Opening At Monroe Furniture Co.

Seventy-five dealers and salesmen attended Monroe Furniture company's second annual refrigeration show and sales school held here last Sunday, at which the 1935 line was presented by Stewart-Warner factory officials. Features of the meeting included talks by Monroe Furniture company executives, factory representatives and retail salesmen from various parts of the state.

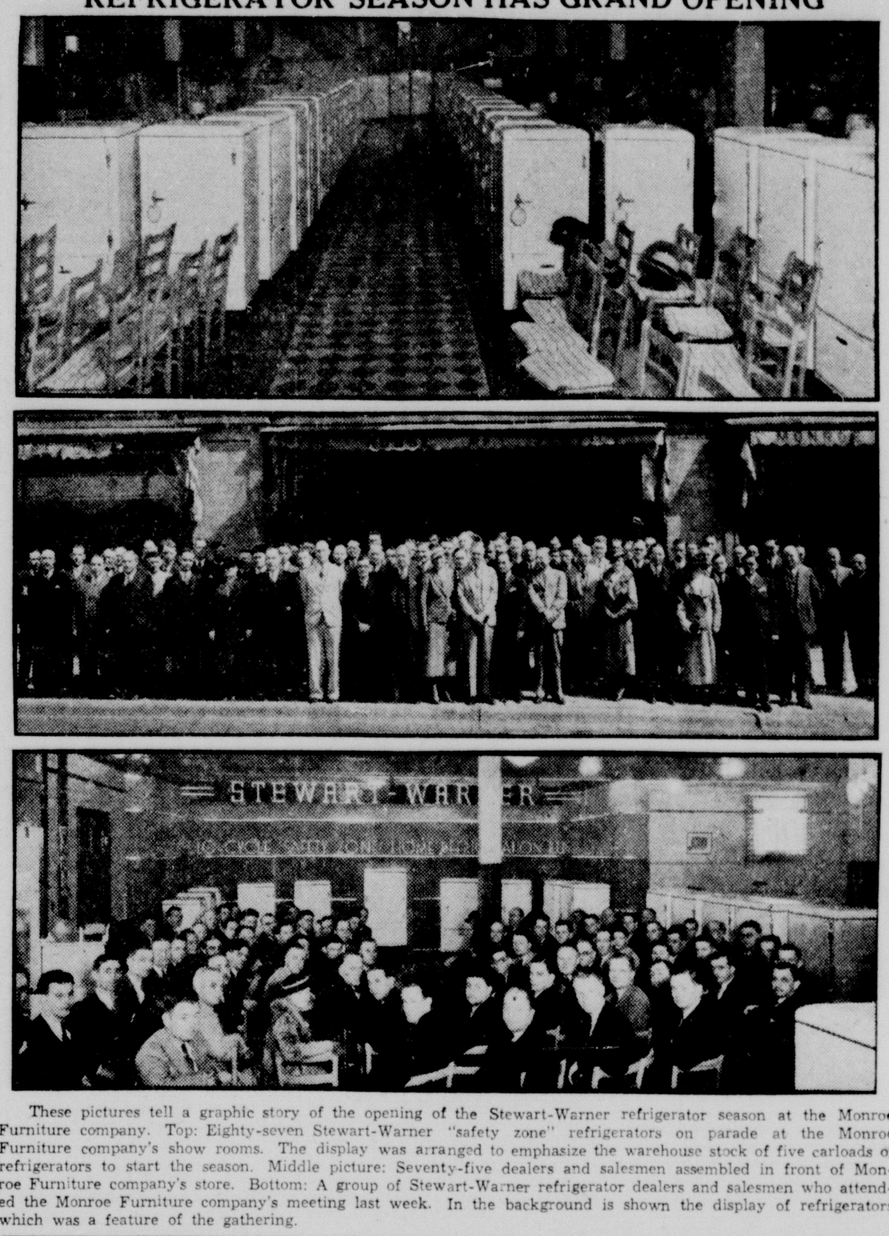

The presentation of the 1935 line showed no basic changes in operating principles from the highly successful 1934 line, a fact Stewart-Warner officials attributed to hundreds of distributors' and dealers' requests of "don't change it." Improvements were made in appearance of the lower priced models by the addition of modern black bases. Additional insulation features were included in all models. Three entirely new models in the lower price brackets were shown.

Chief topic of the day was the unusual operating economy of Stewart-Warner 'Safety Zone' refrigeration, said my factory officials to be setting new low records the nation over. Asked to explain 'Safety Zone,' F. M. Cole, local refrigeration manager, said in part:

"Stewart-Warner has built this new type electric refrigerator to maintain accurately the accepted safety zone temperature—42 to 45 degrees F. Every detail of its construction contributes its share to this achievement. In cabinets of sparkling beauty Stewart-Warner has built the strength, durability and efficiency that 'Safety Zone' refrigeration demands. The finest insulation material aids the quiet, dependable, slo-cycle Stewart-Warner mechanism to maintain safety ...one temperature with a minimum of ...urrent. The door has an air-tight ...l which prevents air from seeping ...de. The glistening, seamless porce... interior is designed, and the chil...g unit so placed that air circulation is continuous . . . positive. And an advanced principle of automatic cold control keeps the safety zone temperature at consistent low cost."

For the occasion, Monroe Furniture company showed a floor display of 87 Stewart-Warner refrigerators taken from a warehouse stock of five carloads. "Additional orders are on file at the Stewart-Warner factory to take care of the enormous demand we anticipate for 'Safety Zone' refrigerators this year," Joe Isaacman, manager of Monroe Furniture company, stated.

REFRIGERATOR SEASON HAS GRAND OPENING

These pictures tell a graphic story of the opening of the Stewart-Warner refrigerator season at the Monroe Furniture company. Top: Eighty-seven Stewart-Warner "safety zone" refrigerators on parade at the Monroe Furniture company's show rooms. The display was arranged to emphasize the warehouse stock of five carloads of refrigerators to start the season. Middle picture: Seventy-five dealers and salesmen assembled in front of Monroe Furniture company's store. Bottom: A group of Stewart-Warner refrigerator dealers and salesmen who attended the Monroe Furniture company's meeting last week. In the background is shown the display of refrigerators which was a feature of the gathering.

"Teaching Primaries in the Church" will be in charge of Mrs. W. F. O'Kelley, of Minden. "The New Testament Church" will be directed by Rev. Holloway.

Drinking Fountains Built On Ouachita Parish Roads

As a part of the program to provide the highways of Louisiana with more conveniences, as well as to beautify them, drinking fountains are being installed at a number of places along the highways in Ouachita parish, T. Slack, landscape engineer with the Louisiana state highway commission, said here Saturday. The fountains are being installed in connection with a beautification program in Ouachita and other parishes throughout the state.

W. H. Huckaby, district maintenance superintendent for the highway department, has had direct supervision of the work in this section, under the general supervision of Mr. Slack, who has charge of the work throughout the state.

This work, as well as that of the general highway beautification program, in which trees and shrubs are being set out in large quantities, is being done with ERA labor. Mr. Slack said that workmen, under the direction of Mr. Huckaby, had planted between 3,000 and 4,000 trees along the highways in this parish and that similar work was being carried on in other parishes of the state, with about 25 ERA crews at work.

One of the drinking fountains has been placed on highway 80, near the Stubbs place, east of Monroe, anothers is under construction at the junction of the Sterlington and Bastrop highways, another has been built on the Winnsboro highway, about seven miles from Monroe, and another will be started within the next few days on the Columbia highway, about 15 miles south of Monroe.

Mr. Slack said that observation has shown that the fountains prove a great convenience for motorists and that the number that stop to drink water and fill their motors is remarkable.

Every effort is being made to make the fountains as attractive as possible, Mr. Slack said. Shrubs at the fountains will be protected from cattle either by ornamental fences or guards.

At a number of suitable places at which easements on property adjoining the highways can be obtained small parks are being constructed, Mr. Slack said. Two of these parks are being built on the Sherrouse and Parker property east of Monroe. Stumps have been grubbed up and more than a carload of shrubs has been put out and others will be put out later. Ground will be sodded and pathways will be laid out, thus creating beautiful small parks along the bayou.

INCREASE SIZE OF HASLEY CEMETERY

Through the purchase of 28 acres of land from Herman McGuire, the city of West Monroe has materially enlarged Hasley cemetery. The newly acquired land lies immediately east of the present burial park and will be made available for use within the near future, it was said.

Additional land was purchased because only a few unsold lots remained in the cemetery, and it appeared certain that it would soon be inadequate.

Easy terms of payment were offered by Mr. McGuire and for this reason it was decided advisable to buy at once. Under the terms of the contract, the city will obtain possession of the land immediately, but the first payment on the purchase price of $7,500 will not become due until 10 years after date of purchase, but may be paid at any time. The debt will bear interest at the rate of six per cent a year, payable semi-annually. It is also specified in the contract that all money received from the sale of lots must be paid to Mr. McGuire, to be applied on the purchase price.

ELECTRIC POWER RATES LOWERED

Gulf Public Service Firm Agrees To Adjust Winnfield Scale

WINNFIELD, La., March 9.—(Special)—Following a lengthy conference between Harvey G. Fields, public service commissioner designated to represent the citizens and municipality of Winnfield against the Gulf Public Service company involving a moderation of electric rates, and officials of the Gulf company, it was announced here that the electric company had advised the commissioner that it would adjust and reduce the prevailing rates.

The rates as agreed upon between the company and the municipality were announced by Mr. Fields as follows:

Residential rates on the first 50 kwh were reduced from 12 cents to 11 cents; the next 70 kwh was reduced from 11 cents to 7 cents and all excess was reduced to 4 cents, giving a reduction of approximately $845 per month to the consumers based on the last 12 months' charges.

The residential combination service for refrigeration, heating and lighting was reduced from 12 cents on the first 30 kwh to 11 cents; the next 170 kwh was reduced to 4 cents; the next 100 kwh to 2 cents and all excess was reduced to 1 1-2 cents. This represents one of the lowest rates in the state for a city the size of Winnfield and the total reduction of about $758 per month is represented.

The commercial lighting rate was reduced on the first 50 kwh to 9 cents; on the next 50 kwh to 10 cents; the next 100 kwh to 9 cents; and all other to 5 cents, making a reduction of approximately $823 per month.

The minimum charge was reduced from $1.50 to $1 per month. The total reduction on commercial ratings was estimated at $24,026, while the reduction in the minimum rate amounts to about $1,000.

JURY MAY GET CASE BY MONDAY NIGHT

LAUREL, Miss., March 9.—(AP)—The fate of Ouida Keeton, 33-year-old Laurel woman charged with the "murder" of her mother, Mrs. Daisy Keeton, 52, is expected to be in the hands of a jury of 12 Jones county farmers Monday night.

Hearing of testimony in the case, the Laurel "legs murder mystery," was completed at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and Presiding Judge W. Joe Pack directed the attorneys representing the state and the defense to prepare their instructions to the jury and submit them to him for approval by Sunday at noon.

The testimony revealed by the state that the defendant is a woman of some means, that she has to her credit in a local bank, in two savings accounts, a cash balance of $19,983; that up until the beginning of her trial, she checked out varying sums of money from both of these accounts, signing checks from her hospital bed, where she has been confined when not in the courtroom in a wheel chair.

At the beginning of the trial, attorneys for the bank advised the institution to discontinue cashing her checks without the "endorsement of her heirs-at-law," it was shown on cross examination of state witnesses.

A chancery court record book was introduced by a clerk to show that Ouida, on February 9, 1935, signed a deed conveying residential property to her niece, Maude Louis McRae. The deed was acknowledged before a notary public, Miss Maud Reed, who testified that Ouida signed it in the hospital in the presence of her brother, Earl Keeton, and her brother-in-law, David McRae.

The state introduced records of the tax collector's office to show that on February 1, 1935, Ouida signed two checks in payment of taxes on property she owns in Laurel. Miss Thelma Valentine, a deputy in the sheriff's office, identified the tax receipts.

H. R. Robinson, a court attendant who aids daily in escorting Ouida to and from the hospital to the courthouse, testified for the state in rebuttal, that the "defendant acts much differently on the outside." He said her demeanor changes almost immediately after leaving the courtroom, that "she drinks a soft drink as good as you or I."

OUR BOARDING HOUSE —By Ahern

Far From Maddening Crowd

Tiny 'Republic' Off Maine's Coast Avoids 'Strife'

BRISTOL, Maine, March 9.—(AP)—Life on Loud's island is easy and informal. The bustle of world affairs does not affect it. Loud's island is literally "off the map."

For some inexplicable reason, a government survey of this section of Maine failed to include the body of land, three miles long and a mile wide, lying off the coast of Bristol in Muscongus bay. Loud's island is virtually a republic in its own right.

Inhabited since 1650, the island has a tradition that Samoset, the Indian chieftain who gave the first land deed in New England to white men, lived on its confines, and was buried there.

Loud's island has not felt the pinch of economic depression.

"Thunderation!" said one inhabitant. "We ain't never had any prosperity, so how'n tarnation can we have depression?"

Still, its homes are well kept and attractive. A free library is provided in its schoolhouse. Religious services are held when a missionary boat sails up the coast.

Its residents are like a large family, many of them closely related. Doors are never locked. About 80 people reside on the island and get their sustenance from the sea. Fishing is the main business of the menfolk, and most of that is for lobsters, although some trawling and seining is done. Only two men maintain farming activities of any consequence.

Neither a plantation nor a town, Loud's island has no real government. Matters of public interest are discussed at a public meeting in the schoolhouse. A moderator, elected by vote, conducts all business and decisions are backed by the community as if they were state laws.

For years, the island's school was supported by a state contribution of 40 cents a pupil, the residents assuming the remaining expense. In recent years, however, the state has borne the entire charge.

During the Civil war, Bristol sought to include the island as part of the town and forcibly seize nine men named in the war draft to serve the colors. But when a recruiting officer landed on the island, the entire population, armed and resistant, threatened to start a war itself.

Although they declined to be drafted, the Muscongus menfolk decided to do their part. They organized a draft of their own, and each man drafted paid $300 for a substitute on the mainland to "help lick the rebels."

CHARLESTON, S. C.—(AP)—T. P. Crawford's 108-year-old clock has just gone to the watchmaker's shop for its first repairs. Undersea Volcano Reported By Ship

HONGKONG, March 9.(AP)—A spectacle seldom witnessed by man—the eruption of a subterranean volcano—was reported seen by the officers and crew of the French steamship, Kumsang, while traveling between Indo-China and this port.

"It was a terrifying sight," J. Fant, the chief officer said. "The whole of the sea between the Japanese islands of Takesima and Iosima seemed to be a mass of boiling water. The ocean belched huge clouds of black smoke which seemed to reach for miles into the sky. Three water-spouts, each about 100 feet high, formed while we watched.

"Fortunately, we were several miles off when the eruption broke. Any ship caught in that boiling sea would have been doomed."

Fant said that pieces of pumice-stone evidentally hurled forth by the submarine volcano, were found in the water 12 miles from the scene of the eruption.

...l Business Joins Oth...s In Conducting Education Drive

The Surebest Bakery, Inc., located at the corner of Layton avenue and South Fifth street, is one of the group of leading bakery concerns of Monroe that is conducting an educational campaign through the advertising columns of the Morning World and News-Star.

Surebest bread, the product of this corporation, is made in one of the most up-to-date plants in Louisiana. The plant was completely remodeled and repainted about four weeks ago.

Light and sunshine passing through an extensive area of window panes flood the plant where the wholesome Surebest bread is made. Commenting upon this window space, Charles P. Brogan, manager of the bakery, said he never realized that there were so many windows, doors, skylights and transoms at the plant until the work of scraping the stray drops of fresh paint from the glass was started. By actual count, it was found that 494 separate panes admit sunshine to the plant.

A visit to the plant provides a revelation of scrupulous cleanliness which safeguards the purity of Surebest bread, and also reveals a ...ing staff of high caliber and ...ficiency.

The Surebest Bakery is owned and operated by Monroe men, Mr. Brogan, J. Lacara and A. P. Colvin, and is performing an important function in making Monroe and northeast Louisiana a more healthful area in which to live.

Recognizing the fact that the average person desires a variety of foods, the Surebest Bakery makes more kinds of bread than any other bakery in northeast Louisiana, Mr. Brogan said.

The equivalent of two gallons of milk is used to each 100 pounds of flour in the making of Surebest bread, the fact being one of the most important reasons why this bread has won wide popularity with housewives.

Dietitians will agree, Mr. Brogan said, that Surebest bread constitutes a balanced food for the making of beautiful bodies and the strong, healthy development of children, because all necessary vitamins are contained in Surebest bread.

three bath rooms, would require about fifteen thousand dollars.

These are not times in which any "tribune of the people" should indulge in cheese-paring, especially as it costs so little to give on the air.

AS SENATOR LONG pointed out his plan to give each one of twenty-five million American families, five thousand dollars for a home would cost ONLY ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND MILLIONS OF DOLLARS. He seemed to think that the world should feel astounded by his moderate declaration. Exactly WHO would contribute the one hundred and twenty-five thousand million dollars is not clearly explained.

WE ARE LIVING in generous and interesting times. It is to be hoped that the innumerable promises, whether they total one hundred and twenty-five thousand millions, or as was at first supposed three hundred and seventy-five thousand millions as a gift to the people, will not cause anybody to suppose that it is a waste of valuable time to do any work for yourself.

THE PUBLIC will be glad to hear that Senator Huey Long is not one of the prosperous that would give you a library with no books in it, or to give a poor man a knife and fork, with nothing to eat.

Having given each one of twenty-five million families a five thousand dollar house, automobile and furniture included, the senator will see to it that each of these twenty-five million families has an income not smaller than two thousand five hundred dollars a year. The twenty-five million little houses will cost one hundred and twenty-five thousand million dollars, the twenty-five hundred dollars a year to reach the twenty-five million families would cost half that amount, or sixty-two thousand five hundred million dollars a year, every year.

IT SEEMS STRANGE that nobody ever thought of all this before. So, also it seems strange to us as we see the magicians take white rabbits out of silk hats, that men did not always hire magicians to attend to the rabbit supply, instead of going out in the woods and walking all day to shoot one rabbit.

VETERAN RAILWAY MAN LAID TO REST

Last Rites Held For Robert B. Chapman, Formerly Of Monroe

Robert B. Chapman, 79, railroad conductor who was the first depot agent of the old V. S. & P. railroad at Monroe and who was said to be the first regular passenger train conductor of the line after the steel rails had been laid in the march of progress in north Louisiana from Vicksburg to Shreveport, died early Friday morning at Vicksburg. His funeral was held there Saturday morning with several Monroe residents attending the services.

Mr. Chapman was one of a fast waning type of men, whose life was identified with the early development of railroads in north Louisiana and who dedicated nearly all of his working years to the service of railroad transportation.

Most of his 51 years with the V. S. & P. railroad were served in the capacity of passenger engineer on trains operating between Vicksburg and Shreveport. It was said of him that in performing his duties, he was never so busy that he could not serve his passengers in any way requested, and that no matter what difficulties might arise in the course of a run, he always had a pleasant smile and greeting for his passengers.

As a young man, Mr. Chapman became passenger agent of the V. S. & P. railroad at Tallulah when the rails were extended there from Vicksburg. Later, when the rails reached Monroe, he was made passenger agent here. Still later, when the laying of rails to Shreveport was completed, he became the conductor of the first regular passenger train operating over the entire line, it was reported.

In 1926, when the V. S. & P. railroad was taken over by the Illinois Central railroad, Mr. Chapman was retired.

He spent his last years at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Ethel Long of Vicksburg. He is also survived by a granddaughter, Mrs. Russel Stewart of Vicksburg, and nieces and nephews in California and Mississippi.

His funeral was held at the Trinity Episcopal church. Rites of the Masonic order were held at the grave.

Monroe residents who attended the services were Mrs. A. L. Harrington, Mrs. E. S. Eby, Mrs. Bert Williams and Mrs. Kate McClain. Two Shreveport residents, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Scarborough, also attended the services. They were guests at the Harrington home here Friday night.

Last Rites For Veteran Minister Planned Today

JACKSON, La., March 9.—(AP)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for the late Dr. C. C. Miller, former president of Centenary college at Shreveport, who died Friday afternoon at the age of 74.

Prominent as a Methodist minister and presiding elder from 1908 until the time of his death, he was the son of the founder of Centenary college.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter, a son, a half-sister and seven grandchildren.

COTTON MARKET HAS BUSY DAY

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—(AP)—The cotton market today shook off the lethargy that has dominated it for many weeks and at the end of one of the busiest short sessions in some time, futures were down from 15 to 24 points.

Opening in a calm manner, with prices at or within a point or two of the previous close, selling orders began pouring into the market from Liverpool and the continent and prices were forced down.

October, which closed at 11.94 cents a pound represented a decline of $1.20 a bale, while December at 12.00 cents, May at 12.13-14 and March at 12.30 bid also showed sizeable losses.

Foreign liquidation was attributed to two factors. One was the growing belief that there would be no new loan to farmers on this year's crop and the other was the report that the tenant and share cropper may be eliminated from the Bankhead restriction bill.

With these dull factors interpreted abroad as bearish, Europe began to unload American cotton.

MULE FEEDING

From Bulletin Delta Experiment Station, Stoneville, Miss. November, 1933

"The Delta grows much more feed in its cotton seed than it has ever dreamed; but it needs, desperately, to learn, economically, to use its cotton seed products. For five years the Delta Station has used available facilities to determine, through experiment and observation, economical and safe Delta mule feeding practices. The suggestions given are based on these experiments and observations."

"From April 2 to August 2, 1932, six 1,200 lb. Delta Station mules ate 4.5 lbs. of cotton seed meal, 4 lbs. of corn and 15 lbs. of hay each daily. From May until August, 1933, six 1,300 lb. mules ate 6 lbs. of cotton seed cake (or meal), 5.2 lbs. of corn and 16-17 lbs. of hay each daily, and came through the test in 'good fix.' Since 'lay by time' Station mules have had nothing but sagrain (pasture or green feed) and cotton seed cake (or meal). They are all fat and will have no other grain than cotton seed cake (or meal) until March."

"Delta workstock are not more than 60% as efficient as they would be if properly fed and otherwise cared for. Said another way, proper feeding would mean as much as adding 50,000 mules to the Delta's present supply. Proper feeding is cheap compared to losses from working mules unable to 'make a day' or do good work."

"Economy and proper feeding demand the use of cotton seed cake (or meal) in feeding all Delta mules and the use of some cotton seed hulls in feeding those for which abundant hay is not grown."

"The Delta (and other Southern areas having insufficient other grain) should winter and fatten its mules on cotton seed cake (or meal) and hay for four reasons: 1. A pound of cotton seed cake (or meal) is worth as much as mule feed as 2 lbs. of corn or oats. 2. A dollar spent for cotton seed cake (or meal) now buys as much feeding value as $2.50 spent for corn or $3.50 to $4.00 for oats. 3. Using cotton seed cake (or meal) consistently from year to year might raise the price of seed. Available corn, oats, etc., can and should be saved for the 4 months of very hard spring and summer work when a half ration of other grain than cotton seed cake (or meal) may be (now appears to be) necessary."

"Many planters hesitate to feed cotton seed hulls to mules. The Delta feed situation is little better than in 1930-31 when thousands of Delta mules had practically nothing but cotton seed hulls and meal. Cattle feeding tests show cotton seed hulls to be worth as much or more than Prairie and other low-grade non-legume hays. If roughage must be bought, Delta mules can safely and economically consume reasonable amounts of properly supplemented cotton seed hulls."

"Grinding corn or chopping roughage are, doubtfully, economical unless equipment is already installed. Waste is minimized and mixing with cotton seed meal or other feeds is facilitated, however."

SUGGESTED RATIONS

"FOR IDLE MULES. If plenty of home-grown hay is available for a year, feed 1¼ lbs. of hay daily per 100 lbs. live weight (figured when mules are in good condition) and cotton seed cake (or meal) ad libitum—(all mules w... ...)"

"If any hay must be bought, use ½ lb. ... live weight and a mixture of 200 lbs. cotton seed hulls and 100 lbs. cotton seed m...

"If all feed must be bought, 1-4 to 1-3 lb. g... ... 100 lbs. live weight daily and a mixture of 300 lbs. cotton seed hulls and 100 lbs. cot... ...d meal, ad libitum. If mules do not fatten, add 1 to 2 gallons of blackstrap to 400 lbs. of the ...otton seed hulls-meal mixture. When mules must do winter work, feed 3 to 6 lbs. (depending upon the class of work) of other grain per head daily in addition to the idle ration."

"FOR WORK MULES. With plenty of hay available: 1¼ lbs. of hay and ½ lb. of corn or oats daily per 100 lbs. live weight—cotton seed cake (or meal), ad libitum."

"If any hay must be bought: ¾ lbs. of good hay and ½ lb. of corn or oats daily per 100 lbs. live weight—a mixture of 500 lbs. cotton seed meal, ad libitum. ½ gallon of blackstrap per 100 lbs. of the cotton seed hulls-meal mixture will make it more palatable."

RELATIVE VALUES

Corn at $1.00 per bu. (56 lbs.) is $35.70 per ton. One (1) pound of cotton seed meal is equivalent to two (2) pounds corn in mule and horse rations, giving a relative, potential value of $71.40 per ton to cotton seed meal.

Oats at 80c per bushel (32 lbs.) is equivalent to $50.00 per ton. Since one (1) pound of cotton seed meal equals, as feed, two (2) pounds of oats, cotton seed meal has a relative feeding value of $100.00 per ton.

SOCIETY

BY EVE BRADFORD

MARCH, with her sleets, warm, sunny days, tears, smiles, sudden anger and hot passionate longing for summer sun, is racing by, and with every breath we take we realize more and more that all our hates, loves, passions, moods, blood, sinew and spirit come to us from mother earth . . . everything is rushing wildly, joyously at the coming spring, and a fierce, ferocious longing surges in everything that lives . . . somewhere a fairy choir of tree cardinals rings a deep-toned bell in the center of our being . . . little Marguerite Richards knows that the cardinal outside her window sings "Marguerite—Marguerite" . . She told us the other day that she heard it singing her name and called to it to wait for her but before she could get outside it had flown away. . . . Life has nothing greater to offer just now than the promise of green fields, solitary walks, sun and sky and breeze, summer holidays, the sweet security of gardens, society of friends, the cheerful glass and beauty, beauty everywhere . . . even the willow tree in the Henry Florsheim yard beckons to us seductively with graceful arms waving in the March wind. . . . With beauty sailing by us on every breeze that blows it is certainly "up to us" to keep in step otherwise we would be a blot on the landscape . . . beauticians are flocking to schools of instruction for the very latest in hair styles and cosmetics . . . one in particular has just returned home and tells us that the feminine soul can be portrayed through the coiffure . . . she does not realize that she is telling us something we all know—from the time the first little girl tied her first hair ribbon on her round little head and sent the first small boy into a serious case of chills, fever, giggles, spinal quivers, inordinate desire to wash back of the ears, loss of appetite for the second piece of cake at dinner, demands for wart remover, and questions plied to members of the family about the fundamentals of getting married—such as the cost of a license and how old folks have to be to get a license—Yes, only a human soul could be indicated by a bit of ribbon attached to a little girl's top-knot . . . it is not always the coiffure however—sometimes it is a winsome smile like Gloria Frances Major's when she sat on the throne and reigned as Queen of Carnival at Layton place that causes the well known symptoms. . . . On the other hand, we venture to say many a feminine heart fluttered 'neath the laces and satins of their costumes when Billy Wright smiled at them from the throne beside his queen. . . . This crowning of a king and queen every year at the Mardi Gras ball at Layton place has become a most delightful custom and the memory of which is carried all through life by those who dance under the roof of this historic old home. . . . Little Carol Layton inheriting all the charm, talents and beauty of her mother, was not unlike one of those fairies of old on this occasion. . . . Such a galaxy of beautiful girls, Doll Hudson, Mariam Oliver, Mary Eleanor Coverdale, Jean Terzia, Dottie White, Melba Stevenson, Martha McHenry, Gay Noe, Adelaide Parker, the two Read sisters, Marian and Lucile, Eleanor Bennett. . . . Jack Liner's singing of "Isle of Capri" was something to remember him by. . . . Saw Monroe's beloved character, Mrs. J. W. Platt, hurrying to town the other day with a cunning pink cap she had just finished crocheting for Helen Trufant Cole Lee, who just arrived in the world . . . her mother, you know, was formely Nell Cole. . . . Mrs. Platt is always the very first to congratulate you when congratulations are in order, the first to sympathize with you when troubles come and the very first to see the silver lining in every cloud . . . what more have mortals to offer their friends? . . . We were told recently that a sundial will soon be placed at the entrance to Bernstein park and instantly we pictured it in a quiet natural setting, radiating its benediction. . . . A sundial is not an ordinary thing, you know—it is even occasionally suspected of having a soul and certainly no one would dispute the fact that it speaks to all who pause in its presence . . . gently and in silence, it tells us of the march of time. . . . We would like to take this opportunity of praising in highest terms the person who suggested a sundial for Bernstein park . . . a natural setting is demanded for its wistful teaching. . . . The long awaited picture, "David Copperfield," it here at last . . . songs that were heartthrobs in grandmother's day, plus a ballet such as enthralled the belles and dandies of 1830 are to be seen and heard again in the greatest of all Dickens' characters that everyone knows so well . . . "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" and "Rule Brittania" make themselves ardently heard . . . but the ballet, which is staged in a replica of a London theater of the early nineteenth century is the real job—it is complete from a ballerina and cupids on wires above to the gentle gyrations of the coryphees . . . take our advice and treat the whole family to a seat at the Paramount theater today. . . . And what do you think of Tot Ellis, Jr.? . . . she walked off with first honors in the Federated Music club contest yesterday . . . Tot is such a gay light-hearted child, we never dreamed she was so deeply engrossed in the study of music. . . . If this interlude of fasting, penitence, self-denial and meditation creates a desire for music drop into the Presbyterian church Tuesday night and hear the glorious organ music brought to you by Mrs. Eugene Elliott of Chicago who is in the city for a few weeks. . . . We don't eavesdrop but we would have to be stone deaf not to hear some of the many grand things people are saying about the Ewing and Rogers dance last Saturday night . . . a gay climax was the breakfast party on board the Bernstein house boat when Cordellia Wolf, the vivacious hostess, fed a cozy coterie of friends.

Mrs. Mobley Entertains

Mrs. L. W. Mobley welcomed members of the Married People's Card club in the spacious parlors of the Business and Professional Women's clubhouse Thursday night. Beautiful gladiolas in all the pastel shades and golden daffodils from the gardens of friends were placed in colorful profusion in the background.

A delicious two-course supper was served upon arrival at small tables, perfectly appointed and florally adorned. Later cards were introduced resulting in Mrs. B. D. Hodges and Mrs. Frank Stubbs claiming handsome linen tablecloths and napkins for high scores. Mr. J. M. Cobb and Mr. J. J. Potts received for gentlemen's high scores, linen handkerchiefs and hosiery.

Guests of the club, Mrs. Janette Powell, Mrs. C. D. Oakley and Mrs. Reynolds McWilliams, Miss Florence Ferguson and Mr. Victor Davis were favored with gifts for remembrance.

Ball Room At Layton Place Is Scene Of Kaleidoscopic Beauty At Mardi Gras Dance

The traditional features associated with Mardi Gras were observed at Layton Place Tuesday night when members of the younger set were delightfully entertained in the ballroom where a handsome young king, Billy Wright, son of Dr. and Mrs. George Wright and a lovely queen, Gloria Frances Major, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reese Major, Jr., were crowned with elaborate ceremony. Sitting on their throne with handsome Persian rugs at their feet and a canopy of velvet overhead they presided over their "subjects" with dignity and charm.

The queen wore her regal robes with all the grace and charm of one to the manner born. The robe was fashioned of whtie satin with jewel encrusted bodice and long court train. A Marie Antinette collar of handsome rose point lace embroidered with pearls and rhinestones framed her face and on her head she wore a diadem of pearls and precious stones. The young king was in formal court attire of white satin with robe of crimson velvet bordered in ermine. He carried a sceptre of shining jewels.

It was indeed a brilliant scene with the king and queen encircled by beautiful maids and gallant knights in court attire. They were Jean Terzia, Dottie White, Gay Noe, Martha McHenry, Adelaine Parker, Melba Stevenson; Carl Stevenson, Rhodes Savell, Fred Hudson, Jimmy Moore, Herbert Land, Robert Easterling.

The king and queen surrounded with their court were highly entertained during the evening with a variety of dances including the Carioca by Jean Terzia and Carl Stevenson, Gay Noe and Jimmy Moore, Dottie White and Rhodes Savell. A waltz number was presented by Marian Read, Bobbie Read, Lucille Read, Fred Hudson, Noel Learned and Billy Stevenson. Mrs. Layton's dancing junior class gave a skillful interpretation of the Continental and Mary Eleanor Coverdale entertained with a brilliant tap dance. Jack Liner entertained with a solo, "On the Isle of Caprice." A solo dance featured Eleanor Bennett

Luncheon At The Lotus Club Brings Miss Stubbs And A Few Congenials Together

The luncheon table in the private dining room was aglow with spring blossoms, purple Iris, pink camellias, yellow daffodils, California daisies, flowering peach and orchid sweet peas, tumbling in colorful profusion from a silver basket. Rose colored japonicas formed attractive corsages gracing each cover. The place cards were reminiscent of spring brides.

A five course luncheon was faultlessly served to Miss Stubbs, Mrs. G. P. Stubbs, Mrs. S. E. Huey, Mrs. Charles Womack, Mrs. Hayden Cutler, Mrs. James Trousdale, Mrs. Frederick Millsaps, Miss Leigh Russell, Miss Adelia Sandel, Miss Elizabeth Platt and the hostess.

Miss Millsaps's gift to Miss Stubbs was a handsome cream and sugar set of Wedgewood.

State Wide Club Institute To Be Held In Ruston

The first state-wide club institute to be held by the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs will take place at the Louisiana State university on April 12 and 13. President James M. Smith of the university extends a cordial invitation to the members of the federation through the general chairman, Mrs. Addison Thompson of Ruston. It is a special privilege to hold the club institute at this time when the university will be celebrating its diamond jubilee. Club women will be privileged to hear two notable speakers who will be present for the occasion, Miss McPhail of Ontario, Canada, only woman member of the British parliament, who will speak on Friday evening, and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who will speak on Saturday.

The club institute program is being planned for the purpose of creating constructive work in a short space of time. A demonstration of the panel method of presenting programs will be given by a chosen group of Monroe club women. Mrs. Iadbel Geifers of New Orleans, state parliamentarian, will conduct a parliamentary law drill. Mr. Fred Williamson of Monroe, will speak on "Club Publicity." State chairmen will present contests in the federation. A "question box" will be conducted to take the place of open forums as time will not permit the open forum. A select group will answer the questions from the platform.

The program at this time is incomplete but will be announced at an early date.

Of necessity, the club institute will be confined to members of the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs. Guest rooms will be the courtesy of the university. Meals will be served at the cost of the ladies in the home economics building.

Mrs. Thompson, who is general chairman, has served on the national committee of club institutes for the past three years. Her zone includes the following states: Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Kentucky. Reading reports of the states of her zone prompted the state-wide club institute for Louisiana.

Hour Brings Group Of Y. W. C. A. Workers Together At The Lotus Club On Friday

A beautifully appointed tea at the Lotus club Friday afternoon concluded the annual spring drive for the Y. W. C. A. yearly budget. Spring flowers, daffodils and white spirea created a delightful setting for this lively affair when the members of the drive gathered to make their final reports.

Every spring, the outstanding women of Monroe cancel all engagements, put aside all other activities and give the week of their time to the canvass for funds for the yearly budget; and every year the conclusion of the drive finds them with more enthusiasm and more sympathy for the constructive work being accomplished by the Young Women's Christian association of this city.

Under the efficient and sympathetic supervision of Mrs. Fagan Cox, the association maintains a home for young business women, that has established for itself a permanent place in the life of our community.

Gratifying reports were made by the participants in the drive, whose work will probably continue into next week rechecking their territories and covering districts they were unable to cover this week.

After the business session, coffee and tea were served in the dining room of the club. Mrs. W. C. Scott and Mrs. T. F. Jett presided at the tea table, where yellow daffodils intermingled with white spring blossoms and green tapers in silver candle holders created an attractive centerpiece.

A group of Y. W. C. A. Girl Reserves assisted in extending courtesies to the guests. Among the guests enjoying the hospitality of this charming affair were Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. C. S. Swain, Mrs. C. C. Colvert, Mrs. S. A. Moss, Mrs. D. C. Metcalfe, Mrs. S. O. Williams, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. J. K. Ham, Mrs. R. O. Ware, Mrs. E. R. Dawson, Mrs. M. L. Padgett, Mrs. F. W. Dr. Fred King Vaughan and Miss Helene Watrous of New Orleans are guests in the home of Dr. Vaughan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Vaughan.

Lovely Shower Given In Honor Of Mrs. P. Swift

Mrs. Paul Swift, affectionately remembered as Miss Mable Swayze and whose marriage was recently announced, was delightfully surprised in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Swayze, Friday night when several friends arranged a miscellaneous shower in her honor. Hostesses extending courtesies in the reception suite, colorful and gay with myriad spring flowers, were: Mrs. R. C. Mahr, Mrs. F. X. Shaughnessy, Miss Mary Elizabeth Mahr and Miss Mattie Swayze.

Guests numbering seventy-five or more were welcomed in the reception suite, colorful and gay with myriad spring flowers.

A unique manner was employed in the presentation of the gifts wrapped in rainbow colored tissue. A huge water sprinkler with narrow strips of silver ribbons, resembling a water fall, was suspended over an immense tub overflowing with the gifts. Mrs. Swift was requested to open the packages containing gifts of linen, crystal, china, silver and articles of a more personal nature.

Book Club Elects New Officers

Members of the Literary Guild enjoyed their semi-monthly meeting in the home of Mrs. Thomas Sandridge with the president, Mrs. O. A. Easterling, presiding. The roll call was answered with quotations from the Bible. "The Influence of the Bible on English Literature," was the subject of an interesting paper presented by Mrs. S. L. Digby. Mrs. Lucius Hughes, reviewed a novel especially recommended to hold the interest of the reader, "A Daughter of Samurai," by Etsu Inagaki Sugimoto.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected at this time at follows: President, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale; vice-president, Mrs. Newton Moore; secretary, Mrs. S. L. Dugby; treasurer, Mrs. William Harper; reporter, Mrs. P. L. Perot; year book committee, Mrs. S. L. Digby, Mrs. J. R. Humble and Mrs. J. G. Durrett.

Sketch Club Meets

Plans for future activities were discussed by members of the Sketch club at their meeting with Mrs. Henry Mayo, with the president, Mrs. Anthony Thebo, presiding.

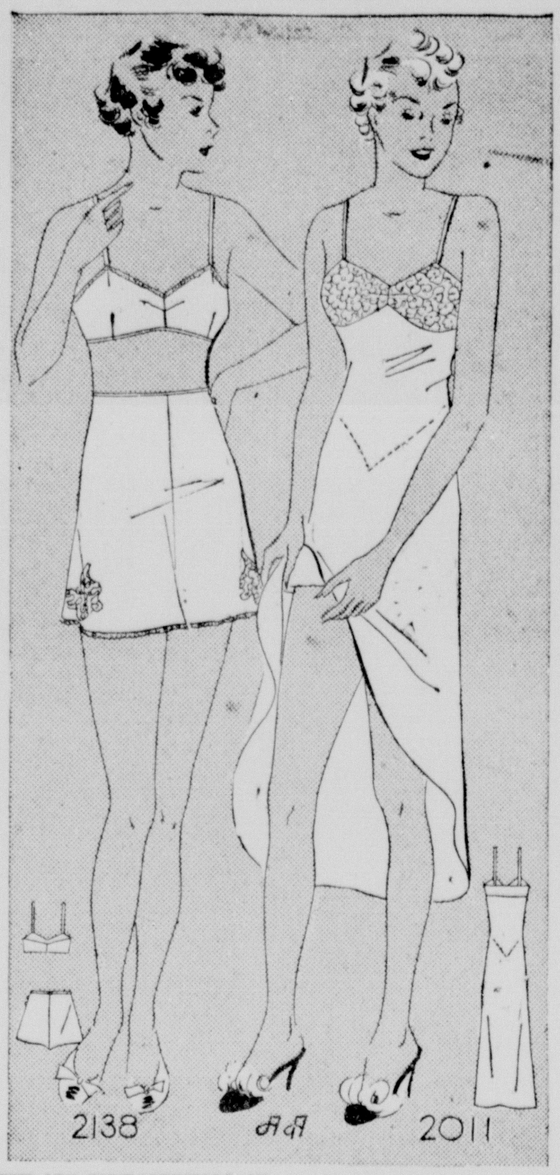

Final plans were completed at this time for the class in landscape painting commencing April the eighth under the direction of Mrs. Virginia Thurman Cole, eminent artist of Columbia, Ohio.

Mrs. Cole's work has brought forth considerable praise from outstanding artists of the country. Her paintings have been exhibited in leading galleries and for several years she was art instructor in the University of Ohio. Members of the Sketch club are anticipating a profitable as well as interesting course of study under Mrs. Cole.

It was definitely decided to order club pins in the palette and brush design.

Miss Olla Mae Fayson entertained a few friends informally at her home Friday night. Dancing supplied the evening's diversion and during an intermission, refreshments were served to the following guests: Bonnie Burden, Clyde Culver, Opal Curry, Rudy Vandenburg, Anne Gannaway, Billy Gannaway, Frances Fowler, Charles Taylor, Fay Harris, Adams Causey, Alice Bernelle, Robert Burden, Olla Mae Fayson and Johnny Leach.

Picked Up Around Town

—By Irene—

Dear Readers:

I simply didn't skip a thing yesterday! I shopped in and out . . . up and down, and had such a grand time! I have loads to tell you . . .

ON my way to town yesterday morning, a tire "blow-out" was my luck. Of course, I did just what you would have done. I called the 707 Tire Service, and in no time at all they were right there, "Johnnie on the spot." I knew those old tires were bad but had hoped for the best . . . However, after talking it over with the Goodyear tire salesman, I found the best thing to do was to equip with "Goodyears" all around. That new G-3 Goodyear is used whenever quality is considered. Yes, you can buy them on easy payment plan at 707 Tire Service, where other quality products such as Penzoil and Pan-Am products are sold.

THAT awful rain we had this week poured in through that broken windshield of my car . . . I didn't know you could drive right in the front door of the Monroe Glass Co., for service . . . did you? . . . In no time at all, I had a new windshield . . . and on my way . . . Say, while you are having your picture made don't forget the Monroe Glass Co. makes the only individual frames in the city . . . good looking too! . . . Only $1.25 up. Oh yes, they're located just across the street from the Postal. I almost forgot to tell you, you can buy mirrors "made to order there." Phone 4600.

MY first thought was "the weekly grocery shopping." I usually dread this part of my buying, but no more! My! My! What would we housewives do without "Jitney Jungle?" The day is saved and money made when we feed our families from the Jitney Jungle stores. Not only the cheapest prices in the city, but everything that the season offers in food is always found in their stores. But wait, that wonderful bakery at No. 10, corner Fourth and Stubbs . . . rolls, cakes, pastries and fresh hot breads. . . . Cheap, too! . . . Aren't you glad you can make one stop do for everything at Jitney's? . . . Meats, fresh vegetables, fresh fish and bakery needs.

HOW proud we are of Eunice Lee Beauty Shop! . . . Listen, girls! . . . Mrs. Eunice Lee and Mrs. Wayne Wamsley attended a Hairdressers' show and school in Dallas last week, and each was awarded an engraved silver loving cup for their skill and speed in hair setting and dressing! . . . Can you beat that? Right here in Monroe, we have artists like that. If you have not tested the work of Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Wamsley, you have missed a beauty feature that should be yours . . . Make your next appointment there . . . Phone 2070 . . . You'll find all the particular women, who put "Beauty First" at this shop.

DANCING eyes have my approval . . but when things begin to dance before my eyes, I knew it was time to consult an optician. Dr. T. A. Brulte, who is Monroe's leading optometrist, made a thorough examination. (You know he is located in R & A Jewelry Co.) Every modern facility together with Dr. Brulte's judgment and long years of experience is at your service when you put your eyes in his care . . . Was I relieved when this conscientious doctor found my eye trouble was minor . . . Well, it's something to find a doctor (these days) that doesn't find everything wrong, isn't it? Phone 1928 for appointment. Next to Paramount theater.

THE Hemp's cafeteria was so crowded I thought I would never get a table. I glanced at the menu prices and I'm going to tell you what you can buy there . . . Chicken pie 12c, pork chops 10c, deviled crabs 12c, meat loaf 10c, southern hash 10c, hot tamales 3c, vegetables 6c, hot rolls, bran muffins, ea. 2c. Hot biscuit, 1c, cobbler 7c, pie or cake 8c, hot chocolate with whipped cream 5c, vegetable, fruit or fish salad 6c, 7c, 8c and 10c. Boy! . . . doesn't sound like food stuffs are experiencing a rise in price, does it? . . . Cut the grocery bill, eat at Hemphills.

—By Irene—

LET'S assemble our ensemble from those smart 3-pc. suits and dresses at Bella Scherck Davidson's. The very outfit for the new spring season we're entering . . . Why, you can change your outfits so often that your friends would think you had four or five different costumes. Try it. Silks priced at $10.98 up. Woolens $14.98 up. The smartest wearing novelty I've seen lately is the white and natural colored quilted linen coats there. Wear them with your street dress, your evening dress . . . in fact, a utility garment like this is a buy at any price. . . Can't you get the most sensible clothes at Bella Scherck Davidson's?

MEN and young men! I mean old and young! . . . If you should dare to possess that dash and dot that the "picture books" show . . . Then Campus Tog suits, sold only at D. Masur & Sons at $15.00 to $22.50 is the answer. Honestly, I never saw such smartness. From the lapel to the pants cuff, there's a certain something! You could well afford a Campus Tog suit and a Campus Tog could do well "by you." Surprise the wife . . . Dash home in a Campus Tog. The new ones are now on display at D. Masur & Sons.

WAIT! . . Housewives . . . . Have you any idea of purchasing a mechanical refrigerator? . . . Listen, "figures don't lie" . . . Look at the gas bill of your friend who has a new air-cooled Electrolux and compare! . . . Why! . . . The operating cost of an Electrolux is so low you won't miss it . . . and most women say it's by far the best looking refrigerator of them all! . . . The longer you use it, the more you will prize its silence . . . its convenience . . . its low cost of operation . . . I know, because I own one! . . . See the new models at the Natural Gas Co.

LISTEN to me! Have you planted that garden yet? Better get busy this week because you know very well how you enjoy an early garden . . I like those seed you buy at Lane-Wilson Seed Co. (Monroe Seed Co.) They are such dependable seed . . . always come up and grow into strong healthy plants. You know why? Because they are selected from choice plants. Now is the time to plant turnips, mustard, radishes, lettuce, beets, carrots, spinach, onions, potatoes, parsley, English peas, cabbage and collards, and don't neglect the flower garden. Tomorrow, the first thing, go down there and buy poppies, larkspur, flox, glads, dahlias, petunias, etc.

THE Monroe Milk Station is the very best friend a family can have. Their pasteurized "Dixieland" milk is a safe investment for every member of the family. Have you tried that good creamy "Dixieland" butter? . . . The house delivery is so dependable too! Phone 670 and invite "Dixieland" milk and butter (pasteurized) to be a regular daily visitor in your home. You'll love its fresh cold sweet taste. Say . . . They are installing a new machine in the front of the plant at a cost of several thousand dollars . . . Listen . . . to make "Dixieland Ice Cream" . . . Watch for this different "treat."

HAIL! . . . The sensation of 1935 has arrived in town . . . The 1935 Chevrolet. Without a doubt, it surpasses all past models in design, mechanism and beauty! . . . Get the trading habit . . . it pays you at this big store.

• • •

SAY, ladies! . . If you have not made the acquaintance of the third floor of the Home Furniture Co., you have passed up a "friend to your home" . . . On this floor, you will find only fine furniture . . . Yesterday I saw one of those Neo Classic bedroom suites (4-pc.) at $75.00 . . . Oh! it was beautiful! . . . Another period suite (7-pc.) of Louis 16th design in walnut at $125.00. A smart colonial design in maple (4 pcs.) at $65.00. You'll love the dining room suites, one in particular Burl walnut that comes from the root of the tree . . . at $125.00 (9 pcs.). There were odd chairs upholstered in bright chintz up to $19.50. Those Cavalier Cedar Chests were beautiful also.

WAS J. C. Penney company busy this past week! . . and the good news I am about to tell you is that this same event will make that store the busiest this coming week. They've bought too heavy in "piece goods" and are now closing out every piece of this surplus stock. What do you think of these prices? Curtain scrim, yd., 10c; sheeting, yd., 5c; spring prints, yd., 9c; flat crepe, yd., 50c; Slipsheen, yd., 15c; damask, yd., 37c, and just worlds of other items you'll find on the balcony floor. By all means, shop in Penney's for seasonable "bargains," and you know Penney's quality.

AS our favorite, Eddie Cantor, would sing "I'd Love to Spend This Season With You" . . . Dobbs Fifth Avenue Dobbs! . . . They're in full bloom now at Johnnie Smith Elbert's . . . The smart Bramatt straws and fine fur felts at $8.50 to $10.00 . . . Doesn't a Dobbs make your hat wardrobe complete? You should see the beautiful purple I purchased there Saturday . . . The very hat to complete that smart knit outfit . . . Miss Florence seems to know "what's what in hats."

WELL, I had heard so much about that beautiful large mirror stored in Faulk - Collier warehouse, that I simply had to go see it . . . It is without a doubt the most magnificent piece of workmanship I ever gazed upon! . . . Hand beveled . . . a massive gold frame . . . measures 5 1-2 feet wide by 8 1-2 feet high. Absolutely in perfect condition. Oh! My! . . . this mirror has a value of several hundred dollars but can be purchased for a ridiculously small sum. Why don't you go by and see it. An opportunity to make a real buy is awaiting someone.

FAULK-Collier's is such a huge brick warehouse. My goodness . . . I mean all full of practically everything you can name . . . There was furniture, groceries, hardware, farm implements . . . and more personal belongings that are being stored by people from all over the country. The careful way these "belongings" were wrapped and cared for was most interesting. . . . Why, you should see that brand new air-proof storage room where fine upholstered furniture is stored. "Not a rat in a carload." . . . I walked from one room to another . . . finally commenting on one big padded room . . . and was I "flabbergasted" when the manager told me I was now standing in one of their large padded moving vans.

Listen, Housewives, how about accompanying me on my next week's tour.

Sincerely,
Irene.

Miss Vinson Addresses The Fine Art Club Members In The Home Of Mrs. Poag

Miss Stella Vinson, prominent in art circles of this city where she maintains a studio, addressed members of the Fine Arts club on the subject of "Art in the Public Schools" at the regular monthly meeting in the home of Mrs. P. A. Poag last week.

Miss Vinson said:

"There was a time when art was considered a frill, and a non-essential in public schools, but today as never before, when each subject is being carefully weighed by educators for its full value, art is finding its rightful place on the school program. The correlation of art with almost all other subjects commends it to teachers, who find it an inspiration and a help, rather than a burden. In the primary grades—pasting, drawing and paper cutting are three of the great aids in silent reading.

"In the teaching of geography, history, nature study—even in arithmetic, drawing has become almost indispensable. It is a great source of joy, stimulating creative imagination, demanding concentration, and helping to form correct habits of thinking.

"Through poster making for instance—which is an important part of the school art program, the attention of children is focused on many civic and personal problems—health, safety, thrift, courtesy, fire prevention and conservation, are some of the subjects treated in this way. While we are not foolish enough to believe that every child who makes a poster for 'Clean Teeth' or 'Be Kind to Animals' always obeys the suggestion, certainly his attention is brought to the fact in a forceful way. The power of the poster is well known. While the art course is planned for all children and not for the talented few, through this means the talented child is often discovered and can be encouraged. America is coming to realize that art talent is one of our treasures; every state should conserve its art talent as a precious asset. The art training of the public schools should be a practical training, touching closely the needs of the community, it should aim to cultivated taste and apply that taste to the homes, the dress, and the business of those it trains. A mistaken idea is, to hold that art is the business only of the artist; as a matter of fact, principles of art touch every individual and are used more or less consciously by everyone.

"Art and life are friendly, they combine happily. Art has insinuated itself in human affairs, and the austere realm of business has been most completely captured in this new dispensation.

"From the kitchen which supplies our daily bread, to the house of our most hilarious amusements, art is the constant and dominant element. The housewife must decorate her home, she may use the principles of decoration, well or ill, but use them she must, in the adornment of her house, in her dress, and even in the flowers she plants in her garden. The business man cannot escape from the use of these principles for a single day. If he should "dress" a window, get up a circular, design a letter-head, or arrange a newspaper advertisement, he must consciously or unconsciously use the rules which art had devised, in design, color and arrangement. Art is not for the few—it is for the many, for the many have to use it.

"It is not held that the training in the public schools will produce artists, but it is held that it will raise the standards of taste throughout the community. Perhaps the greatest function of art in the public schools, is to teach good taste, unfortunately few have this naturally; one cannot raise standards of taste without raising the standard of appreciation.

"The man or woman who strives to make his house better, takes pride in having his town made better—thus the civic value. Many who cannot see the spiritual worth, can see the practical worth. One of the surest evidences that people realize this, is, that most every community throughout the country is using art training in its public schools as a means of advancing community interests; the reason is plain—one cannot change materially the taste of the people already grown up. To effect these standards permanently, one must begin with the children in the public schools. The child is taught to love and appreciate beautiful lines, and patterns, and color, in textiles, in furniture, in pottery and in all art objects. He becomes acquainted with, and learns to love, the world's great master pieces of painting, sculpture and architecture. His eyes are opened to the beauties of nature—he looks for beauty instead of ugliness, and finds a constant source of enjoyment in doing so. He finds a right use for his leisure time in creating and seeking beautiful things. Beauty undoubtedly has a great effect upon character, and while we do not believe that all children reared in beautiful surroundings, are necessarily good children, we do believe that their chances are better for being good, that is, their lives are filled with beauty if their eyes are trained to see beauty—they haven't time for ugly things, they feel a disgust for the sordid and vile. Beauty, truth and goodness, go hand in hand."

The Natchitoches Art Colony will hold its session this year in June. Opening Thursday the 6th and closing Thursday the 20th. Will H. Stevens will come as instructor. Paintings by Mr. Stevens will be on view in the Log Cabin studio on Saturday and Sunday, June 15 and 16.

Mr. J. W. Taylor of Hamburg, Ark., is the guest of his sister, Mrs. F. W. Hagenr, on the West Side.

Black and white combinations are "all over the place" in the spring fashions. Ardanse gets a novel effect in two ways with this black organza suit designed for informal evening wear, right out of her new spring collection. First, she buttons the jacket with white composition daisy buttons graduating in size. Then she adds a neck and sleeve trim of big-meshed point d'esprit.

Interest In Bird Sanctuary Spreading Among Those Who Love Our Feathered Friends

Interest continues to grow in plans for a bird sanctuary at Bernstein park, now being worked out by Commissioner R. D. Swayze assisted by Mrs. Elmer Richards and Mr. and Mrs. George Lowery. The boy scouts, realizing that nature makes friends with them only when they take the trouble to get acquainted and play with her, are busily engaged in constructing bird houses for the sanctuary. Here are a few good points for them to observe when making homes for their feathered friends:

Make the bird house of wood.

Have the opening large enough, but not too large for the bird desired.

Build the house strong.

Make it waterproof.

Paint it a very dull green, brown, or gray.

Provide ventilation.

Provide a way so the house can be easily cleaned.

Place it the right height above the ground to suit the bird for which it was built, and usually in an open place.

Never build a house by guess nor put fancy trimmings or ornaments on it.

Houses may be protected against snakes, house cats, and other animals by fastening a flange of sheet metal around the pole or tree on which they are located.

It is well to remove all old nesting materials from bird houses early in the spring before the birds are ready to build. Some persons bring the bird houses inside for the winter where they can be cleaned and prepared for the next season.

Those who put forth the small effort necessary to provide food for birds in winter will generally be rewarded by frequent visits from one or more birds as long as desirable food is served. It is, indeed, surprising to most people to learn by this means how many winter bird neighbors make their appearance and how eagerly they respond to this invitation.

Birds are usually fed from some kind of mechanical feeder placed near the home or on public ground such as parks and school grounds. There are many types of these feeders varying from a simple shelf attached to the window sill (or even the sill itself) to the more complicated ones built with roofs and constructed of various materials. Each person may build a feeder according to his own fancy. The window shelf is very satisfactory since the food supply can be replenished conveniently and the feeding birds can be easily seen.

The kind of feeder is perhaps less important than the kind of food placed upon it. A list of the things which birds relish includes nut kernels, sunflower seeds, squash and other vegetable seeds, mixed small grain, whole grains of corn for cardinals, suet, meat rinds and scraps, crumbs from the table, corn meal, and rolled oats. Of these things perhaps nuts, suet and sunflower seeds are among the best to use. Suet is usually fastened to a tree trunk or post and may be protected by placing over it a piece of poultry wire netting through the meshes of which the birds can feed.

Not all winter birds will patronize the "free lunch counter" but a majority of them will. Those that are surest to come include the ever-present English sparrow, the chickadee, tufted titmouse, cardinal, downy woodpecker, white-breasted nuthatch, and junco. Among the others that may come are the song sparrow, tree sparrow, Carolina wren, blue jay, hairy woodpecker, redbellied woodpecker.

Another way of feeding birds during the warmer parts of the year is to plant trees and shrubs that bear fruit eaten by them. Such trees and shrubs will also be ornaments and thus serve two purposes.

Red cedar, mulberry, wild cherry, mountain ash, service berry, smooth sumach, elder, sassafras, common elder, barberry, black currant, raspberry, hedge privet.

Certain ones of these trees and shrubs, including the mountain ash, sumach, and barberry, retain their fruit until winter, so that during cold weather birds may be observed feeding from them.

Mrs. A. R. Holloway presided over the business meeting of the Methodist Missionary society and introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Shawin, a returned missionary from China who gave a graphic account of her experiences and life in the Orient.

Mrs. W. M. Lawrence was appointed publicity chairman at this time. Delegates to the Women's Missionary conference in DeRidder, April the 3, 4, 5, were appointed as follows: Mmes. A. R. Holloway, Sam Collins, John Sholars, William Wood, Miss Louise Bozone. Alternates: Mmes. C. E. McKenzie, W. D. Bozone, O. G. Elliott, J. W. Worthington, William Washburn.

The next meeting will feature an afternoon tea.

A lovely affair of the week was the Colonial tea given Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. M. V. Orr on West Hickory avenue, with members of the Baptist Women's Missionary society as hostesses.

An atmosphere of the colonial period was created by the decorations in the reception suite and the beautiful colonial costumes worn by the hostesses. Most significant of the occasion was the large portrait of George Washington which occupied a conspicious place in the living room. Receiving with Mrs. Orr were Mrs. S. S. Allgood, president of the local Women's Missionary society and Mrs. H. M. Bennett, president of the Baptist Women's missionary union of Louisiana. Mrs. Sherwood Nesbit, who graciously presided over the guest book, invited arriving guests to register.

The patriotic colors were reflected in the decorations of the dining room and the beautifully appointed tea table. Stately crimson tapers burned softly in silver holders. Mrs. J. D. Higginbotham, Mrs. W. B. Oliver, Mrs. H. F. Madison, Sr., Mrs. Luther Freeland, in quaint period costumes, poured tea and coffee from handsome silver service placed at either end of the table. Mrs. Young described interesting ploints in these various states. She pointed out places of interest and related bits of historic data that made the trip enjoyable.

The minutes were read by Mrs. Brodnax, who gave the treasurer's report in the absence of Mrs. Ernestine Todd. Mrs. Prentiss Dunn, chairman of the program committee, was also absent and her vacancy was filled by Miss Justine Dorman, who presented a most interesting program. Mrs. Spier rendered two vocal selections. E. D. Shaw, parish superintendent of education, after complimenting the East Side P.-T. CHAPTER VIII

Light from the single bulb fell brightly on the kitchen table, leaving the rest of the room in shadows. Gale Henderson, in her printed coverall apron, sloshed the warm, soapy water over the plates in the dish pan. Gale was thinking pleasantly of the evening before her. She had a new magazine to read, one Josie had loaned her. Gale had had little time to herself lately. Several nights she'd been at Mary Cassidy's—but the baby was better now. Gale had stopped on the way home from work, had met Mary Cassidy's grateful eyes, lighted now with hope.

No, Mary hadn't heard from the mill, but she was going to do a washing next day. The Nicolettis—some of them—would stay with the baby. A couple of washings a week and maybe some cleaning, if she could get it, would mean money enough for food and to keep them warm.

Gale felt relieved that Mary had work to do. If only she could go back to the mill—but that wasn't likely. They weren't taking any more on. Hadn't been since they'd begun speeding up the machines.

Gale turned from the table and caught a glimpse of her brother in the doorway.

"Phil," she said, "there's something wrong with the iron. Do you suppose you could fix it?"

The boy in the doorway straightened. Taller than Gale, slender and loosely built, the two resembled each other only slightly. Phil Henderson's bright red hair remained an unruly shock in spite of brushings and applications of cold water. His blue eyes were wary, rebellious.

Obviously Phil Henderson was young, but it was not a young voice that answered, "Can't tonight. I'm going out."

"But, Phil—!"

He stopped her angrily. "I tell you I haven't got time! I'll do it tomorrow if I get around to it."

A voice from the next room called, "Oh, Phil!"

The brother and sister looked at each other, then both moved toward the doorway.

"Yes, dad."

The man who had spoken was lying on a couch, propped up with pillows. He was a large man, with gray hair, and his clothing, which looked worn, hung upon him loosely.

"Did I hear your sister asking you to help her, Phil?" he asked.

"It's all right," Gale put in quickly. "It's just the iron I wanted him to fix, and Phil's going to do it tomorrow. It won't make a bit of difference."

"Sure, I'll do it tomorrow," Phil agreed. He swung into the coat he had been carrying on his arm, jammed a felt hat on his head. "Good night, dad."

"Wait a minute, Phil," his father said. "Try to get in earlier tonight, won't you? You need your sleep. I don't like to have you staying out until all hours the way you have been lately."

"Sure—I'll be in early."

The outer door closed on the young man. Phil Henderson walked down the narrow sidewalk and turned left. He went on several blocks further before he halted in front of a small square house. Phil knocked at the door and waited.

The door swung open and a woman, silhouetted against the lighted room, asked shrilly, "Who is it?"

"It's me—Phil Henderson. Is Ruby here?"

"Ruby? Yes. I guess so. Come on in."

The woman stepped back and Phil entered the house. It was a living room in which he stood, cheaply furnished and none too clean. Brightly colored calendars and a large tinted photograph hung on the walls. There were paper flowers in a vase on the table and a Kewpie doll, wearing a pink sash, stood on the radio.

"I'll tell Ruby you're here," the woman said and disappeared.

Phil lit a cigaret, finished it and was crushing out the flame when he heard footsteps on the stairs.

A short girl, wearing a green dress and very high heeled shoes, appeared in the doorway, smiling. "Hello, Phil," she said.

"Hello, Ruby. Took your time, didn't you?"

The girl came forward, smiling. A bit too plump for the current fashion. Ruby Griffith walked with the assurance of a real beauty. She had a large mouth, vividly rouged, and her rather small eyes held a light, as though there were an excellent joke which she was sharing with no one else.

"Did you get tired of waiting?" she asked.

"I didn't say that—but you sure took your time."

"I was busy," Ruby announced, apparently considering this sufficient explanation.

"Well," Phil said, "shall we get going? It's getting late—"

The girl raised faintly reproving eyes. "I'm sorry, Phil," she said, "but I got to break that date for the movies."

"What do you mean, break it?"

"Now listen, Phil, don't be mad! You see I had a date with Ed Vogel—I promised him a long time ago and then when you asked me to go to the movies I forgot. But Ed came around today and reminded me, so you see I couldn't get out of it, could I?"

"Where're you going?"

"To the dance at Monterey." The girl's lashes lowered. "Ed's got a car, you know," she said slowly, distinctly. "But see here, Ruby—"

A knock on the door interrupted. The girl said quickly, "Maybe that's Ed now!" A moment later she had the door open. "Hello, Ed," Ruby said. "Come on in."

The man who entered was not as tall as Phil Henderson but he was squarely built, broad-shouldered. He wore a gray overcoat and gray hat which he pushed back on his head, revealing sandy-colored hair, carefully slicked down.

"Hello, Ruby." Ed Vogel said, and then, eyeing Phil, "Well—see you've got company!"

"I'll be on my way," Phil said, hat in hand. "So long, Ruby. I'll be seeing you—"

Vogel's pale eyes smiled. "Don't let me hurry you," he said in an oily voice. "What's the rush?"

"Who says I'm in a rush?"

"Who says so?" Vogel stepped forward aggressively. "I say so. I say so and what you gonna do about it?" The smiling eyes, the level voice were coolly insulting.

Anger blazed in Phil Henderson's face. "I'll do plenty!" he snapped.

But Ruby was between them. "Ed—Phil!" she cried. "You've got to stop it—both of you—!"

The door at the opposite side of the room opened and Mrs. Griffith appeared. "What's goin' on here?" she demanded harshly.

"Why—why nothin', Ma," Ruby began. "The boys were just having a little argument—"

Vogel's narrow lips bowed. He said, "Good evening, Mrs. Griffith. Me and my friends were just having a little discussion. It was all friendly, you understand—"

Phil Henderson cut him short. "It's time for me to be leaving," he said. "Good night, Ruby. 'Night, Mrs. Griffith. Vogel—I'll see you tomorrow."

"Oh, sure," Ed Vogel grinned. "Sure. I'll see you!"

Ruby followed Phil to the door. The last thing he saw before he stepped into the darkness was her wide, crimson lips.

Half an hour later Phil Henderson entered a long, narrow, smoke-filled room. A short, heavily-built man clapped him on the shoulder. "Hi, Phil!" he said grinning.

"Hi, Lefty. Seen Joe around?"

"He was here a little while ago." The heavily-built man turned. "There he is." He motioned with his head toward the rear of the room. "Back there."

Phil moved on. There were two men, half-leaning, half-sitting on the edge of a table pushed against the wall. One of them was slender and sallow-skinned with dark, curling hair and heavy eyebrows. The man beside him had a ruddy complexion.

The dark-haired man saw Phil and raised one hand in greeting. "Thought you weren't coming around?" he said.

"I changed my mind."

"The man with the ruddy complexion got to his feet. "Got to be goin'," he said. "Either of you fellows comin' down the street?"

"Guess I'll stick around a while," Joe Gillaspie said. Phil dropped to the table beside him and the other man moved away.

Phil lowered his voice as he said, nodding at the retreating back, "Is he coming to the meeting?"

"Sure."

"I talked to Blackie Moyer and Frank Sundstrom," Phil went on. "Blackie said he'd be there. I'm not so sure about Sundstrom—"

Gillaspie let out an oath. "Filthy sheep!" he said contemptuously. "Afraid to stand up with their own people and fight. That Sundstrom and the rest like him! Swine!"

"Maybe we'd better get going," Phil said restlessly. "It's getting late."

Gillaspie said, without turning his head, "You go out and wait on the corner. I'll come in a minute—"

Phil said, "O. K." and arose. He walked to the front of the building, stopped long enough to light a cigaret and went out into the night.

L. S. U. BOXERS SCORE 29 POINTS TO WIN CROWN

TIGER MITTMEN WIN IN FOUR OF FINAL BATTLES

Mississippi State Second, Georgia Third In Conference Meet

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—(AP)—After clinching the Southeastern conference boxing championship in the preliminary bouts, L. S. U. continued its victory march in the final events tonight and rolled up a total of 29 points.

Mississippi State was second with 13 points, while Georgia drew third place with 11 points.

The final card drew a crowd of around 2,000 to the big Tulane gymnasium, and the fans were given 24 rounds of fast and furious scrapping.

The boys from the Baton Rouge institution of learning won four of the eight final matches and also had contenders in three of the other bouts.

Mississippi State annexed the middleweight and heavyweight titles, and Dicarlo of Alabama, took the featherweight championship.

L. S. U. entered tonight's bouts under wraps, as by placing seven men in the eight title bouts they were assured of 21 points win, lose, or draw.

Every bout of the evening was a real contest, with featherweights to heavyweights standing and fighting from the opening bell.

McCall of L. S. U. won the first event of the evening for the Bengals when he got the decision over Carideo in the bantamweight division. But it was a scrap all the way through and the decision was close, with McCall having the edge in the first two rounds.

The class of the evening was displayed by Max Radutzky, welterweight of Georgia. Up against real opposition in the shape of Earl Dugas, L. S. U., Radutzky showed the top form of the tournament. Blocking Dugas' rushes with a poise that at times approached languor, Radutzky hit his opponent at will and had him on the floor in the second round. Dugas took a needed rest and came up at the count of eight, only to be backed into the ropes by Radutzky's darting left.

There was action aplenty in the lightheavyweight event, with Blakeman of L. S. U. getting the decision over Mike Jacobson of Georgia.

After a first round that consisted largely of looking each other over, the boys came out for the second stanza and for three minutes gave the fans plenty of action. It was the best scrap of the evening, and the crowd responded vociferously.

The closing heavyweight event brought Paul Bullard of Mississippi State and Sidney Perlew of Georgia together. After a very close battle the judges awarded the fight to Bullard, a verdict that prove to be the first unpopular decision of the evening and brought loud boos from the audience.

Al Wambsgans refereed all the bouts and the judges were Johnnie Morrill and Martin Burke of New Orleans.

The summary:

Maureen Orcutt Winner In East Coast Golf Meet

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Playing in a drenching rain squall, Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., today won her third Florida east coast women's golf championship and took permanent possession of the Mrs. William R. Kenan trophy, as she defeated Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., 4 and 2, in the final round.

Miss Bauer's putter pulled her out of several difficult spots on the outgoing nine, and she went to the 10th one up. The putting touch left her coming home, however, and she missed several short ones.

Miss Orcutt evened the match on the 11th when her tee shot struck a woman spectator and fell dead for an easy chip to the green. The drive was headed for a deep ditch when it hit the woman.

Their cards:

Miss Orcutt out	455 535 454—40
Miss Bauer out	454 635 543—39
Miss Orcutt in	454 355
Miss Bauer in	465 456 4

Harris And Athens Win State High School Basketball Titles

JUST A COUPLE OF PALS

That impending feud hinted between Babe Ruth and Bill McKechnie, Boston Braves' manager, since the Bam stated he would replace Bill as boss next year, was conspicuous by its absence when Ruth reported at training headquarters, St. Petersburg, Fla. Here are Babe, left, and McKechnie, as clubby as two old palsy-walsies.

COLLINSTON GIRLS BEATEN IN FINAL BY 43-26 SCORE

Harris Boys Defeat Marthaville For Championship, 39 to 29

BATON ROUGE, La., March 9.—(AP)—Playing superb ball from start to finish of the annual tournament, Harris tonight won the boys state high school basketball championship by beating Marthaville, 39 to 29, in the final round.

Both finalists were Natchitoches parish schools.

Harris, advancing through the lower bracket by a series of impressive wins over strong opposition, led the pace in the championship tilt.

The winning team pushed ahead during the first half to enjoy a 18 to 10 advantage at the rest period, and held the edge to the end.

Athens won the girls state title by decisively beating Collinston, 43 to 26.

Dry Prong won the girls tournament third place by defeating Atlanta, another beaten semi-finalist, 36 to 27, in the consolation.

The Athens girls, from Claiborne parish in the extreme northern section of the state, won the title after brushing aside several strong teams in the tournament upper bracket.

A total of 16 girls teams were entered in the tournament.

Collinston, although it also had victories to its credit over stern opposition, proved no match for the high scoring Athens outfit.

Dry Prong, beaten by Collinston in the lower bracket semi-finals, and Atlanta, defeated by Athens in the upper bracket, played a fast, hard fought game for third place honors. The girls division of the tournament was wound up before the finals in the boys play.

Jena high school, bumped out of the competition after being apparently headed for the title, by Harris, came back vigorously to wallop Catholic high of Baton Rouge in the boys consolation, 38 to 18.

Boys:

Marthaville beat Denham Springs in the opening round, 53 to 24, Byrd high of Shreveport, 42 to 33, in the second round, and Catholic high, 30 to 27, in the semi-finals.

Harris defeated Fairview, 54 to 41, in the preliminary round, Lyon high of Covington, 40 to 30, in the second round, Istrouma, 42 to 24, in the quarter-finals and Jena, 32 to 24, in the semi-finals, playing one more game than Marthaville.

Girls:

Athens beat Ouachita high of Monroe, 40 to 31, in the opening round, Lake Charles, 47 to 27, in the quarter-finals and Atlanta, 48 to 28, in the semi-finals.

Collinston defeated Lyon high, 24 to 22, in the opener, Port Allen, 42 to 27, in the quarter-finals, and Dry Prong, 42 to 20, in the semi-finals.

BABE RUTH HITS SINGLE IN DEBUT AS BOSTON BRAVE

Bambino Gets One Hit In Four Trips As Braves Beat Reds, 5-3

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

TAMPA, Fla., March 9.—Looking a bit strange at first base in the red and grey road uniform of the Boston Braves but otherwise resembling the same old Babe in his portly glory, George Herman Ruth played his first game as a National leaguer today, helped his team beat the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 3, and emerged with nothmore serious than a slightly strained arm muscle.

The former home run monarch and long time idol of the American league was greeted by a band and a crowd of 3,500 fans who filled the stands at Plant field nearly to capacity despite windy, threatening weather. He responded to a first inning ovation by slashing a single to right, scoring Bill Urbanski with the first run of the game, but he failed to get the ball out of the infield on his remaining three times at bat and retired after playing five and a half innings.

On his second turn at bat, in the third inning with Danny MacFayden, the former Yankee right hander, in the box for the Reds, he swung viciously at a pitch that he fouled and strained a muscle in his right forearm. He rubbed it briskly to get the kink out and stayed in the game but took no more chances. He grounded out in the third and fourth innings, then fouled out behind the plate in the sixth before turning over the first base job to young Elburt Fletcher.

Ruth handled himself easily around first, proving a good target for the infielders, and figuring in one of the three double plays which helped check the youthful Cincinnati batting order.

Manager Bill McKechnie still holds to the belief that the slugger will run fewer risks by playing the outfield.

"My legs felt fine, for the first time out," said Ruth. "The kink in my arm won't last. I always have a little trouble like that in the spring when I swing too hard."

Score by innings:

ALABAMA STAR MAY TURN PRO WRESTLER

MOBILE, Ala., March 9.—(AP)—Announcement that he is seriously considering a contract to turn professional wrestler was made here last night by Bill Lee, captain of Alabama's undefeated football team. Acceptance depends on consent of his parents, Lee said.

"I have a swell offer to turn professional wrestler," Lee said. "I don't know yet if I will accept it. I have written my folks to find out if it's alright with them. If they like the idea, I might go into professional wrestling right after graduation."

Lee and Don Hutson, star end of the team, were here with the University glee club on a state tour. Both are under contract to play professional football with the Brooklyn Dodgers in the fall, and will report for duty on September 1 after two months of summer training.

Lee ventured a prediction that Alabama would lose one game at least this coming season. "The Tide will have a great team, but they will drop one game, either to Tennessee or Georgia," he said. "But they looked great in spring training and I hope they get through undefeated again."

Neville Boxers To Enter District Rally At Ruston

Ten Teams, Including Bolton, To Compete For Mitt Titles

RUSTON, La., March 9.—(Special)—With 97 contestants entered from 10 high schools, plans for holding the north Louisiana high school rally boxing tournament at Louisiana Tech March 15-16 are rapidly nearing completion, according to an announcement Saturday by M. H. Folk, Jr., rally secretary.

The ten teams which come from seven different parishes represent practically all sections of north Louisiana. The entries in the tourney include: Bernice, Bolton, Choudrant, Farmerville, Haynesville, Homer, Neville, Oakdale, Spearsville, and St. John's of Shreveport.

Mr. Folk stated that he expected to have some skilled fighters in the ring during the course of the meet. Several of the contestants fought in the state high school tournament last year, some of them winning titles. Mr. Folk also said that he was well pleased with the number of entrants and anticipated a successful tournament from all standpoints.

A nominal fee of fifty cents will be charged each contestant but if the gate receipts cover the expenses of the tournament this fee will be refunded, Mr. Folk pointed out.

The preliminaries will start at 2 p.m., Friday, March 15; however, the contestants will be required to weigh in at the men's gym between 9 and 12 o'clock Friday morning. The entire first round of matches composed of about thirty fights will be completed Friday night. The semi-finals are slated to begin at eight o'clock Saturday morning, March 16. The consolation bouts will be fought Saturday afternoon, beginning at two p.m., and the finals that night at eight o'clock. There will be forty battles on Saturday which will include the semi-finals, the consolation matches and the finals.

Three major trophies will be given to the winning teams. The squad amassing the largest number of points will receive the general championship honor, with other prizes going to the schools that make the most points in the lightweight and heavyweight divisions. In addition to the major trophies, winners of each individual weight class will be awarded gold, silver and bronze medals for the first, second and third places, respectively.

Contestants residing outside of a 50-mile radius will be housed in the dormitory and given breakfast Saturday morning. Those staying in the hall must furnish their own bedding, it was stated.

The contestants and the schools they represent as announced by Mr. Folk are as follows:

Bernice—Morell Elliott, Gordan Allbritton, Robert Thompson, J. Knowles, Frank Griffith, P. Smith, V. Allbrit-

DESIRES NO SPLIT

Coach Percy Brown, who has waged a fight to have the north Louisiana boxing tournament remain in Monroe where it originated three years ago, said yesterday that the local tourney has been called off because Neville officials did not desire to split the section into two divisions, as would be the case if Neville sponsored their meet.

"Two tournaments with four or five teams in each would not prove as attractive as one with all north Louisiana teams entered," Coach Brown said. "In an effort to provide boxing fans with the best sport possible, we are cancelling plans for a tournament here this spring."

Both the Ruston and Monroe tournaments were sanctioned by the state high school athletic association.

HAMAS BATTLES SCHMELING AT HAMBURG TODAY

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

HAMBURG, March 9.—This ice-crusted shipping city had worked itself into the proper pitch tonight over the impending Sabbath duel between Max Schmeling and Steve Hamas, two young men equally determined to sample Champion Max Baer's explosive right next June.

Twenty-three special trains, including the famous 120-mile-an-hour "Flying Hamburg" from Berlin, poured fans into Hamburg's biting air.

It was learned some of the highest officials in the Nazi regime would be on hand when the rivals for Baer's right open their 12-round tussle in the sprawling sports shed about noon eastern standard time.

Practically every hotel is filled to capacity and the lobbies over-run like an Elks' convention. Promoter Walter Rothenberg believed a capacity crowd of 25,000 is assured.

Among other problems on the mind of the smart, cool Rothenberg was trying to placate Charlie Harvey, manager of Hamas, who continued hot under the collar because boxing officials from Berlin failed to keep an appointment at noon and advise who will serve as judges and referee. Apparently everyone has been told who is to officiate except Harvey.

"All I can find out in this country is what you fellows tell me," Harvey said.

Hamas, accompanied by his wife, spent the day quietly at his hotel and despite all the stories about his dizzy training routine, looked fit and said he felt the same way. He will scale about 195.

Schmeling hit exactly 190 when he finished his final workout. Germany's hope remained at his camp far from the city and took the first opportunity he has had to visit the Bismarck museum.

Neither fighter is willing to make any predictions, each contenting himself with the demure statement he intends to do his level best. Schmeling remained such a firm favorite that not a single fan in the last two days has been heard to give Hamas even an outside chance of winning.

Whether it means anything or not, Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, received a cable from Ancil Hoffman, manager of Baer, promising the German a title bout next June provided he knocks out Hamas.

SPRINGHILL WINS

UNIVERSITY, Miss., March 9.—(AP)—The Springhill basketball team won the north Mississippi title here tonight in the tournament final by a 28-23 victory over the strong Pine Grove aggregation.

OUACHITA LOSES CLOSE BATTLE IN DUAL STATE FINAL

Lions Nosed Out By Junction City, 21-20; Strong Girls Win

JUNCTION CITY, Ark., March 9.—(Special) — Ouachita parish high school's boys' basketball team attempted to pull the "iron man" stunt in the dual state tourney here today and almost was successful. After playing three games today, the Monroe quintet was nosed out by Junction City, 21-20, in the finals tonight when Clyde Durham, Junction City forward, made a field goal in the last 40 seconds of the battle.

The final in the girls' division was equally as close, Strong, Ark., defeating Junction City, 24 to 23. Both games were real thrillers.

After defeating Norphlet, Ark., 20 to 6, Sandyland, Ark., 19 to 10, and Union, Ark., 21 to 16, Ouachita's fast stepping clug took an early lead in its final battle with Junction City, only to have the local team tie the score at 12-all as the whistle ended the first half. Ouachita again hopped into the lead as the second half began, but the last-minute field goal cost them a victory.

Outstanding for Ouachita during the day's games were Boyce, center, and Staples and Cobb, guards. Boyce got the tip-off consistently in the four games. Lawrence Durham and Elliott Reagon were best for Junction City's quintet.

Following the final game tonight, Junction City's tournament officials expressed appreciation of Ouachita's entrance in the annual affair.

A crowd of nearly a thousand fans packed the gym tonight to witness the thrill-packed finals. The girls' game was close all the way, with never more than two or three points separating Strong and Junction City. Inez Lee, of Junction City, was outstanding, winning scoring honors.

The team sportsmanship cup was awarded the Summerfield boys and Castor girls. Gold basketballs for being the most outstanding players in the tournament were awarded to Anderson, a guard of the Louann, Ark., girls' team, and Jackson, Coushatta boys' forward.

In the girls' semi-finals today, Junction City defeated Castor, 27 to 25, and Strong trimmed Louann, 25 to 22. Besides the early Ouachita games, Union eliminated Lawson, Ark., 19 to 15, and Junction City defeated Strong, 24 to 14, to enter the finals.

Columbia Girls End Cage Season With Good Record

COLUMBIA, La., March 9.—(Special.)—The Columbia Crimson Tide girls won 7 games, lost 6 and tied 2 in the season just ended. The girls expect to go forward toward the state title next season, for they only lost one player by graduation, Ruby Rosser, Columbia's star guard and captain.

The locals won the parish championship February 27.

INTRAMURAL CAGE TOURNEY STARTS

Burris Boys And A. L. T. Win Games In First Of Tech Series

RUSTON, La., March 9.—(Special)—The Intramural basketball tournament started here last night with the Burris boys defeating the Y. M. C. A. five and A. L. T. quintet keeping in the running at the expense of the sophomore class.

The Burris club, led by Bob Neal, Tech track star, downed the Y. M. C. A. cagers by a 29-20 count to upset the dope according to prevailing predictions of local fans. Neal bagged five field goals and one free toss for a total of 11 points. The Y. M. C. A. basketeers, led by Sam House with 12 points, made a vain effort to break off the early lead of the Chow Hall boys.

The A. L. T. five took the sophomores down by a 26-16 score to go into the semi-finals.

Trainer Eddie Wojecki, in charge of the Intramural program, announced the following schedule for the completion of the tourney: Burris boys vs. T. K. N., Tuesday night at 7 p.m.; A. L. T. vs. Ruston Celtics, Tuesday night at 8 p.m. The finals in the tournament will be played March 14.

Trainer Wojecki stated softball would be started as soon as weather permits. Any organization interested in having an intramural softball team is requested to get in touch with Wojecki and give a list of their players.

MOON DUCOTE NAMED ASSISTANT AT LOYOLA

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—(AP)—Richard K. (Moon) Ducote today was appointed assistant football and head basketball coach at Loyola of the South.

He will specialize on backfield coaching. In his playing days Ducote was an Auburn star, famous for his drop kick. Later he played on the Cleveland naval reserve team but in the last few years has confined his football activity to officiating.

The appointment of Ducote brings back to Loyola two of its former head football coaches as Eddie Reed, newly appointed head coach, was there before as successor to Ducote, who one time piloted the Wolves.

Reed said today that if he could develop two big tackles he expected to put out a fighting team this fall. The Daigle brothers, he said, probably would be the fastest halfbacks in the south.

Pimlico Preakness To Be Run On Saturday, May 11

BALTIMORE, March 9.—(AP)—The Preakness, Maryland's thoroughbred racing classic, with a stake of $25,000 added, was set for Saturday, May 11, at a meeting today of representatives of the four larger tracks of the state.

The mile and three-sixteenths feature for three-year-olds, always held at Pimlico, will be opened this year to geldings for the first time in more than 50 years of its history. It formerly was limited to colts and fillies. Entries will close Monday, April 15.

The date was announced by the Maryland Jockey club as the track representatives met to set the date for the spring meets of the state in accordance to an ultimatum from the Maryland racing commission that they must be in by next Saturday.

TAR HEELS AGAIN WIN TRACK TITLE

North Carolina Walks Off With Southern Conference Crown

TIN CAN, CHAPEL HILL, N. C., March 9.—(AP)—The University of North Carolina won the Southern conference track and field championships here tonight for the second straight year.

The Tar Heels had clearly won the title again before the relay, the final event, was started. Last year a third place in that event gave the North Carolinians their victory.

Williamson set new half mile and mile marks. He is national junior A. A. U. champion at 1,500 meters. He was second individual high scorer with 10 points. Grover Everett of Virginia, with 11 points, was high man. He won the 70-yard hurdles, and seconds in the low barriers and broad jump.

Ten new records, six in the conference division, were marked up in the 26 events of the meet.

Team scores by divisions follow:

Conference: North Carolina 44 1-2; Duke 27; Maryland 24; Virginia 17; Washington and Lee 10; V. P. I. 6 1-2; V. M. I. 1.

Team scores by divisions were: Freshmen, Georgetown 14; Washington and Lee 10; William and Mary 10; North Carolina 6; Duke 6; N. C. State 4; V. P. I. 3, and Virginia 2.

Non-conference: William and Mary 21; Richmond 9; Davidson 8; Georgetown 3; Wake Forest 2. The defending champions, Catholic university, did not enter the meet.

Scholastic: McKinley high of Washington 16; Newark Prep 15; Boys high of Atlanta 7; John Marshall of Richmond 7; Durham 4; Goldsboro, N. C., 2; Newport News, Va., 2; Oldtown, N. C., 1; and High Point, N. C., 1.

More than 360 athletes on 43 teams participated.

American Legion Hurler Signed For Trial By Pels

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—(AP)—Evan "Lefty" Walle, a sensational New Orleans high school and American Legion flinger, has been signed for a trial with the New Orleans Pelicans, Manager Larry Gilbert announced here yesterday.

Young Walle was scheduled for a chance in fast company today as Gilbert said he may use him against the Cleveland Indians, who play the Pelicans in the first of a series of exhibition games.

The horse chestnut is so named because the Turks used it as a medicine for horses.

Young Hurlers Question Mark Of Athletics

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another of a series of articles from big league training camps, and second of two stories on the Philadelphia Athletics.)

By Harry Grayson
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 9.—There is a gleam in the pale blue eyes of 72-year-old Connie Mack as he prepares the Philadelphia Athletics for their 35th season in the American league.

You do not suspect that Mack has something up his sleeve. You only have to look over Terry Field to know that he has.

The current crop of Athletics brings happy memories to Mack of a team that reported to him a quarter century ago—Plank, Bender and Coombs; Ira Thomas; McInnis, Collins, Barry, and Baker; and Oldring, Strunk, and Danny Murphy.

The squad that has buckled down to work here also reminds Mack of the band he assembled in 1925, which went on to the first of three pennants and two world championships four years later—Grove, Earnshaw, and Walberg; Cochrane; Jimmy Foxx, Bishop, and Dykes; Simmons and Haas.

The current Athletics may not attain the heights of the two great arrays that preceded them before they are torn apart, but there is talent galore in the 29 athletes going through the paces here.

Pitching Prospects Rosy

Mack is banking on the back-stopping of Foxx and the natural improvement of his young pitchers to sweep the outfit from fifth place, where it finished in 1934, to a contending position.

He has a half dozen exceptional pitching prospects in Johnny Marcum, Bill Dietrich, Alton Benton, Charley Lieber, George Caster, and Vernon Wilshere, a southpaw.

Marcum copped 14 games and lost 11 in 1934. The bespectacled Dietrich won 11 and dropped 12. Both won most of their victories during the last half of the campaign.

During the closing weeks, Dietrich trimmed the flag-gathering Detroit Tigers, 1-0, before an overflow Sunday crowd at Navin Field, with an ordinary fly going for a two-base hit. Mack called it one of the finest pitching performances for a youngster on the road that he ever witnessed.

Lieber, who slings a deceptive sinker, was drafted from the San Francisco Missions, for whom he grabbed 19 decisions while losing 13.

Caster, purchased from the Portland Coasters, won 3 games and lost 2, after reporting in September. This former University of Southern California all-round star is the most symmetrically built of all the sterling athletes attacking victuals at the Bedford hotel here.

Caster is a pitcher without a wind-up. He throws the ball with a single sidearm motion. It is a sort of legal quick pitch. He has remarkable control.

Sugar Cain is a right-hander of established worth, and LeRoy Mahaffey has been around long enough to know how to pitch. Little Joe Cascarella, the crooner, met with some success in 1934.

Sammy Foxx, 17, and Bill Bennett, 18, southpaws, will be sent out. So will Edgar Smith, a semi-professional of Columbus, N. J.

Charley Berry is back to warm up pitchers and to be available in the event Jimmy Foxx is hurt. Bill Conroy and Charley Moss are youngsters who require seasoning.

Infield Has Young Talent

Alex Hooks, a fancy fielding left-hander, tackles the robust assignment of filling the large brogans of the famous Foxx at first base. This former all-round luminary of Southern Methodist university hit .340 in the Texas league last season.

Dib Williams is to start at second, with Rabbit Warstler and Charley English ready to relieve him in the event that his throwing does not improve.

English hit .326 and was voted the most valuable player in the Texas league.

Outfielder Lou Finney will step in at first base if Hooks falls down.

Next: The St. Louis Browns.

LLY, M'INTYRE MEET AT STADIUM WEDNESDAY

NTIFIC BOUT PROMISED FANS IN MAIN EVENT

Two Youngsters Agree To Bar Rough Stuff In Two-Hour Match

Fans who have begged for a "scientific" wrestling match at Roosevelt stadium will get what they've been seeking for the past few months when Ernest Kelly, popular local favorite, meets Don McIntyre, husky Pennsylvania youngster, in the main event of the weekly show Wednesday night.

Promoter Charlie Bruscato said last night that he guarantees there will be no rough stuff in the main event. Both boys have shown a willingness to abide by the rules in past matches here and there's no reason to believe that they'll change their tactics when they meet Wednesday night.

Bruscato said he intends to make ... all-star show out of the Wednes... y card and is attempting to line ... an all-rough bout for the semi... nal. The match had not been com...leted last night, he said.

Kelly is the most popular wrestler ever to perform here. He is the particular favorite of the fair fans. Although the former Tennessee football tar has performed here against some of the roughest grapplers in the business, rarely has he resorted to so much as a sock to the jaw when his opponent got rough. He has shown an ability to take plenty of punishment and still win, as his record here indicates.

The Tennessee boy is a past master ... the hook scissors and he undoubtedly will rely on this hold in his campaign against McIntyre. He also has been particularly successful with the hammer lock.

McIntyre also is a youngster, although he has been in the wrestling game for several years. The former Pennsylvania athlete, although only 23 years old, is said to have mastered 120 holds and he has given excellent exhibitions of his knowledge in his past appearances at Roosevelt stadium.

McIntyre has wrestled here only twice in the past but he already has built up a large following. He's a clean-cut fellow who has wrestled strictly according to the rules in his two previous matches. He will have a few pounds advantage in weight over Kelly and probably is an inch or two taller than the Tennessee youngster but Kelly is the faster of the two. In all, they should be evenly matched.

Bruscato said that fans have been requesting a "clean" match for some time and he believes they'll see plenty of real wrestling in the Kelly-McIntyre bout. About six months ago the fans asked for a battle between Kelly and Bill Sledge, the former Rice football player, but Bruscato was unable to get them together. After McIntyre made his first appearance here several weeks ago, the customers asked that he be brought back with Kelly and Bruscato was able to book them only last week.

The local promoter said he hopes to have his card completed by Monday.

Both bouts will be best two out of three falls, with each having a two-hour time limit, as has been the custom with double main events.

GIANTS WIN AGAIN

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Led by Dick Bartell, their new shortstop, and Joe Moore, the New York Giants turned back the Philadelphia Athletics for the second straight day when they defeated the American league club 3 to 2 in an exhibition baseball game cut to five and one-half innings by rain today.

Bartell scored two of the Giants' runs, after hitting singles, after the first hit in the opening inning, he romped home ahead of Joe Moore, who cracked out the first home run of the Grapefruit league. In the fifth the former Phillies shortstop connected with his second hit and then raced to the plate when Hank Leiber followed with another one bagger and Coleman fumbled the ball on the wet grass for an error.

Score by innings:

Philadelphia (A)	010	100—	2 6 1
New York (N)	200	01x—	3 6 2

Mahaffey, Cain and Foxx; Fitzsimmons, Chagnon and Danning. (Called with two out last half sixth, rain).

MEDWICK UNSIGNED

BRADENTON, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Joe Medwick, hard hitting holdout, turned up at the Cardinal camp today, talked it over with President Sam Breadon but did not sign his papers.

The leftfielder, who has announced it will be $10,000 or nothing, said he wanted a few days to "think it over." His appearance left Ernie Orsatti the only absentee on the Card roster. After a brief workout this morning, Manager Frankie Frisch gave his squad a half holiday.

RAIN STOPS INDIANS

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—(AP)—A steady downpour prevented the Cleveland Indians from engaging the New Orleans Pelicans in their first exhibition game today. The rain did not prevent the Indians from exercise. They repaired to an athletic club and engaged in handball, volley ball and swimming.

REYNOLDS REPORTS

SARASOTA, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Every Boston Red Sox nose was present and accounted for today when Outfielder Carl Reynolds came to terms with Manager Joe Cronin before working out with his teammates. Cronin drove his entire squad through a long batting drill before subjecting his infielders to an hour's fielding workout. The new Sox pilot called a Sunday practice session.

BROWNS RAINED OUT

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns had their first "called on account of rain" practice of 1935 today.

The light workout originally scheduled by Manager Rogers Hornsby for the day was abandoned because of intermittent showers and the squad was given its first day off. Hornsby said he would use Pitchers Buck Newsom, George Blaeholder, Jack Knott, Elton Walkup and H. Mills in tomorrow's practice game.

TIGERS GO TO WORK

LAKELAND, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers were preparing today to swing into strenuous spring practice routine next week, Mickey Cochrane will call out the entire squad for the first time this season. The past week has been pitchers' week with the Bengals.

NATS' BATS BUSY

BILOXI, Miss., March 9.—(AP)—Continued rains which have kept the Senators off the baseball diamond for five days let up today and Manager Bucky Harris sent his young hopefuls into batting practice. Despite the soggy infield which prevented playing, Sington and Bolton showed up well.

M'CARTHY SATISFIED

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy expressed himself as being satisfied with the condition of the Yankees today as they rounded out their first week of training with batting, bunting and running exercises. A number of arrivals, including Lou Gehrig, Tony Lazzeri, Frank Crosetti and Ben Chapman are expected tomorrow.

STENGEL PICKS LINEUP

ORLANDO, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Al Lopez, the Cuban catcher, was the only Dodger regular of last season who wasn't picked for the first team today when Manager Casey Stengel picked his lineups for the first intra-camp game of the season tomorrow. Lopez was told to take a rest while Gordon (Blimp) Phelps, who still is considerably overweight, was chosen to work behind the plate. The Dodgers had only one practice session today.

CUB REGULARS WIN

AVALON, Calif., March 9.—(AP)—Charley Root, club pitching veteran, again demonstrated serious signs of a big comeback today as the regulars beat the Yannigans, 5 to 0, in a nine inning practice game. Root worked three innings, struck out five men and allowed only one hit.

DYKES TO CUT HURLERS

PASADENA, Calif., March 9.—(AP)—Manager Jimmy Dykes will start pruning his overloaded pitching staff Monday. The White Sox have 16 hurlers in camp and Dykes plans to get rid of seven. Right now his pitching hopes are centered on George Earnshaw, Sad Sam Jones, Ted Lyons, Leslie Tietje, Lee Stine, Joe Vance, Johnny Whitehead, Vernon Kennedy and Babe Phelps to produce a good pitching staff.

PHILLIES CUT LOOSE

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—The baseball machine in which Manager Jimmy Wilson and his Phillies hope to ride into the first division this season today received its first test of power.

With their joints well oiled from several days of light practice the team was told to cut loose. Outfielders chased the hardest grounders Captain Hans Lobert could drive while hitters, for the first time, swung bats against pitchers who no longer were nursing stiff arms.

TULLOS RETAINS S. A. A. U. CROWN

Powerful Hunt Oilers Defeat Bogalusa In Final Game, 44-28

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—(AP)—The powerful Tullos, La., basketball team successfully defended its 1934 Southern A. A. U. title tonight by trouncing a fighting but inferior Gaylords five from Bogalusa, La., in the finals of the annual tournament, 44 to 28, here tonight.

The defending champions, led by agile Jack Osborn, emerged from the first half with a three-point lead, which they increased to a safe margin shortly after the final period got under way.

Osborn, with eight field goals and four free throws, led the scoring with 20 points. Close on his heels, was Rooney, a teammate, who rolled up 15 points from his guard position.

The Gaylords made a determined fight in the initial period, holding the champions on even terms until the last few minutes of the half, but were unable to cope with the smooth-working Tullos offense during the final setto.

Tullos gained the final round with an easy victory over Hattiesburg, Miss. The Louisianans piled up a commanding lead in the opening period and then coasted to a 52-32 victory, obviously saving themselves for the final tilt.

The Gaylords were pushed in their semi-final game by a scrapping Y. M. H. A. team from New Orleans, but managed to outlast the locals to win, 35 to 23.

Hattiesburg captured third place when the Y. M. H. A. five forfeited a scheduled playoff.

Tuscaloosa Easily Wins Cage Crown Of Alabama

UNIVERSITY, Ala., March 9.—(AP)—Tuscaloosa high school's Black Bears tonight won the Alabama state high school basketball championship by defeating the dark horse finalist, Dadeville, 41 to 21.

The Black Bears after trailing through the first few minutes found their stride and pulled steadily to the front, and once overtaking the Tallapoosa five, were never headed.

Oxford's rangy five won third place in the tournament defeating another semi-finalist dark horse, Kinston, 29 to 18.

The Dadeville five seemed set to go through undefeated as fine scoring shots put them out in front, 7 to 2, in the first two minutes.

HEAD PLAY WINNER IN $10,000 ANITA RACE

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—(AP)—Head Play, handsome but fractious thoroughbred owned by Mrs. Silas B. Mason, proved again today that he is a superior mudder by winning the San Juan Capistrano $10,000 handicap.

The five-year-old chestnut son of My Play, after a display of unruly antics at the barrier, which sent him to the outside, broke into the front off the starting gate and never was headed.

A crowd of 45,000 persons who braved inclement weather to see the final program of the inaugural meeting here cheered Head Play home, a winner by two lengths, with Top Row second and Ladysman third, five lengths back of the A. A. Baroni horse.

The winner's time for the mile and a furlong, over the track that was a quagmire, was 1 minute, 51 2-5 seconds.

Head Play paid $5.60, $4.00 and $3.20 on $2 pari-mutuel tickets, going to the post a favorite. Top Row was worth $4.00 and $3.00 and Ladysman $3.60.

PICARD, REVOLTA RALLY AT MIAMI

Brilliant Golf Beats Ghezzi And Klein; Runyan, Smith Win

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta played brilliant golf in a driving rain today to come from behind on the last nine holes against Vic Ghezzi and Willie Klein, and win their way into the finals of the international four-ball tournament with a one-up victory.

Not so close was the margin by which Horton Smith and Paul Runyan wedged into tomorrow's final match. Playing with deadly precision they ousted Gene Sarazen and Harold McSpaden, 5 and 4, and earned a shot at first money for the second consecutive year.

Things looked bad for Picard, long-driving Hershey, Pa., professional, and Revolta as they rounded the turn on the afternoon round, two down, with Ghezzi playing a superb game.

Then the tournament "weather luck" broke wide open. Rain fell in sheets and a stiff wind rustled the palm trees dotting the Miami Country club course.

Three down and the greens soaked, Revolta, came through with the best golf he has shown since the $4,000 four-ball began and with Picard won on the final hole.

The sensational McSpaden, Kansas City youngster who has been a heavy money winner in the winter golfing tour, and Sarazen could not halt the inexorable advance of Smith and Runyan.

Campbell Likely To Delay Next Run Until Wednesday

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell who set a new world land speed record of 276.816 miles an hour here Thursday afternoon and who plans to try to raise his record to 300 miles an hour this month if conditions are right, probably will not run again before Wednesday.

Low tide that comes at 6:03 p.m., tomorrow will prevent a run no matter how good the beach surface is, he said. Low tides on Monday will be too early in the morning and too late in the afternoon. Tuesday, Campbell has an engagement at Gainesville.

After that there is no forecasting with any certainty for Campbell does his driving on the spur of the moment. Stormy surf all today and tonight pounded the beach sand into concrete hardness, but on-shore winds did not allow ebb tides to expose the racing strip.

TWO KENTUCKY ACES NAMED ON MYTHICAL QUINT

Blair Nosed Out For One Of Forward Posts; Edwards Unanimous

By Kenneth Gregory
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

ATLANTA, March 9.—Malcolm (Sparky) Wade, the colorful Louisiana State guard, and LeRoy (Big Ed) Edwards, Kentucky's giant center, were unanimous choices for the all-Southeastern conference basketball team selected for the Associated Press by coaches and sports writers.

Four of the 13 conference members are represented on the all-star concensus, while only two schools—Alabama Poly and Sewanee—failed to land a player in the honorable mention list.

Each of the 27 ballots received voted Sparky Wade, the clownish little floor marvel, at guard, and Big Ed Edwards, the conference's high scorer for the season, at center.

Johnson, an exceptionally speedy forward whose all-around good playing stood out all season, received 13 votes, two more than Blair, and in the final analysis the Georgia sharpshooter was placed at guard in view of the fact he received more votes than any other candidate for that position with the exception of Wade.

The all-star combination embraces the four leading scorers of the Southeastern campaign, marked by the undefeated records hung up by Kentucky and Louisiana State, the former winning 11 straight and the latter 12 consecutive games.

In Edwards, the six-foot, four-inch pivot man, the team is favored with the conference's leading scorer, a player who crashed the nets for more than 300 points in all games and 136 in Southeastern tilts. He was a standout performer all season and the only sophomore to receive the honor.

One of the smallest players in the loop, Wade made up for his lack of size with speed. He was considered by many as the fastest, cleverest and brainiest cager in the conference. He clowned continually while in action, but made few mistakes and was the main cog in the fast-breaking offense employed by the Tiger five. A year ago Wade established the individual scoring record for conference games only, a figure of 197 points in 16 games.

Johnson, a speedster and crack guard, ranked next to the Wildcat center in scoring for the season, annexing 174 points. He was the mainstay of Georgia's team throughout the year.

Lawrence, a senior, was an accurate shot and excellent on defense in all of Kentucky's games. He was a key man in the Wildcat offensive, and scored 171 points for the season.

For smoothness and cleverness, Walker, Alabama's captain-elect in football this year, had few equals. He drew praise in all games for his defensive ability and his knack for hitting the basket. He finished the schedule with a total of 127 points.

Leaders in the voting among those listed in the honorable mention group included Geny, Vanderbilt's splendid guard who shone as a great ball hawk and was invaluable at grabbing rebounds from the background; Blair, Louisiana State's flashy forward; Shearer, Florida's high-scoring guard; Gleen, Georgia Tech's versatile guard, and Cassibry and O. Stone, guard and center, respectively, on the Mississippi State five.

The first religious edifice erected in North Carolina was St. Thomas' Episcopal church at Bath, which has a communion set donated by Queen Anne of England.

Anyway, These Fellows Talk A Good Ball Game

By Paul Mickelson
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, March 9.—(AP)—In the spring, a ball player's fancy turns to predictions and statements.

Dizzy Dean, head man of the Cardinal pitching staff: "Me and Paul will win 50 games between us this year—mebbe more."

Babe Ruth, Boston Brave rookie: "I'll hustle and work my head off this season for Bill McKechnie. All I ask is that they let Bill and me alone. I think I'm a lucky guy, but I'll be disappointed if I don't play in at least 100 games this year."

Paul Dean: "There isn't a man living who can make me sign my name 'Daffy.' I should have been in the majors two years ago."

Bill Werber, Red Sox infielder: "I'll steal 40 or 45 bases this season."

Schoolboy Rowe, Detroit pitching ace: "There isn't anything wrong with my arm, and I don't want any doctors fooling with it."

Bill Terry, Giant manager who learned all about Brooklyn: "I don't want to look foolish, but we ought to win the flag. I think we can't miss."

Casey Stengel, Brooklyn's field general: "If they order me to play night ball, I'll have to play—but I hope not."

Charley Gelbert, infielder on the comeback with the Cardinals: "The leg is strong. I have put it to every test and I'm sure I'm coming back. Sure, I know the hill that's in front of me, but I'm going to make it."

Lefty Gomez, Yankee pitcher (when someone asked him what his wife thought of the first contract offered him for this year): "My wife? I do the pitching and I do the talking about my contract."

Rogers Hornsby, boss of the St. Louis Browns: "I suppose I ought to knock on wood, but it's a fact that I'm feeling better able to play than last year."

Guy Bush, who was traded to the Pirates by the Cubs: "See that right arm? Thar's 20 games, maybe more but no less in it for the Pirates this year."

Pat Malone, a St. Louis Cardinal after a stormy career with the Cubs: "I'm a changed man. The Cards won't be sorry they got me."

Connie Mack: "Quit? Say, I'm good for 10 years more at least as manager of the Athletics."

Jimmy Dykes, White Sox pilot: "Well—, yes, I guess we'll have a pitching staff this year."

Chuck Klein, Cub slugger who did not slug last year: "I think my leg, which held me back last year, is O. K. and will let me take the old cut this year."

Hamas To Pocket $25,000 For Bout With Schmeling

Charley Harvey Gives Garden Runaround In Hamburg Match

By John J. Romano

Steve Hamas will pocket $25,000 spot cash for his efforts against Max Schmeling this afternoon at Hamburg, Germany.

Tired of vague promises, in spite of the fact he has an agreement calling for a meeting with Baer in June, Steve and his manager, Charley Harvey, decided to take the money and prove that he could repeat over Schmeling on the latter's own stamping grounds. If Hamas gets the decision, and there are many who doubt he will as Schmeling is the idol of that particular city in Germany, he will be in a better position to enforce his demand as the leading contender for the heavyweight title.

It is rather a complicated affair. But Charley Harvey has been around long before the present run and type of fight managers. He knows how to go about keeping his man in the spotlight and enforcing his demands the same as he did when Jimmy Johnston was tossing him around and insisting on a return meeting with Art Lasky over the 15-round route before tendering him a contract calling for a titular match with Max Baer. While Johnston was thinking of ways and means of forcing Harvey into line, the latter was negotiating the Schmeling match. When Johnston kept holding off, Harvey announced his intention of sailing for Germany.

Steve Foiled Rothenberg

Harvey and Hamas were kept waiting two weeks until the purse was placed with an American bank in Paris. The promoter was supposed to have a hard time of it getting that much money out of the Vaterland. Those who profess to know the clever machinations of Herr Rothenberg's mind will tell you that the delay was intentional A victory by the American would mean nothing to Rothenberg in dollars and cents. But a victory by the German would mean another appearance of Schmeling before he set sail for America for another fight with Baer. That would mean money for the promoter.

The delay and uncertainty of the match was intended to create a mental hazard in the mind of the American, throw him out of stride and keep him down to the minimum of days in which to get in shape.

Hamas saw through the strategy of the German promoter. He refused to be annoyed, maintained his confidence that everything would turn out for the best and continued his daily work in the gymnasium.

The confirming cable was kept a secret. They were not taking any chances of a last minute injunction restraining them from sailing. They departed in the dead of night and, on arriving at the scene of battle, went into immediate training.

Admirers Forced Him Back

Schmeling is beating his way back to the heights he once knew. He has all the money he will ever need, having pocketed close to a million dollars in his fights in this country. His retirement was announced several times and there was more truth in them than Max cared to admit. His stunning knockout at the hands of Max Baer and the slashing beating, in which one of his eyes was badly cut, administered by Steve Hamas last year lent credence to the report that he would take up the life of a country gentleman and leave the hard knocks of the boxing game to those who needed the money more badly than he.

Idolized by his lovely wife, Anny Ondra, and urged by patriotic German societies, Schmeling was induced to try his hand again. He went to Barcelona and fought Paolino Uzcudun a twelve-round draw. Three months later he met Walter Neusel, who had set up a counter claim as champion of Germany, and after nine rounds of consistent battering around the head Neusel bowed to defeat. Spurred on by this effort against a man considered good enough to whip King Levinsky, Tommy Loughran and the giant Ray Impellitiere it was but natural that he would want to wipe out the defeat at the hands of Steve Hamas before he would be considered for a return match against Max Baer.

Idleness Might Handicap Him

The American's main drawback is lack of active ring work. His last appearance was in October when he took a decision over Art Lasky, and wherein he tired very badly in the closing rounds. Lasky does not punch with the same effect as Schmeling and as the distance is fifteen rounds, Hamas will have to be in wonderful condition to stand up that long.

Steve will have to whip the German by the proverbial city block if he hopes to gain the award. Schmeling shuffles in steadily and does not waste punches. He does not strike until he gets within striking distance. He does not use up strength in wild swinging. He hits straight out and does not become discouraged under fire. These traits won him the world's title. In the presence of a wildly, enthusiastic partisan crowd Schmeling can be calculated to push himself to the limit to win by a knockout.

The American's best chance to upset his opponent is to keep his chin tucked snugly under the protecting guard of his left shoulder. Hamas has a punishing left jab and gets plenty of power in it against a charging opponent. He waged a smart fight in their last meeting and clearly outboxed Max. That looping right swing is just what was ordered to batter Schmeling's prominent eyebrows and he no doubt will resort to the same plan of battle when they face each other again.

Steve Hamas is in a tight spot. But if gritty determination and the courage to do things learned on a football field will assert themselves, he will come out a winner. If not, well $25,000 is not easily picked up in these lusterless fight days.

FAVORITES WIN IN INDOOR NET MEET

Mangin And Bell Impressive In First Round Tennis Triumphs

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—In a perfunctory manner all but one of the seeded players coasted through the first round on the men's national indoor singles tennis championship today as an opening field of 64 starters was cut in half in a protracted session lasting almost eight hours.

Six of the board courts in the vaulted seventh regiment armory were in operation throughout the day, giving the appearance of a public park.

The lone seeded player extended to win was Eugene McCauliff of Yonkers who was hard-pressed by Ernest Koslan of New York university, 6-4, 9-11, 7-5.

Experimenting a great deal with deep forehand shots, which more than often barely missed their mark, Mangin accounted for Harry Pagel of New York, 6-2, 6-3.

Bell scored a straight-set victory, 6-0, 6-2, over the veteran Stephen V. Brubans of Hoboken, N. J.

The five other seeded players, J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., Dr. Eugene McCauliff of Yonkers, Frank J. Bowden, Dr. Lawrence Kurzrok, Edward E. Jenkins, Jr., and Herbert L. Bowman also gained the second round.

BLACK HELEN IS HIALEAH WINNER

Bradley Filly Captures Rich Florida Derby And Gets $15,600

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Black Helen, ebon filly, added fresh lustre to the legendary "derby luck" of Col. E. R. Bradley today by capturing the seventh annual Florida Derby at Hialeah park and enriching the Kentuckian by $15,600.

This finale to the 1935 season at Hialeah, was won without a struggle, Black Helen galloping past the judges' stand four lengths ahead of Mantagna, from DeWitt Page's Maemere farm. Elwood Sachsenmaier's Roman Soldier, co-favorite with Black Helen, was third by another length.

Don Meade superbly guided the undersized thoroughbred home ahead of nine other choice three-year-olds in 1:51 flat for the mile and an eighth of fast, but damp, track. Today's time was one and four-fifths second over the fastest derby mark.

Coupled with her stablemate, Bloodroot, which finished seventh, the diminutive Black Helen repaid backers $6.90 in the $2 straight mutuels, $4 for place and $2.90 to show. Mantagna returned $11.60 and $5.50 and Roman Soldier, $3.60.

More than 20,000 race-goers, their enthusiasm undampened by the showers that intermittently swept the $2,500,000 track, wagered $94,753 on the derby, and Mortimer Mahoney of the mutuels estimated the day's eight-race play would set a new record, about $450,000.

England sets aside a day in honor of the horse chestnut tree. On Chestnut Sunday, thousands of persons travel from London to see the avenue of colorful horse chestnut trees in Bushy Park, on the Thames.

RAIN HOLDS BACK L. S. U. ATHLETES

Inclement Weather Hampers Both Track Squad And Football Men

BATON ROUGE, March 9.—"If we don't get a break in the weather, we'll be in the worst shape of the past two years," is Bernie H. Moore's comment on the track situation at Louisiana State, the home of the Southeastern conference champions.

The inclement weather—both cold and rain—has not only slowed down the track men to such an extent that they are behind their training schedule but it has also hampered spring football work.

Now in their third week of spring training, the Tiger gridmen are scheduled for three more weeks of extensive fundamental work under their new maestro, Bernie Moore, and probably a few extra days to make up for time lost.

Meanwhile, the Bengal spikemen are working as often as weather permits in an effort to get ready for their first appearance of the season March 23 in the Southwestern relays at Lafayette.

This 1935 squad, which boasts only two remaining members of the great aggregation that brought the N. C. A. A. crown to L. S. U. in 1933, will be built around seven lettermen who return from last year's conference champions.

Besides Glenn "Slates" Hardin, great hurdler and quarter-miler, and Nathan Blair, javelin thrower, both of whom won points in 1933 at Soldiers' Field, there are Ted O'Neil, half-miler; Johnny Sanders, miler and two-miler; Clarence Roberts, hurdler; Ralph Newell, broad jumper, and Hugh Saxon, sprinter.

Considerable help will come from last year's fine freshman squad. This group includes Jack Walker, six-foot, four-inch high jumper in prep school; E. A. Black and Pat Murphy, middle distance men; Bill Crass and "Lefty" Lester, in the shotput and discus; Arnold Bryan and Charlie Sanford, pole vaulters; Heinie Kent, high jumper, and "Skinny" Whipple, Southern A. A. U. broad jump champion.

While plans are still in the formative stage to take L. S. U.'s basketball quintet, unbeaten in 12 Southeastern conference games this season, to the east this month, Coach Harry Rabenhorst has issued the call for baseball practice at "Ole Lou" this week.

The campaign open March 28-29-30 in a three-game series with Purdue, and Alabama, Mississippi State, Ole Miss and Louisiana Tech are also on the baseball card for the Tigers.

TWO MONROE MEN HELD AT JACKSON

Car Crashes Through Fence, Hurts Girl And Kills Two Cows

JACKSON, Miss., March 9.—(AP)—An automobile got out of control just west of the city limits tonight, ripped through 75 yards of farm fence and veered wildly into a herd of cows in a field, killing two of them and crippling a third, before it overturned, injuring one of its three occupants seriously.

A young woman giving the name of Miss Otera Seale, of Jackson, was brought to a hospital here, suffering from severe cuts and bruises, and a chest injury. The other occupants of the car, who gave the names of Robert and Kimball Manier, brothers, of Monroe, La., suffered cuts and bruises. They were taken to police headquarters where they were booked on charges of drunkenness.

Monroe police reported that Robert and Kimball Manier were unknown to them. Neither were the men listed in the city directory of Monroe and West Monroe.

Your Income Tax

This is one of a series of articles on the subject of the federal income tax, prepared by the Internal Revenue Department. The last day for filing federal income tax returns for the year 1934 is March 15, 1935.

DEDUCTION FOR INTEREST

Amounts paid or accrued within the taxable year 1934 as interest on indebtedness are deductible, with certain exceptions, from gross income in determining net income. Such items include interest on borrowed money to defray personal expenses, and on money borrowed for the purchase of real or personal property. If a person owes money on a lien or mortgage not on his home, the amount of the interest may be deducted. Indebtedness, however, need not be evidenced by lien, judgment, or mortgage to make the interest on it deductible. Frequently indebtedness is evidenced only by a note.

Interest paid on indebtedness incurred in the purchase of obligations (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917, and originally subscribed for by the taxpayer) the interest upon which is wholly exempt from federal income tax, is not deductible. Interest paid on loans on life insurance policies is deductible provided the amount of the loan is not used for the purposes previously referred to in this paragraph.

Interest paid on behalf of a friend or relative where there is no legal obligation on the part of the payor is not deductible. In such cases the amount is the same as a gift.

As interest paid is deductible, so interest received is taxable. All such amounts, including interest received on bank and saving deposits, must be included in the taxpayer's return of gross income.

Spaghetti Supper Held By Local Women's Club

As a part of the celebration in connection with Business and Professional Women's week, a chicken spaghetti supper was served Saturday night, beginning at 5:30 o'clock, in the old World building on South Grand street, by the Business and Professional Women's club of Monroe.

Mrs. R. N. Slator, chairman of the food committee, had charge of preparing the supper, which was declared by those who partook of it to be a real treat.

Seven Times A Bride But Never An Alimony Seeker

Mrs. Virginia Cogswell . . . puts no price-tag on divorce

(By NEA Service)

CHICAGO, March 9.—When Mrs. Virginia Cogswell, who has had seven husbands since the time she was 16 and her present 28th birthday—and has none now—recently applauded legislators for their attempt to abolish breach-of-promise and alienation-of-affections suites, she sounded an authentic note.

Mrs. Cogswell has never accepted one cent of alimony from the men who loved her although many of them were wealthy.

"Suits like that are rackets," she states. "I've never sued anyone, except for divorce. Alimony's unnecessary, too."

Mrs. Cogswell has gleaned no money from her matrimonial experiments but she has a wealth of knowledge, she asserts.

"Remember, first of all, that all men are polygamous," she advises women who are looking towards matrimony. The fact that a man experiences a passing infatuation that may last a day, a week or a month does not mean that he no longer loves his wife. He will recover from it. She should be patient.

"But a woman must cultivate and be true to her finest qualities, her highest ideals. She should keep herself strictly for her husband. All men want those things that belong to them for their very own."

Mrs. Cogswell's own marriage progression began in Atlanta, Ga., back in 1924 when she was 16. A social beauty and granddaughter of James M. Overshiner, first president of the American Tin Plate company, she was a much sought belle. Husband No. 1 was Asa G. Patterson.

Ivan G. Stark, of Chicago, Frenchborn, met Mrs. Cogswell on a boat about a year later. She had been divorced meantime. Two weeks later she married the Frenchman. But within four months she obtained an annulment.

After that, she studied at the Chicago School of Art. But one day, visiting back home in Atlanta, she discovered that a family friend, Charles Francis Seeger, wealthy, scholarly, much older, loved her. She married him. The age chasm was too great. So she severed this marriage, too. And she refused alimony.

In New York, later, she met Albert Gilbert, a photographer with a list of endearments. But one week after the marriage the bride walked out and there was a divorce. Her husband hadn't meant his nice words, she said. And she refused alimony.

Robert J. Kahn was next. The nuptials failed. Kahn's former wife alleged that the man had obtained a fraudulent divorce to marry Virginia. The judge asked the erring husband to pay Mrs. Cogswell $25 a week but he forgot about it.

Then Arthur J. Cogswell, a commercial artist, came along and last June they were married. In July they separated. When Mrs. Cogswell began to search for her husband to obtain an annulment, he disappeared.

Now, seven marriages having profited her nothing but experience, Mrs. Cogswell continues to believe that a woman is a poor sport who keeps her hand in her former husband's pocketbook.

Jonesboro

At the first quarterly conference of the Methodist church of Jonesboro, presided over by Rev. Hoffpauir, the presiding elder of the Ruston district, a very healthy condition of affairs was revealed by the various reports submitted by the different departments of the church organization. The appointment of W. E. Walker as superintendent of the Sunday school, and V. L. Brumfield as chairman of the board of stewards, was ratified by the presiding elder. The financial reports were satisfactory. The report from the missionary society manifested an enlarged program of work and the Sunday school is steadily climbing in attendance.

The Methodist congregation is gradually growing and plans for new buildings for both the Sunday school and the church will soon be worked out.

The following delegates to the district conference to be held at Ringgold in April were elected: V. L. Brumfield, J. E. Cox, Mrs. J. F. Sneed, Mrs. W. S. McDonald, Clyde Newton and W. E. Walker.

Mrs. W. K Scroggins was hostess to her art club in her home in Jonesboro. The club enjoyed an hour of knitting and embroidering, and then engaged in a social hour, during which time the hostess served delicious refreshments to the following members and guests: Mrs. Carmen Thomas, Miss Grace Hardy, of Corpus Christi, Tex.; Mrs. Charlie Patison, Mrs. David Jeffress, Mrs. Brown Traylor, Mrs. Paul Stinson, Mrs. George Littlefield, Mrs. S. Lewis, Mrs. Rowley Baker, Mrs. H. W. Ayers and Mrs. Tommie Cox.

Mrs. Tommie Cox entertained the members of her auction bridge club with three tables of bridge. Mrs. Cox used cut flowers and ferns in the reception room for her decorations. Mrs. Charlie Patison won high score for the ladies, and received a beautiful hooked mat, and Mrs. Paul Stinson received a handsome shirt for the gentlemen's prize.

The hostess served a pear salad, creamed chicken in pattie shells, cake and crackers, and hot tea to the following club members: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patison, Mr. and Mrs. S. Kirkland, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stinson, Mr. and Mrs. Harper Cox, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Gatlin and Mrs. O. A. Gaar.

The W. M. S. of the Methodist church met for a regular business meeting. Mrs. A. A. Meredith, the presiding officer, gave the devotional exercises. Mrs. Duke and Mrs W. S. McDonald sang a duet, "Living for Jesus." Following the order of business the following delegates were elected to represent the organization at the state convention to be held at DeRidder on April 3-5; Mrs. A. A. Meredith and Mrs. Nannie Thurman, with Mrs. W. S. McDonald and Mrs. W. W. McDonald as alternates.

Mr. and Mrs. Green Butler are receiving the congratulations of the community on the arrival of another son into their family. The youngster made his arrival at the Ruston-Lincoln sanitarium at Ruston on Feb. 26, weighing eight pounds. Mrs. Butler is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Simonton of Jonesboro.

Edgar Vaughn and Miss Annie Lee Stuckey were very quietly married last Friday afternoon at the Methodist parsonage, with Rev. J. S. Henley officiating, and with only a few friends present. The couple left immediately for Alexandria for a short honeymoon, after which they will make their home in Jonesboro. Both are employed at the Southern Advance Bag and Paper company at Hodge.

Carpenters Get Work In Bernice As Storm Damages Are Repaired

BERNICE, La., March 9.—(Special)—Practically every carpenter in Bernice was working here this week rebuilding and repairing structures that were torn down or damaged by the severe windstorm which struck here Monday afternoon and demolished several buildings and unroofed many others. The damage to the house tops was especially heavy, more severe than it was first estimated.

Bernice was also visited by a heavy hail storm Wednesday which struck northwest of town. The hail broke out several window panes in residences of that section and knocked holes in the tops of school buses bringing children home from school.

INDUSTRIAL--REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITI

STOUGH TO OPEN BAR THIS WEEK

Modern Fixtures Being Installed In Monroe Hotel Building

A high class, modern bar will be opened to the public this week by Harry Stough. The bar will be located in the Monroe hotel building and will be known as Stough's.

An elaborate new bar has been shipped from the factory of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company and will be installed early this week. Everything will be in readiness for the opening the latter part of the week.

Mr. Stough is well known here, having been connected with Harry Prophit's Main buffet for the past several years.

Mr. Stough said yesterday that Stough's will cater exclusively to the better trade and that only quality merchandise will be offered the public. All the well known brands of liquors, wines and beers will be sold. Stough's will make a specialty of package goods and attractive prices will prevail. All kinds of mixed drinks also will be available at the new bar, of course. Mr. Stough is an expert mixologist and service at Stough's will be under his personal supervision at all times.

The new bar will be one of the finest in the state. It will be reminiscent of the old style bar fixtures, yet with many modern features and all blended in perfect harmony. The bar at Stough's will be 20 feet long, and there will be 27 feet of bar space in all.

The reputation of Brunswick-Balke-Collender assures the utmost in modern bars. Only quality products go into the manufacture of Brunswick equipment and skilled craftsmen are employed at the factory. The Arcadian fixture, which is being installed at Stough's, is a beautifully finished bar, the very latest in construction and appointments. A member of Brunswick's creative staff will supervise the installation of Stough's bar, and assist in placing the tables, chairs, service fixtures, wainscoating and incidental accessories so that these important elements may form the proper relationship.

Among the popular bars of this section which were installed by the Brunswick people were those at the Monteleone hotel and the Sazarac company, at New Orleans, and the Southern club in Hot Springs.

Mr. Stough also announced yesterday that his new bar will be increased in size in the near future. He plans to open a cocktail room in the adjoining space formerly occupied by the Hotel Monroe Drug store.

CHEVROLET ADDS ASSEMBLY PLANT

The Chevrolet Motor company has expanded its manufacturing facilities by the addition of a new assembly plant at Baltimore, Md., and by enlarging and improving assembly plants in nine other cities for increased manufacturing schedules during the year.

Completion of the new Baltimore plant is being rushed and it is expected that car assembly at this point will begin early in March. Additions to the assembly plants at Kansas City, Mo., and Atlanta, Ga., have been completed, and at Buffalo, N. Y., a 500-foot final assembly conveyor has been installed.

Both passenger and commercial car production have been speeded up at Chevrolet's Oakland plant with the addition of a new assembly line conveyor to be used exclusively for trucks.

To improve volume production of Chevrolet's knee-action units and to maintain a high rate of orderly output, the Detroit spring and axle plant has been renovated, providing a more efficient system of assembly. The manufacture of the various parts used in the knee-action units was brought under one roof and the consolidation resulted in more efficient handling of the processes and inspections needed for the quantity production of knee-action equipment, the manufacture of which involved practices totally new to the automobile industry.

NEW BAR TO BE INSTALLED BY HARRY STOUGH

Above s a photo of the beautiful new bar fixture to be installed by Harry Stough early this week in the Monroe hotel building. Stough's will be opened to the public later in the week. The bar fixture, manufactured by Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, is one of the most elaborate in the state. Mr. Stough said that he would operate a high class establishment, specializing in mixed drinks and package goods.

BUSINESS GOOD WITH PONTIAC

Survey Reveals Great Demand For Popular New Line Of Cars

C. P. Simpson, and D. U. Bathrick, assistant general sales managers of the Pontiac Motor company have visited dealers and observed conditions in no less than 30 large cities in the country in the last four weeks, according to Union Motors, Inc., local Pontiac dealers.

While frequent statements that have been issued from the offices of the company indicate that Pontiac sales are running from 100 to 300 per cent ahead of last year, these two executives report that all business is good everywhere.

Mr. Simpson, whose recent trips have extended from Chicago to the Pacific coast, the northwest and the southwest, was impressed by the exceptionally fine feeling that he found in Minneapolis and Fargo, N. D., which were the chief storm centers of last year's drouth. In that large area Pontiac registered three times as many cars in this January as in the same month last year. The same proportionate increase was recorded in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys.

By the end of February, says Mr. Simpson, Pontiac's shipments to the Pacific coast region will equal 65 per cent of the total shipped to that territory during all of 1934.

"All through the country I travelled I found that our new line of low priced standard sixes, which was just announced is taking hold remarkably well," said Mr. Simpson. "Motorists are realizing that it embodies practically every advantage of our deluxe six and straight eight. They find that the improved stabilized front spring design gives virtually as good a ride as the enclosed knee action front wheel suspension of the other models."

Mr. Bathrick, whose business trips have taken him throughout the east and southeast, has encountered a condition in the New England states which is almost unique in the automotive history of that region. Pontiac dealers in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, where they generally are on snow shoes during January and February, actually are crying for automobiles. The Portland, Maine, dealer came to the factory to try to get a trainload shipment, but the factory could not give that many cars to any one dealer.

In the Pittsburgh zone, says Mr. Bathrick, deliveries of Pontiacs for the first 20 days of January are three and one-half times as many as they were during the same period of last year.

"The great volume of coupe business that we are obtaining indicates quite clearly that fleet buyers and hard headed business men are in the market this year for a large number of cars for business purposes," he believes.

"A very encouraging sign in our picture is the fact that used car sales are practically keeping pace with the increase in new car sales. And of course, that is the neck of the bottle. If used car sales stop, the sale of new cars automatically stops because car dealers get their working capital tied up in used car inventories and are compelled to stop taking cars in trade."

FARMERS MEET

TALLULAH, La., March 9.—(Special)—At a regular meeting of the Madison Parish Farmers' club held in the community room of the Methodist church here Thursday a program under the direction of Miss Bertha Keller, vice president, was rendered by the women of the club consisting of talks by Mrs. Brown, of New Orleans, field representative of the federal housing administration, Mrs. George Thompson and Mrs. J. H. Devine. Community singing led by Mrs. C. M. Richie and an exhibit of needlecraft, antiques and garden seed were other features.

FORD HAS HEAVY GAINS IN SALES

Registration Figures Show Company Ahead In Unit Increase

The contribution of the automobile industry toward national business recovery in 1934 was shown graphically today in a recapitulation of national automobile registration figures of the Ford Motor company for the past year.

The figures showed heavy gains registered in automotive sales during the year, with the Ford company far ahead in actual unit sales gain during 1934 over registrations in 1933.

Of the entire industry's gain of 552,780 car and truck sales in 1934 over the previous year, Ford V-8 passenger and commercial cars accounted for approximately 56 per cent, or 285,268 units, the figures showed.

Ford passenger car sales in 1934 showed an increase of 70.5 per cent over Ford registrations during the previous year, while Ford V-8 truck sales gained 105.5 per cent during 1934—the greatest truck gain in the entire industry for the year. A total of 530,528 Ford V-8 passenger cars were registered in 1934, as compared with 311,113 units in 1933. The average gain for Ford, in both passenger and commercial cars, was 76.4 per cent.

Launching a vigorous sales campaign late in 1933, at the introduction of the 1934 cars and trucks, the Ford company during 1934 also piled up the greatest percentage and unit gain in sales of the three large manufacturers in the low priced field. Passenger car sales gains of the other two companies were 21.2 per cent and 26.4 per cent, respectively, compared with the Ford gain of 70.5 per cent.

Ford showed a total registration of passenger cars and trucks during 1934 of 658,778 units in the United States alone. This figure does not include Canadian or foreign sales.

PARNELL JOINS WALTERS SHO

Radio Expert Joins Local Service Firm; Fine Equipment Added

Lloyd Walters, head of Lloyd Walters Radio Service, announced yesterday that Ben Parnell, well known local radio and electrical refrigeration expert, has joined the Walters firm. For the past six years, Mr. Parnell has been connected with Montgomery Ward in charge of the radio and electrical refrigerator department.

The addition of Mr. Parnell to the Walters shop gives that firm two skilled radio craftsmen. Both Mr. Walters and Mr. Parnell are thoroughly experienced in radio work and each has built an enviable reputation in that line.

The Walters shop has one of the most complete radio laboratories in the south. It is the only radio service shop in north Louisiana that is equipped to give factory service on radios. No radio repair job is too large or too small, as the Walters shop is equipped to repair or completely rebuild any receiving set.

Located at 402 Wood street, the Walters shop carries a complete stock of parts, as well as tubes and other accessories. They also sell new and used radios and this week Mr. Walters expects to close arrangements for the distributorship of one of the best known and most reliable lines of radios manufactured in America.

The Walters shop makes a specialty of repairing automobile radios. There is plenty of parking space near the shop and auto owners whose radios are not functioning properly are invited to consult Mr. Walters or Mr. Parnell.

The Walters concern has a modern sound truck which is available for all occasions. They also are equipped to build amplifiers and other similar equipment.

Radio owners in this section will find that Walters Radio Service does high quality work at reasonable cost. Mr. Walters does not sacrifice quality for a price consideration, but his charges are most reasonable for the class of work turned out. Only first class parts and equipment are used and the job is done by a man who knows his business thoroughly.

One of the Walters experts will be glad to call at your home and inspect or repair your radio. You are invited to call telephone number 463, or go to 402 Wood street for skilled radio service.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—(AP)—The cotton market was feverishly active in today's short week-end session. Prices broke badly, particularly on new crop months. This was due partly to the proposal in congress to exempt two-bale farmers which would mean a considerable increase in production, possibly as much as five million bales.

The main cause of the decline in new crop months was the heavy selling by European interests owing to the belief that there will be no loans to farmers next season and therefore no "pegged" price.

Prices dropped 15 to 17 points on old crop months and 23 to 24 points on new crop months. Although the close was called steady, it was at or near the lows.

New York

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Cotton became decidedly more active and weaker today with new crop months leading the decline under liquidation combined with foreign selling.

Offerings were attributed chiefly to uncertainty over the question of crop loans for next season and other features of the agricultural program.

May sold down from 12.27 to 12.14 cents, while October broke from 12.14 to 11.92 cents with the market closing barely steady at net losses of 16 to 26 points.

Sugar

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Raw sugar was steady and unchanged today at 3.00 cents for spots with no sales reported.

There was little variation in futures and aside from one transaction of a block of 219 lots, or 10,950 tons at 2.21 cents in the spot number 1, unchanged from the previous close, there was very little trading.

Operators generally were inclined to limit new commitments, pending labor conditions in Cuba over the week-end.

Undertone was steady reflecting firmness of shades. Final quotations were unchanged in the number 1 and unchanged to 1 point lower in the number 3. Sales in the former totaled 13,400 tons, and in the latter only 1,000 tons.

March number 1 closed at 2.06 cents, July at 2.16 cents and December at 2.27 cents. Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.30 to 4.50 cents for fine granulated with only moderate inquiry reported.

Sugar futures closed quiet, unchanged; sales 13,400 tons. March 2.06b; May 2.11b; July 1.16b; Sept. 2.21b; Dec. 2.27b; Jan. 2.19b.

CHICAGO, March 9.—(AP)—Poultry, live, 6 trucks, steady, prices unchanged.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Brakes again failed to hold in the rails in today's shore session of the stock market, and prices were pulled irregularly lower, although trading was light. The closing tone was easy. Transfers approximated 280,000 shares.

Week-end business and trade news was a little more favorable than a week ago, but with the period at hand when industrial production is likely to reach its seasonal peak, Wall Street remained cautious.

Renewed selling of the rails was said to reflect the continued unsatisfactory earnings position of the carriers. New developments were lacking. However, it was pointed out that the roads face a 5 per cent wage increase April 1 and yesterday's carloadings report, while showing a better than seasonal gain over the previous week, failed to top the same week of last year.

Union Pacific lost as much as 2 points and fractional recessions appeared in such issues as Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio.

Non-ferrous metals showed isolated strength. This reflected both the increase in the London gold price today and the presence in New York of leaders of the world copper industry preparatory to restriction negotiations next week. Homestake Mining jumped 5 points while such issues as McIntyre, Howe Sound and Noranda rose fractionally. There was little activity, however, in shares of such big domestic copper producers as Kennecott and Phelps Dodge.

Steel shares were soggy with U. S. Steel and Bethlehem losing about half a point. Although the recent sag in steel production appears to have been checked Wall Street analysts could see little reason to expect sharp gains in the near future, barring a sharp revival of demand from the railroads and from heavy construction.

Much of the list closed virtually unchanged but miscellaneous issues losing around half a point included DuPont, Standard of N. J. and Consolidated Gas.

Among favorable domestic statistics was a report of a rise in bituminous coal production for the week ended March 2 to the highest level for any corresponding week since 1929. This favorable showing, however, was mitigated by reports that consumers were stocking up in preparation for a possible price increase.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY -:- Alexander Sets Out To Conquer -:- By J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

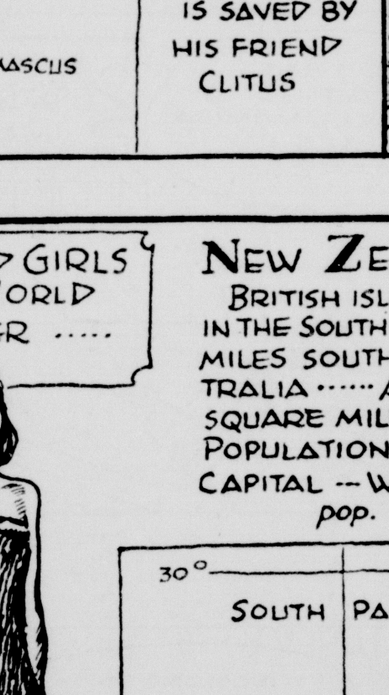

IN THE YEAR 334 B.C. ALEXANDER THE GREAT, THEN ONLY TWENTY-TWO, EMBARKED ON HIS CAREER OF WORLD CONQUEST. WITH A PICKED FORCE OF 35,000 MACEDONIANS AND GREEKS HE CROSSED THE HELLESPONT (THE DARDANELLES) AND INVADED ASIA MINOR .....

TO THE SOUTH, CLUSTERED ON THE SHORE OF THE AEGEAN, LAY PROSPEROUS CITY-STATES, COLONIZED BY THE GREEKS BUT NOW "SATRAPS" (TRIBUTARY PROVINCES) OF THE MIGHTY PERSIAN EMPIRE.

HE FIRST VISITED THE RUINS OF TROY, WHERE HE PRAYED TO THE ANCIENT GREEK HEROES THAT HE AND HIS MEN MIGHT BE FILLED WITH THE HOMERIC FIGHTING SPIRIT.....

A PERSIAN ARMY WAS WAITING FOR HIM AT THE RIVER GRANICUS. HERE IN HIS FIRST CRITICAL BATTLE ALEXANDER WON AN EASY VICTORY. THIS SUCCESS GAVE HIM ADDED CONFIDENCE. ALARM SPREAD THROUGH THE PERSIAN EMPIRE.

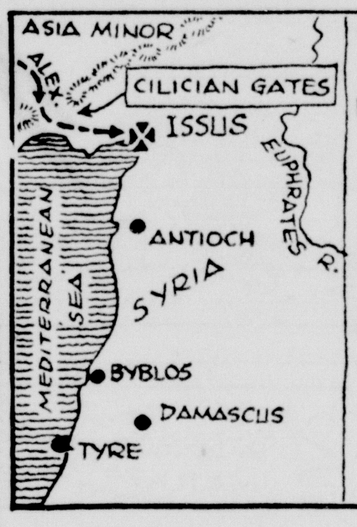

WITH THE PERSIANS FLEEING BEFORE HIM, THE YOUNG CONQUEROR SWEPT SOUTHWARD AND TOOK THE RICH CITIES OF SARDIS AND EPHESUS.

ALEXANDER MARCHED ON UNOPPOSED TO GORDIUM. HERE IN THE TEMPLE STOOD A FAMOUS CHARIOT, A YOKE TIED TO ITS POLE BY A BAFFLING KNOT..... A LEGEND SAID THAT WHOEVER UNTIED THE KNOT WOULD BECOME MASTER OF ASIA.

ALEXANDER DREW HIS SWORD AND CUT THE KNOT. EVER SINCE THEN THE PHRASE "CUTTING THE GORDIAN KNOT" HAS BEEN USED TO EXPRESS THE SETTLING OF A PROBLEM BY THE BOLDEST AND MOST DIRECT MEANS.

DARIUS, THE PERSIAN KING, ADVANCED TO MEET THE INVADERS WITH AN ARMY ONE MILLION STRONG....! .... BUT NINE-TENTHS OF THIS HOST CONSISTED OF PORTERS, SLAVES, MUSICIANS AND CAMP FOLLOWERS.

THE TWO ARMIES MET ON THE PLAIN OF ISSUS (333 B.C.). ALEXANDER FIGHTS IN THE THICKEST OF THE FRAY. ONCE HIS LIFE IS SAVED BY HIS FRIEND CLITUS

THE MASSED MACEDONIAN PHALANX SHATTERS THE PERSIAN LINE. ALEXANDER'S CAVALRY SWEEPS THE ENEMY FROM THE FIELD. THE PERSIANS HARDLY STOP RUNNING UNTIL THEY CROSS THE EUPHRATES.

PARMENIO, VETERAN MACEDONIAN GENERAL, CAUTIONS ALEXANDER TO VENTURE NO FURTHER INTO ASIA, BUT THE YOUTHFUL LEADER IS EAGER TO PUSH ON---!

"KILLED" _in the War _by Train _Flaming Plane _Firing Squad _Murder Jury _Suicide _and He Still LIVES!

First Amazing Story of the Pitiable Pawn of Fate Who Could Not Even Die by His Own Hand

BETWEEN CALAMITIES

IN COURT

LITERARY AIDE
Nadejda Gorodetzky, Famous Russian Writer, Was One of Fialko's Witnesses. Her Story Did Much to Free Him.

FOR LOVE OF HER
Unusual Photo of Mme. Fialko; the "Luckiest Man" Married Her Because She Reminded Him of an Earlier Love, and Then Killed the Man Who Stole Her.

THE luckiest man in Europe—the "Man Whom Death Shuns"—they call him, and probably no more fantastic life story has ever been told—

Men were shot down on all sides of him during the World War, and many times he was believed killed in action. He was thrown from a speeding train, down a steep embankment—and left for dead! The plane he was piloting crashed in flames—and he was left for dead! He was actually shot by a firing squad—and left for dead! He tried suicide—and no one thought he could live!

Yet he did—and now a murder jury, which seemed to have a perfect case for sending him to the guillotine, for killing the man who was his rival in love, has just refused to pronounce the death-verdict!

This, briefly, is the story of Yvan Feodorvitch Fialko, a former officer of the Czar's army. Recently he confessed to slaying a man who had stolen his wife and at the sensational trial which followed in Paris, his amazing story became known.

Fialko "lost" his first life in the war. He had entered the service at Kief, where his parents belonged to the land-owning class. At nineteen he had been ordered to Irkoutsk, Siberia, where he was billeted with a family. Here he had met and loved Helen, fourteen-year-old daughter of the family, and they were to have been married just as the war broke out.

Confident that his sweetheart's love would endure until he could return, the young officer set off for the front. But after two treasured letters from the girl, he heard no more.

Perplexed and worried, he wrote the parents, but there was no reply. Recklessly he now threw himself into every conflict, miraculously escaped the bullets he defied, although several times reported as dead, and won repeated citations for bravery.

But his thoughts were of Helen, and when at last the war came to an end, he hurried to Irkoutsk. Here he learned the truth—that he was "officially" dead. The girl's parents had shown Helen the fateful document, covered with seals, attesting to his demise, and after grieving for a year, she had married a friend of the family.

The grief-stricken soldier boarded a train for Kief, to seek consolation in the bosom of his family. Incipient flashes of the revolution that was soon to sweep Russia were already apparent. Revolting sailors on the same train saw the officer, seized him and threw him out of his compartment as the train sped on. They saw him roll down the embankment, an inert heap, his neck apparently broken. At dawn a peasant woman found the unconscious man and took him to her home, where she revived him—and once more he was on his way!

Disturbances continued and the White Army was formed. Fialko became a member of General Wrangel's staff and was assigned to the air force.

Many dangerous reconnaissances were entrusted to the daring officer. One day his plane fell in flames. Fialko, overcome and scorched, was picked up for dead.

But again his luck held! Instead of a funeral, there was a wedding. Fialko, recovered, married Helen Lopakine, daughter of impoverished aristocrats.

Stranger experiences, if possible, were still in store for the often "killed" but never dead adventurer, and strangest of all was the one to follow.

Learning of his father's death at the hands of the now rampant Bolsheviki, and with but one thought, that of the safety of his three sisters and three brothers, Fialko adopted a disguise, procured false papers of identification and in the face of constant threat made his way by slow degrees toward Kief.

His object almost realized, his disguise was penetrated one day by the ringleader of the same band of sailors that had once hurled him from a train and he was stood before a wall to face a firing squad.

"This time," the ex-sailor swore, "you'll not cheat us!"

That night, long after the garrison had retired, a silhouetted figure, crawling slowly, painfully across a field, found shelter in a stable. Two days later the red troops left. Peasants found him and took him to their stable for care. The false papers shielded his real identity.

Miraculously, recovery was rapid. Fialko's strong physique and tremendous reserve energy had made him well-nigh invulnerable to Fate's grimly grotesque thrusts. He made his way to Paris where he obtained employment.

In the meantime he struck up a friendship with Nicholas Dorster, another Russian expatriate, to whom he introduced his wife, to set the stage for his latest skirmish with Death.

Has Fialko the vital tenacity of the cat, with its proverbial nine lives? If so, three lives yet remain to be tested by further jeopardy.

MEND WAYS, SAID THE JUDGE

When the Little Brood Was Found Shivering and Hungry While Their Parents Frolicked

PAY checks drawn by the head of the Ault family hereafter will go for food rather than for drinking parties—and the food will be sufficient to feed the mouths of as cute a quintet of little lassies as the stork has ever deposited in any household.

That is the solemn resolve of the parents, Joseph Ault, 26, a drayman of San Francisco, and his wife Nellie, 25, after they had received the scare of their lives when they arrived home one Sunday afternoon after an all-night week-end fling and found their brood gone.

Terror clutched the hearts of the remiss parents when they entered the home and found it deserted. Thoughts of kidnaping flashed through their minds. And remorse held them in a vise-like grip.

It was fitting punishment, the judge later agreed, when he accepted the pledge of the conscience-stricken parents and returned the three eldest children to their care, retaining custody of the other two for necessary medical attention.

The five, all sisters, with ages as you count them—Bernice, just short of 1; Eileen, 2; Shirley, 3; June, 4, and Ruth, 5—had been taken to the juvenile detention home by Officer J. Colligan when he found them in a flat huddled together, cold, hungry, scantily-clad and crying—as deserted as ever were the story-book babes in the woods.

Neighbors who had heard the piteous wailing of the abandoned flock and had phoned the police told the officer that the parents had been away since the previous day and that they often had similarly neglected the children.

When Officer Colligan forced his way into the flat, Ruth, the oldest, mustered courage to tell him that she had been left in charge of the youngsters by her parents and had done her best, and then her lips began to quiver and she continued, between crying spells, that they were sort of hard to handle, especially when there was no food in sight and the place was cold.

At the Detention Home, where Officer Colligan's "haul" soon was made comfortable—food, a warm room and needed clothing bringing about that result—police officers and matron and social workers, who dropped in to make inquiries regarding the case, wondered how it was possible that parents could have it in their hearts to desert such a fascinating family, even for a matter of hours. "Why," said one of the latter group, "I could find any number of childless couples who would jump at the chance to adopt any one of these adorable kiddies."

To which Officer Colligan responded heartily: "I'd take one meself, but there's small chance of that now—the Aults have learned their lesson. Ye can bet on that!"

'HAMMER-FANNERS' BOASTED—SAYS EXPERT

And Maybe Those Pioneer Dead Shots Were Like Fishermen—Told Whoppers

Recent Photo of Charles Askins, Jr., Champion Marksman of the Southwest. He Says the Claims of the Dead Shots of Pioneer Days Were Just "Fish Stories."

Here's the Best That Champion Pistoleer Askins Could Do to the Spots on a Playing Card—at 10 Paces.

FISHERMEN'S yarns and the tales of frontiersmen are much alike, as regards angling and pistol shooting, in the opinion of Charles Askins, Jr., one of Uncle Sam's mounted border patrolmen, who since 1931 has won all marksmanship medals as fast as offered along the southwest border, sole remaining frontier of the United States. In fact, in 1932 Askins was the acknowledged peer of all the American pistolers, cinching, if anything can, his claim about knowing something of the subject.

Askins has proven to himself—and probably to many others who are not disposed to be befuddled by the reputed romanticism of the vanished revolver-and-riata age—that distance has lent a lot of enchantment to the view, and that "Wild Bill" Hickok, were he restored to the living at this time, probably would be constrained to admit that hearsay and hiccoughs (which hit it off together very well) have done a good deal to enhance his reputation.

Just to test the tales of tall shooting done by the old-timers in the halcyon days the noted border shot chose a card—the five of spades—as a target, even as has been done in many a classic barroom scene of "Western movies, which purport to give a true picture of pioneer days.

With equipment so far superior to the old single-action Colts of unhallowed memory as to offer no reasonable comparison, Askins on repeated trys at 10 paces was able to do no better than is indicated on one of his targets, herewith reproduced—two direct hits of the symbols, one partial hit and two dangerously close.

"I'll venture to say," confided modest Mr. Askins to the correspondent after the demonstration, "that the hammer-fanner couldn't even hit the card, with his now antiquated firing irons."

In making the statement, the ace border shot disavowed any intention of detracting from the luster of wild and wooly Western days. He has respect, he says, for the pistolic achievements of these daring men—and achievements they must have been in many cases (steel-trap precision, errorless aim, hair-trigger action) otherwise they would not have survived as long as they did in that rough and ready era of pioneering.

He harked back as far as Davy Crockett to bestow praise, and as he brought the roster up to modern times, such names as "Texas Jack" and "Buffalo Bill," aside of that "Wild Bill," already mentioned; of Wyatt Earp and Bat Masterson and others hardly less known among students and admirers of the old West, studded the record.

He had a good word, too, for the exhibitionists—such performers with shotguns and revolvers as the immortal Annie Oakley, greatest of crackshot gunwomen, and her consort under the "big top," Johnny Baker (these two the proteges of boyhood's perennial hero, "Buffalo Bill," who was as great a fancy shooter as he was a deadly one in Indian melees); of the miraculous Dr. Carver, of many another.

But always Trooper Askins reiterated his original contention; namely, that with limitations of equipment and ammunition of lesser velocity and penetration considered, the expert marksman of today could outshoot, in the sense of outscoring, the dead-shot of the dear departed days of Redskin.

Sheriff-Elect Ralph S. Marshall, of Ohio, Caught Demonstrating His Fitness for His Job—By Crashing Two Bulls-Eyes With Two Revolvers, at the Same Time!

And yet, as if in vindicattion of the loquacious old timers who regale the youth of today with fabulous tales of pioneer markmanship, Ralph S. Marshall, of Allen County, Ohio, has just shot his way into the sheriff's office!

Disdaining to indulge in political harangues to achieve his election, Marshall went about among his constituents and allowed his guns to speak for him—one in each hand.

The voters thought his shooting exhibitions were pretty good argument that he could cope with the duties of the sheriff's office, especially when he broke two separate targets with two revolvers fired at the same time.

HERE IS A NINE-WORD REBUS SENTENCE. CAN YOU READ IT? STUDY THE PICTURES CAREFULLY.

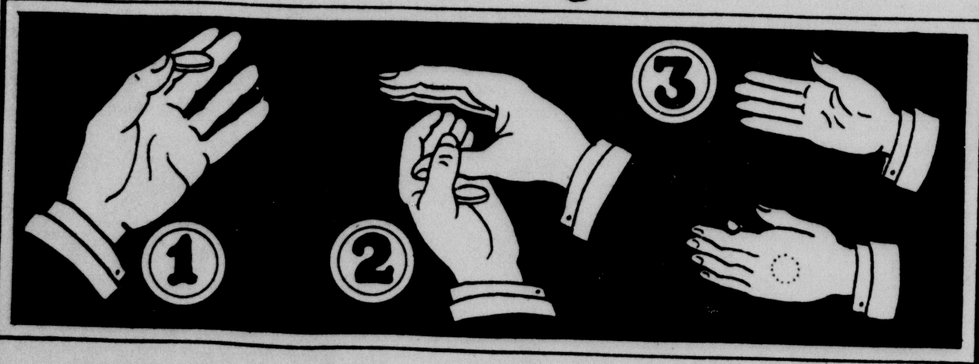

PUSS C. KATT CAN WRITE THE EIGHT LETTERS SHOWN ABOVE, ONE INTO EACH EMPTY SQUARE, SO THEY WILL FORM SIX THREE-LETTER WORDS READING IN THE DIRECTIONS OF THE ARROWS. THE "R" IS PLACED IN THE CORRECT POSITION AND FORMS THE CENTER LETTER OF TWO WORDS.

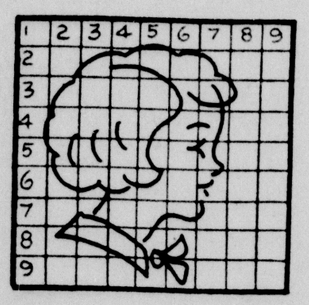

TAKE A PIECE OF PAPER AND A PENCIL, AND TRY TO DRAW THE ABOVE DESIGN WITHOUT LOOKING AT THE PAPER ON WHICH YOU ARE DRAWING. SOUNDS SIMPLE DOESN'T IT? . . . WELL— JUST TRY IT.

SEE WHO CAN MAKE THE MOST PERFECT DESIGN.

The Vanishing Coin.

DICK TRACY

by CHESTER GOULD

THERE'S NO TWO WAYS ABOUT IT, CHIEF! THAT WOMAN, WHOEVER SHE IS, THAT TRIED TO ASSASSINATE JUNIOR'S MOTHER HAS GIVEN US THE SLIP! SHE'S CLEVER, DARNED CLEVER.

WHO DO YOU THINK SHE IS AND WHY IS SHE IN MEN'S CLOTHES?

THE MALE ATTIRE SHE WORE WAS OBVIOUSLY A DISGUISE, AND AS TO HER IDENTITY, SHE UNDOUBTEDLY IS A CRIMINAL FRIEND OR A RELATIVE OF BORIS ARSON, BENT ON REMOVING MARY STEELE FOR TIPPING OFF THE GOVERNMENT ABOUT ARSON.

SAY - I SMELL POTATOES FRYING - OR IS IT MEAT?

YEAH - ARSON IS COOKING HIS OWN MEALS IN HIS CELL

SINCE WHEN HAS THAT BEEN GOING ON, CHIEF?

WELL, YOU SEE ARSON HAD ENOUGH DOUGH TO BUY SOME STEAK, AND HE ASKED ME IF HE COULD FRY SOME STEAK AND POTATOES ON THAT ELECTRIC STOVE THAT'S BEEN STANDING IN THE CORRIDOR.

CHIEF, I MAY BE SPEAKING OUT OF TURN - BUT I DON'T LIKE THAT IDEA ~~~ WHAT'S THAT?

OUCH! OW-W

WHAT ARE YOU YELLING ABOUT, ARSON? WHAT'S WRONG?

I WAS FRYING MY STEAK AND POTATOES, AND KNOCKED THE SKILLET OF HOT GREASE OVER ON MY ARM... GET ME SOME IODINE!

TEN MINUTES LATER..

FOR A PRISONER, YOU'VE GOT MORE CRUST THAN A CARLOAD OF TOAST - HERE'S YOUR IODINE.

THANK YOU, MR. PATTON, THANK YOU.

PRETENDING TO TREAT HIS ARM, ARSON WAITS UNTIL EVERYONE HAS GONE BACK TO THE JAIL OFFICE....THEN —

I JUST WANTED THIS IODINE TO MAKE A TEST. IF THE TEST WORKS OUT LIKE I THINK IT WILL - I'LL BE A FREE MAN IN TWENTY FOUR HOURS

TAKING A PIECE OF RAW POTATO, BORIS ARSON APPLIES A FEW DROPS OF IODINE TO IT, AND —

YOU SAY WHEN ARSON SENT OUT FOR POTATOES HE ASKED FOR BIG BAKING POTATOES? THAT'S FUNNY!

YEAH - BIG BAKING POTATOES - HE SAID HE LIKED FRIED POTATOES IN BIG ROUND SLICES CAN YOU IMAGINE A TEMPERAMENTAL JAIL BIRD LIKE THAT!

"TEMPERAMENTAL" IS PUTTING IT MILDLY, CHIEF BRANDON! "CLEVER", "TREACHEROUS", "CUNNING" WOULD BE MORE FITTING, AS YOU WILL SEE.
